I SAW A WENCH TODAY,
SHE WAS FINE! IN TIGHT SHORTS AND...

IS THAT THE ONLY WAY
YOU CAN THINK OF WOMEN?
AS SEX OBJECTS?

OF COURSE NOT! WOMEN ARE GOOD FOR CHORES
AROUND THE HOUSE TOO.

Pretrial hearing held today for confessed murderer

United Press International
DENTON — Confessed mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas, already sentenced to 75 years in prison for killing an elderly woman who befriended him, faces a pretrial hearing today in the slaying of his 15-year-old girlfriend.

The 47-year-old drifter and former psychiatric patient, who says his murder spree spread through 17 states, is charged in the death of Frieda Powell of Jacksonville, Fla., who was 15 at the time she disappeared in September 1982.

Her skeletal remains were found this summer in Denton County. Lucas called the victim, also known as "Becky," his common-law wife. He pleaded innocent to the charge and was ordered to stand trial on Oct. 17.

The pretrial hearing before state District Judge Sam Houston will deal with some 30 defense motions, including a request for a psychiatric evaluation of Lucas, said Denton County prosecutor Jerry Cobb.

Lucas faces five other murder charges in Texas and Louisiana.

At a pretrial hearing last week in Henrietta, Texas, Lucas pleaded guilty to the stabbing death of 80-year-old Kate Rich of Ringgold, Texas, who also disappeared in September 1982 and whose remains were found in June. Lucas was sentenced to 75 years in prison for her death. Lucas earlier had confessed to authorities that he killed Rich and Powell. He led officers to Powell's remains in a ditch beside Interstate 35 after showing officers a grave where Rich had been buried.

Lucas was convicted in 1960 of murdering his 74-year-old mother and served time in prison and in a mental hospital before being paroled from a Michigan prison in 1970.

Representative remembered

United Press International
AUSTIN — Friends and colleagues of Rep. Matt Garcia eulogized him Thursday as a champion of the downtrodden whose career was marked by idealism tempered with the necessary realism to achieve his goals.

Garcia, a San Antonio attorney who began his political career in 1972, died suddenly of a heart attack last Saturday. He was 55.

More than 200 people filled the House chamber to hear Gov. Mark White, House Speaker Gib Lewis and several House members pay their last respects to Garcia while his wife and children watched from the speaker's podium.

White said Garcia was a man who "accomplished more than many men dream of."

"Matt Garcia was a man who left us suddenly at the peak of his career," White said. "Matt would not want us to dwell on his death, but rather to proceed with his goals."

Lewis thanked Garcia's wife, Minnie, and his children for having shared Garcia's attention with the state and said the veteran lawmaker was a "champion not of lost causes, but of causes to be won."

Garcia's son, David, said the family had lost a father and friend.

Painter does not want home declared historic

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The isolated New Mexico home of painter Georgia O'Keeffe deserves its national historic designation and repeal, even at her urging, but the repeal would remove any option to again change her mind, a conservation group said Thursday.

O'Keeffe, now nearly 97, is asking Congress to reverse its historic designation of her Abiquiu, N.M., home and studio, effective upon her death, because of neighbors' fears the northern New Mexico hamlet will be inundated with tourists.

"From the outset, I want to say that the National Parks and Conservation Association respects the wishes of Georgia O'Keeffe, and like many of you, we are disappointed at this decision before it even became a historic site," Laura Beaty told the Senate Subcommittee on Public Lands and Reserved Water.

"But under the designation, if she does not want to donate the property, it does not come under the National Park Service jurisdiction," she said.

Beaty said repealing the designation — which has been done only twice before in the history of the National Park Service — would preclude another change of heart by Miss O'Keeffe.
