

Gunman crashes golf club

Reagan fan holds 7 hostages

United Press International
AUGUSTA, Ga. — Charles Raymond Harris, who crashed into a posh golf club, took hostages and demanded to see President Reagan, was described Sunday as a "Reagan voter, 'coon hunter and good ole boy' troubled by drink."

Harris faces charges of threatening the president for driving his pickup truck through a gate of the the Augusta National Golf Club Saturday. He held seven hostages for more than two hours, then released them unharmed before being subdued by Secret Service agents.

Reagan was enjoying a golfing weekend and was never in danger from the intrusion by Harris, an unemployed millwright who was drowning in personal problems and liquor and apparently wanted to tell his story to his political hero, officials said.

Harris, 45, was admitted to University Hospital in Augusta following his arrest, complaining of chest pains. Doctors said Sunday he was being kept for observation because of an enzyme imbalance but otherwise was in no health danger.

John O'Bryant, a co-worker who described himself as Harris' best friend, said Harris had lost his job at Continental Forest Industries "for reporting to work under the influence of alcohol."

U.S. District Judge Dudley Bowen scheduled a Tuesday afternoon arraignment for Harris on the federal charges. Harris also could face state charges of kidnapping and aggravated assault.

Harris, who was celebrating his first wedding anniversary

Saturday, drove his four-wheel drive pickup through the golf club gate, brandished a .38-caliber pistol and said "perhaps someone would be killed" if he weren't able to see the president.

His only demands were that he be allowed to talk to Reagan and that whiskey and food be brought to him in the golf pro shop where he held the seven hostages.

Man confesses to murder of boy

United Press International
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — An inmate at Florida State Prison confessed to the notorious 1981

kidnapping and savage killing of 6-year-old Adam Walsh, whose severed head was found in a Florida canal, police said Friday night.

Hollywood Police Chief Sam Martin identified the suspect as Otis Elwood Toole, 36, whom he described as an associate of confessed multiple killer Henry Lee Lucas.

Toole is presently in the Florida State Prison at Raiford serving a 20-year term for arson. He also has been indicted in Jacksonville on charges of arson and murder, Martin said.

"We have a signed, sworn statement from subject Toole," Martin said at a dramatic late night news conference. "He (Toole) said he picked up the boy (Adam) outside the mall, took him out to the turnpike. He lured him into his car, promising him candy and toys."

"Toole confessed to 35 to 50 homicides," Martin added. "He gave details of murders he and Lucas committed. The details make Charles Manson sound like Tom Sawyer or Huck Finn."

Adam, the blond, freckle-faced only son of a motel executive, was abducted from the toy department of a Hollywood mall department store on July 27, 1981, while his mother was shopping nearby.

His severed head was found two weeks later in an isolated canal near the Florida Turnpike, west of Vero Beach, about 100 miles north of where he had been kidnapped. No further trace has ever been discovered.

The brutal kidnap-murder led to a nationwide wave of revulsion, the Missing Children's Act passed by Congress last year, and the recent network television docudrama "Adam" that recounted the story.

At least $100,000 in rewards have been offered for the capture of Adam's murderer.

Lucas, whom the police chief described as Toole's associate, presently is in jail at Denton, Texas, awaiting trial for murder. Authorities report Lucas has claimed to have killed as many as 200 women across the United States. He was released from prison in 1975 after serving a term for the stabbing death of his mother.

The confession came less than two weeks after the Oct. 10 airing of the NBC docu-drama, in which Adam's father appeared at the end of the show to read the names of missing children while their pictures were flashed on the screen.

The show produced hundreds of telephone calls from people reporting to have seen some of the children.

It was not immediately learned, however, whether there was any connection between the program and Toole's confession.
