Nautical archaeology topic of series

Air Force Lt. Col. John Guilmartin will present a lecture tonight on "The Technological Historian and Nautical Archaeologists: Disciplines in Symbiosis." The free lecture is one of a series on nautical archaeology, and will begin at 7 p.m. in 301 Bolton.

Guilmartin currently is writing a history of the space shuttle, but has an interest in naval history. He is the author of "Gunpowder and Galleys," a book about naval battles and armaments from the 15th century to the 18th century.

The lecture is open to anyone interested.

St. Joseph offers candy screening

St. Joseph Hospital will offer free fluoroscopy screening of Halloween candy for metal objects tonight from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The process can see through wrapped candy to find foreign metal objects, but cannot identify poison or chemicals. Anyone wishing to have the fluoroscopy done should check in at the radiology, or X-ray, department in the hospital.

Grenada tries to return to normal

United Press International
 BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Grenada's Governor-General Sir Paul Scoon asked Grenadians to reopen stores and businesses Sunday despite an intensive search by U.S. troops searching for Cuban resisters hiding in the island's rugged mountains.

The Pentagon raised the American death toll from the 6-day-old invasion to 16 dead, three missing and 77 wounded.

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga flew to Grenada, 1,900 miles south of Miami, to witness progress made by the seven-nation task force that invaded the island to oust an extreme leftist regime and restore democracy.

Scoon, 49, who has survived two coups in Grenada, said he would appoint an interim government in the next few days. He was asked to form the new administration by leaders of the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States.

"This interim administration will provide us with the necessary breathing space to enable arrangements to be made for an early return to full constitutional government by way of general elections," said Scoon in a radio broadcast to Grenadians.

The OECS, which sought U.S. help for the intervention under a mutual defense pact in Article 8 of the group's charter, expects that elections can be held within six months.

U.S. Marines Saturday captured Grenadian Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, a militant Marxist suspected of engineering a bloody coup that preceded the U.S. invasion. Coard's whereabouts were not known on Sunday.

Marine Capt. David C. Karcher, whose patrol captured Coard, said the Grenadian leader had been hiding in a house in the hamlet of Radex since the invasion. He surrendered peacefully.

U.S. troops continued to encounter occasional sniper fire, much of it believed to be coming from Cubans fleeing north into the forested mountains that comprise much of Grenada's 133-square-mile surface.

Vice Admiral Joseph Metcalf, commander of the U.S.-Caribbean task force, told reporters Saturday that the length of the stay of U.S. troops will be determined by how long the Cubans continue to resist.

Lawrence Eagleburger, under secretary of state for political affairs, said on ABC's This Week with David Brinkley that the Reagan administration's objective "is to get U.S. forces off the island as quickly as we can."

The Washington Post said the army had lowered its estimate of the number of Cubans on Grenada from 1,100 to between 700 and 750, meaning the invasion forces were contending with only Cuban "snipers and stragglers."

Besides the United States, whose 5,900 troops comprise the bulk of the force, Jamaica, Barbados, Antigua, Dominica, St. Lucia and St. Vincent contributed another 300 soldiers and policemen.

Scoon flew to Barbados Saturday and broadcast a radio speech to Grenada, 150 miles west, asking owners of stores and businesses to open Sunday so residents could buy food and other necessities.

Scoon asked Grenadians to observe an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew "until further notice," saying this would insure the "safety and protection" of the island's 110,000 residents and facilitate the work of military patrols.

All government offices and schools would open Monday, he said.

He asked members of the Cuban-trained People's Revolutionary Army and the People's Militia to lay down their arms, assuring them "every precaution will be taken for your personal safety, like any other Grenadian citizen."
