Gatemen

Houston game was overheard saying to a group in red, "Hey, you pay extra to get hassled at the gate." There had been a question as to the validity of their tickets.

When there is a problem with a fan, the supervisor will step in. If the problem isn't taken care of, Fickey is called. The final step is to take a complaint to Assistant Athletic Director Wally Groff. Fickey says that Groff will stand behind the gatemen in all decisions. Kocman agrees that Groff supports decisions of the gatemen.

His support is probably one reason that about 80 percent of the gatemen stay from year to year, Fickey says.

Kocman says that despite problems the gatemen may encounter, their overall cardinal rule is to treat everyone fairly.

He remembers a time, long before the third deck was added, when the gatemen had trouble reading tickets because there were no lights at the gates. The lights on Kyle Field weren't bright enough to illuminate the gate areas, he says. That was about 1952.

Kocman says that once one of the gatemen challenged a man whom he thought was trying to gatecrash—the crasher was Ray George, coach for the Aggie football team from 1951-53. After that the gatemen began reviewing the football programs to learn the faces of the coaching staff, he says.

Kocman says he is a gateman because he wants to help Texas A&M. The gatemen are paid per game worked but most, such as Kocman, do it for Texas A&M and not for the money, says head gateman Fickey.
