Meeting's focus is health policy

United Press International
DALLAS — The debate over cost containment has become the central feature of national health policy, the president of the American Public Health Association told members at a national convention Sunday.

National health policy is no longer aimed at improved access to services, Dr. Anthony Robbins said.

"In response, a broad coalition of health groups organized to save existing programs," he said. "Damage control has been the hallmark of health advocates for the first three years of the Reagan presidency."

Judged against Reagan administration proposals, the "damage control" efforts have been moderately successful.

However, such efforts seem to have failed if one considers that the whole health agenda has shifted from one of health and people to one of dollars, competition and business, he said.

He urged delegates to the association's 111th annual meeting to provide a new agenda and outlined four targets of opportunity around which to build the program: disease eradication, primary care, long-term care financing and environmental and occupational health.

"Disease eradication is a useful way to encompass all efforts to improve the health of the American people," he said. "Primary care is the key to making medical services effective."

"The rapidly growing elderly populations argues for change in long term care," he said. "And occupational and environmental health is where the productive part of our economy interacts with the health of the people.

"If integrated into national and local politics, this agenda could provide the pressures that create and demand progress."

In addition, he said the cost of preventing the most common and most costly causes of death, disease and disability is very small compared to what Americans spend on medical care to treat those problems.

Issues on the agenda at the meeting, which continues through Thursday, include Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, vasectomy and the contraceptive sponge.

Family makes man turn in himself

Thief admits crimes, surrenders

United Press International
ADDISON — A man who admitted taking $1.5 million from a safe deposit box company says he traveled to Las Vegas, Nev., and Los Angeles, but decided to return for his family's sake.

"There came a point when I had to make the decision — take what I had, disappear and become somebody else, or come back," said Wesley Donald Crowder, 33. "I gave up the merchandise and came back for my family."

Using the name Tom Jordan, Crowder was hired Nov. 1 as the general manager of One Safe Place, a suburban Dallas safe deposit firm. Crowder told police he worked two days and then left with cash, jewels and coins valued at $1.5 million.

Police said owners were so impressed by Crowder's knowledge of the business and sincerity that they did not check his resume or references.

"I did my homework. That's all it took," Crowder said.

He was arraigned Saturday on two counts of theft over $20,000 and one count of burglary with intent to commit theft. Bail was set at $750,000.

His mother offered to try to raise the bail, but Crowder refused the help.

"I've already hurt those who love me enough," said Crowder, a Dallas native. "I'm here (in jail) because that's where I belong."

Crowder is a suspect in several other thefts from Dallas area businesses, including a theft of $10,000 in equipment from a camera store. He said he began getting into trouble about nine months ago, taking jobs under assumed names.

"For a while, I had a tough time realizing what was right and wrong," he said. "It just didn't register that 'this is crime.'"

He said the publicity surrounding the theft at One Safe Place surprised him.

"I never even heard about the other crimes," Crowder said. "But that one really made me feel guilty. Now I look back and wonder how I ever could have done it."

He said he went home late the night of the theft, a Friday, and spent the weekend with his wife and three children. His wife said on Monday she took him to the airport for what Crowder said was a business trip to Phoenix, Ariz.

However, Crowder stayed in the Dallas area. Tuesday, he called a One Safe Place official to apologize and tell him that the stolen goods could be found in a suburban Dallas office building, where about $500,000 in valuables were recovered.

Crowder then flew to Las Vegas where police say he some of the stolen goods. "Las Vegas was the worst place I could have gone," Crowder said. "People from Texas were everywhere — people who could have seen my picture in the paper. I kept expecting someone to come up and say 'Hi, don't I know you?'"

Crowder said he took a bus to Los Angeles, but missed his family. So he returned to Dallas Friday, called his wife and told Addison police and turned himself in.

"Pick a Phone, Any Phone?"

Just because a phone will plug into your wall jack, it doesn't mean that it will work.

Why?

Well, for instance, let's look at a phone that will be used on a party-line. Since customers share a common line to the telephone company switching office, each phone has its own special ringing-cycle setting which allows the phone to know when it should ring on the party-line.

Even if you have a 'Private Line', you still may have problems.

Single-line customers may also have special dialing or ringing requirements that are not apparent. So, they purchase a new phone and sadly discover that it won't work. This is especially true for customers who may be considering a cordless telephone or even a universal dialing telephone, a clock radio that offers telephone access capability or any other special telephone service.

Trading in your dial phone could be asking for trouble.

The joy of owning your very own 'Touch Tone' phone could turn into tragedy if your phone line is designated for a dial or pulse phone. A pushbutton 'pulse' phone will work on most lines, since it also duplicates the signal of a regular dial phone. However, a 'Touch Tone' phone emits a 'beeping' tone that requires special equipment to recognize the signal. Some dial phones, even if you have Touch Call Service, are not compatible under certain circumstances.

So, if you decide to buy a new telephone, take the time to stop by your neighborhood GTE Phone Mart and see if your particular line has any special limitations. It could possibly save you a lot of frustration and money.
