Power to women encouraged

United Press International LUBBOCK — More money probably would be devoted to women's health care research if more women held top governmental offices, Planned Parenthood's vice president for medical affairs said Thursday.

Dr. Louise Tyrer of New York told reporters at a news conference that women cannot have their full impact on society "until we put more women at the top levels of government who really have concerns about the human values."

She said polls indicate Americans are ready to accept a woman vice president.

Tyrer, an obstetrician and gynecologist who left active practice for administrative duties, said she is not interested in running for political office.

But she said young women should strive toward getting women elected to top political offices.

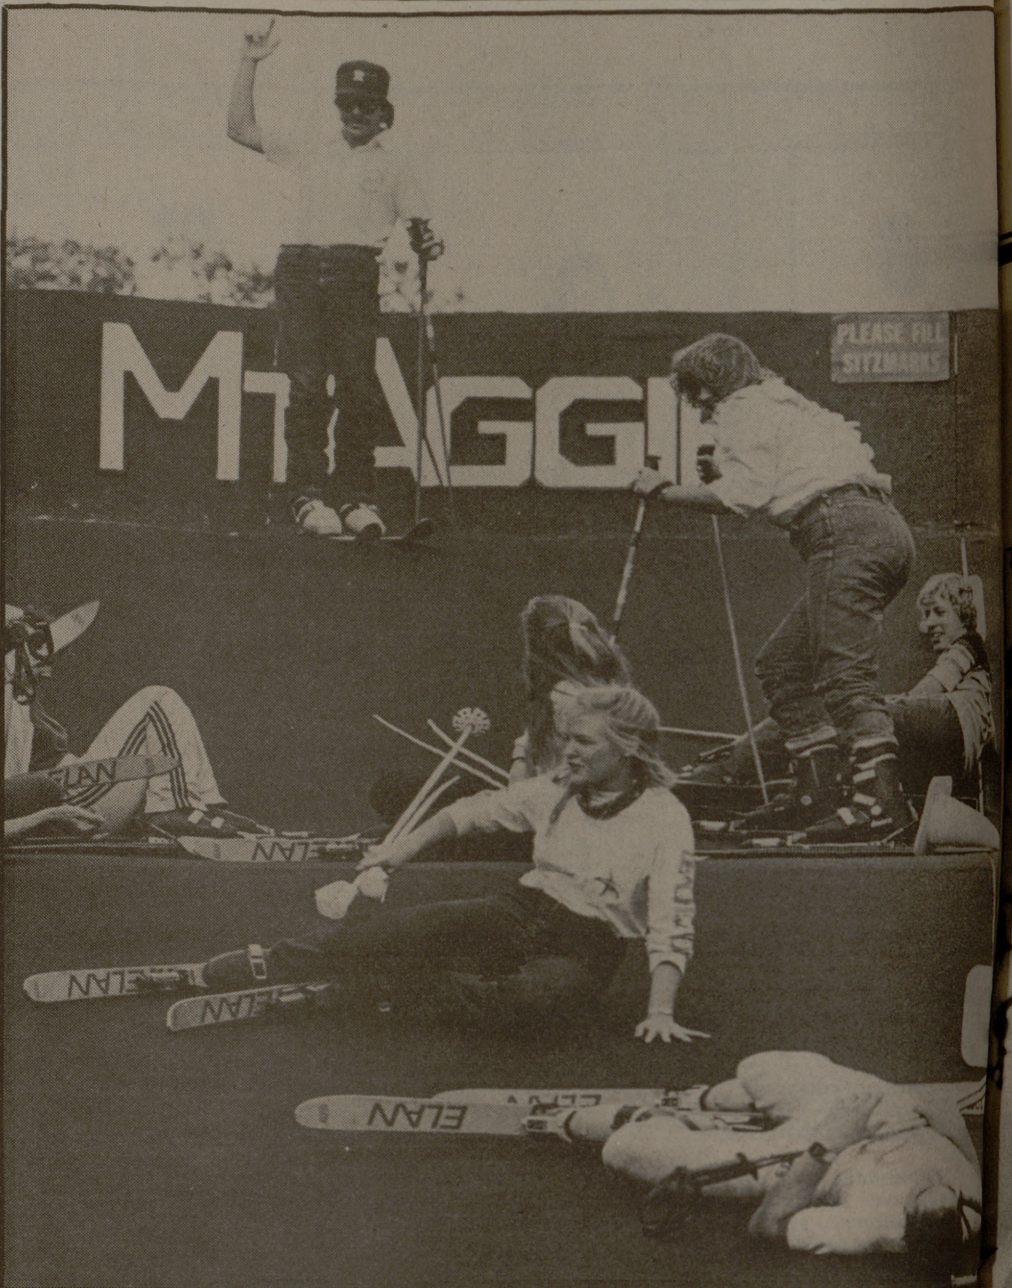

She said most research dollars now are directed toward cancer and heart projects.

"I think the reason for that is that most of the decision-makers are men," Tyrer said.

She said she would like to see more money put into health research so that women's health issues also can be more closely studied.

Tyrer, 62, has been an administrative doctor with Planned Parenthood since 1975.

She said she became interested in women's health care while growing up in China where her father ran a mission hospital. She said health care for women and children there has improved dramatically during the past 40 years.

And now....

Man held for want of a beer

United Press International MARSHALL — A 33-old man who wanted a beer early Thursday morning going to take "no" for an answer.

He went to a convenience store just off Interstate 40 a.m. and tried to buy some beer. The clerk told him she couldn't sell beer until midnight.

He walked to the back of the store, hauled 1 1/2 cases of beer from a cooler, pulled out one and told the clerk he wanted the beer. He didn't take anything else.

"He told her if she wouldn't sell her mouth he was going to get her," Detective R.D. Herndon said. Police later arrested the man on charges of disturbing the peace and possession of a weapon.
