Doctor charged: WWII murders

United Press International
HAMBURG, West Germany — A former Nazi doctor was charged Monday with murdering Jewish children and death camp inmates to eliminate witnesses to medical experiments he performed on the prisoners.

The prosecutor in the city of Hamburg charged that Dr. Arnold Strippel, 72, had the children and inmates hanged in a Hamburg school in the final days of World War II.

The prosecutor said Strippel murdered 22 inmates of the Neuengamme concentration camp because he had experimented on them and feared they would testify about his practices.

He killed the children because they had witnessed the experiments, the prosecutor said.

The mass killings took place April 20, 1945, the prosecutor's office said. The experiments were not detailed in the murder charge filed by the prosecutor.

It was not known when Strippel would go to trial.

Strippel was charged after a three-year investigation carried on in France, Poland, Israel and Czechoslovakia that included the examination of British military government court records of 1945, the prosecutor said.

Stern, a West German magazine, accused authorities of dragging out the investigation of the alleged war criminal.

A statement issued by the publication said the facts about Strippel were known 35 years ago but no action was taken until Stern published an article on him in 1979.

City to hold senior citizens' dance

College Station Parks and Recreation Department will hold a Senior Citizen Christmas Square Dance Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. The dance will be held at the Community Center at 1300 Jersey, and is open to all senior citizens in the Bryan-College Station area. For more information, call Margaret Curry, senior citizen supervisor at Lincoln Center, at 764-3733.

IRS looking for tax volunteers

The Internal Revenue Service is looking for volunteers to be trained to help prepare simple tax returns. During the fact-filing season, these volunteers will help low income people fill out their tax returns for free.

Last year Bryan-College Station volunteers assisted 748 people in preparation of their income tax returns. The error rate in spot checking of returns prepared was zero. Groups that participated last year include the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, Bryan Public Library, Lincoln Center, and Beta Alpha Psi of Texas A&M.

No tax or accounting experience is necessary. Individual volunteers and charitable or civic groups interested in volunteering for the program can contact Nancy Ross at 260-9293, or call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-492-1040.

Student government holds book sale

Student Government's annual Student Book Exchange will begin finals week. Students can bring their used textbooks to the Pavilion, and for a 10 cent charge for each book, put them on sale and set their own price. Books will be sold Jan. 11-13 and Jan. 16-20. Students can collect the money for their sold books Jan. 23-27.

Last chance for Aggieldand photos

Aggieldand yearbook is giving juniors, seniors, veteran and medical school students, and graduate students one more week to have individual pictures for the 1984 Aggieldand taken at the Pavilion on campus. Dec. 13-16 will be the last chance for students to have pictures made.

To submit an item for this column, come by The Battalion office in 216 Reed McDonald.

Pig is prize for game

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Aggie Rep. Charles Stenholm, Texas, began searching for a baby pig Monday to pay off a losing bet on the outcome of Dallas Cowboys-Washington Redskins' contest.

"Do you know how hard it is to find a baby pig in this state?" said Stenholm, who said the third-term congressman "The agriculture assistant have been given the task of finding a live one."

Once the pig is found, Stenholm is back in Washington he'll have to hand the matter over to Walter Fauntroy, the delegate who represents the District of Columbia in Congress.

If worse comes to worse, it can get any worse for Stenholm after Sunday's 31-10 loss to the Redskins in Dallas. Stenholm may bring a pig from his ranch in Stamford.

"He's trying to figure out how can get it aboard the plane as a kitty carrier," said Ms. Clark.
