

Top-ranked Navratilova loses

United Press International
 OAKLAND, Calif. — Hana Mandlikova fashioned her court speed and a seldom-used lob shot into a stunning 7-6 (8-6), 3-6, 6-4, upset of Martina Navratilova — the world's top-ranked woman — to take the crown Sunday in the finals of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament.

"Before the match, I knew I could beat her," said Mandlikova, the tourney's eighth-seeded player.
 "She had something to lose, not me. It's very difficult to play in this kind of pressure."
 The showdown between the two players received publicity as a heated battle between Czechoslovakia's current top-ranked women's player and Navratilova, that nation's best player until she defected to the United States over five years ago.

 Navratilova, who will be idle until next month's U.S. Indoor tournament in New Jersey, said she will be "ready to go the next time I play."
 "There's nothing that really hurts me more than losing," she said. "People ask me how I'm able to get motivated when I keep winning. Somehow, I manage. So if I lose, it makes it that much easier."

 Mandlikova was asked if she considered herself No. 1, based on two victories in 1984.
 "I'm not there yet," she said. "If I keep working on myself the way I am, I can get pretty close to it."
 The defeat marked the latest setback in Navratilova's quest to claim the consecutive major winning streak of 56 set by Chris Evert-Lloyd.

 Last year, Navratilova rolled to an incredible 86-1 record in singles play but a loss to Kathy Horvath in the French Open ended her hopes of surpassing Evert-Lloyd's mark in 1983.
 Heading into Sunday's final, Navratilova had won 54 straight matches.

Tennis game is strong McEnroe works on image

United Press International
 NEW YORK — It's not so much his tennis game that John McEnroe needs to work on, only his image.
 Lucky the man who stands at the very top of his profession, and McEnroe would feel so much happier if fans would accept him as a person as well as a player.
 As he has done in the past, McEnroe is promising to work hard on his image. Soon to turn 25, he feels he has matured and he also wants to leave a favorable impression on tennis historians.

 Still, he isn't about to let himself go too far.
 "It's important for me to show emotion," he explained. "I can't leave it inside me. I'm just trying to channel it in the correct direction."
 At least for one day, the good boy image paid sharp dividends. McEnroe displayed only an occasional flare of temper Sunday when he played in the final of the $400,000 Masters Chamampionship. There was no cussing at officials, no protests of outraged innocence and no conduct warnings.

 Even when some in the crowd of 18,253 at Madison Square Garden tried to entice him, McEnroe kept his manners.
 "I concentrated really well today and I didn't let things bother me," he said. "I got inspired by things that have bothered me in the past. In the long run if I ignore all the stuff I will be a better player."

What kind of stuff?
 "People yelling at me saying 'Brat' and 'Super Brat,'" he said. "I don't understand what people do that, but there has been other times when I let them bother me and didn't concentrate. It doesn't seem like people are going to stop. Now I try to use it to my advantage, to get more psyched up and pushed harder."
 "My major objective is to prove as a player, stay healthy and enjoy it more"

Former Cowboys star needs cash, willing to sell Super Bowl rings

DALLAS — Former NFL linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, facing felony charges in California of assaulting two teenage girls, is undergoing treatment for alcoholism again and offering to sell three Super Bowl rings to raise legal defense funds.

 Henderson, 30, was arrested Nov. 3 at his Long Beach, Calif., apartment and charged with five sex and drug counts after two girls — one 15 years old and the other a 17-year-old wheelchair-bound paraplegic — said he held them at gunpoint and forced them to perform sex acts.

 Henderson said in his defense he was solicited on the street and took the girls back to his apartment, where he pulled an unloaded gun when he discovered one of them pocketing some money.
 One count of furnishing cocaine to a minor was later dropped and Henderson was freed on $16,000 bond. No trial date has been set.

Henderson described himself in the first-person article as a "hottdog, hero, addict, alcoholic, disgrace, etcetera" but said he was innocent in the November incident.
 "I've done a lot of outrageous things in my life but I'm not guilty of the latest charges," he wrote.
 "My life has been a bit like a roller coaster ride to say the least. Dallas could have been anything I wanted it to be, but somewhere in the blackout of responsibility and morals all hell broke loose," he wrote. "My drug and alcohol diseases took control of my snowball roll."
