

Jury not told results of drug test so far

United Press International
GEORGETOWN — A Swedish pathologist who developed a test that found traces of a muscle relaxant in 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan's exhumed body will discuss his findings in court today, but the jury in nurse Genevieve Jones' murder trial may never hear him.

The controversial test is a key piece of evidence in the prosecution's case against Jones, who is accused of killing Chelsea by injecting her with the drug, succinylcholine, in 1982.

Defense attorneys have filed a motion to keep the test from being presented to the seven-woman, five-man jury.

"We say it's not a scientifically-appointed test," said court-appointed defense lawyer Jim Brookshire.

District Judge John Carter said he would listen today to the testimony of the test's creator — toxicologist Bo Holmstedt of Stockholm — before deciding whether Holmstedt can discuss his findings in the presence of the jury.

Carter's refusal to allow the test into evidence would be seen as a major victory for Jones, a 33-year-old vocational nurse who could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted in Chelsea's death.

If the jury is allowed to hear the evidence, it would cap two days of detailed medical testimony in which prosecutors attempted to show Chelsea's death could not have been the result of natural causes.

Although doctors, nurses and pathologists all have testified about seemingly mysterious circumstances surrounding the baby's death, no evidence has been heard directly linking the death to a drug injection.

Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton said he expected to wrap up the state's case against Jones by Feb. 1.

In addition to Dr. Holmstedt, other key witnesses scheduled to testify are Chelsea's parents, Petti and Reid McClellan, and Dr. Kathleen Holland, the pediatrician who hired Jones to work in her Kerrville clinic.

Warped

by Scott McCullar

Moroccan king reviews Islamic summit, riots

United Press International
CASABLANCA, Morocco — King Hassan II scheduled a nationally broadcast speech Sunday in which he was expected to make his first comment on riots last week that reportedly left more than 240 people dead, officials said.

Moroccan officials said the monarch's speech was aimed at reviewing last week's Islamic summit in Casablanca, but it probably would include a statement on the rioting that erupted Thursday in the northeast of the country.

Spanish newspaper reports said 240 people died in three days of clashes with police and troops in Alhucemas, Nador and Tetuan. The three reportedly remained occupied by troops and tanks.

The disturbances erupted over food price increases, rumors of a substantial hike in tuition fees for students, and a new border tax to reduce smuggling between Morocco and Spain's North African enclaves of Ceuta and Melilla.

The government imposed a virtual news blackout, ordering three reporters from France and Spain to leave the troubled area and issuing only a terse statement Saturday that security forces had the situation "well in hand."

No official death toll was available.

The Madrid newspaper El Pais, quoting Moroccan officials in Melilla, said about 100 people were killed in rioting in Alhucemas, a Mediterranean coastal city between Melilla and Ceuta.

El Pais quoted the officials as also confirming that at least 40 people were killed in Nador, 8 miles south of Melilla, by soldiers firing from helicopters.

Another Madrid newspaper, Diario 16, reported that 100 people died Thursday and Friday in Tetuan, about 18 miles south of Ceuta.

The rioting followed implementation of a government austerity plan last autumn providing for price increases of up to 67 percent on some basic foodstuffs.

News reports said widespread rumors that tuition fees would be increased 50-fold also brought students into the streets in large numbers.

Diario 16, said the government, however, had decided to rescind the exit tax equal to $62 recently imposed on Moroccans leaving the country.

The government's economic plan was aimed at funding Morocco's 9-year-old war with Polisario guerrillas to consolidate control of the former Spanish colony of Western Sahara, estimated to cost Rabat $1.25 million per day.

It also sought to meet the demands of international creditor nations for the rescheduling of Morocco's $11 billion foreign debt.

Food festival setting chosen

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — After more than two centuries of celebrated dining, the city of Antoine's and Arnaud's has been chosen to host the first National Festival of American Foods and Cookery.

The festival, held under the umbrella of a month-long event called La Fete, will feature cooking demonstrations and full courses conducted by chefs Paul Prudhomme of New Orleans, Larry Forgione of New York and Louis Szathmary of Chicago.

There will also be food and wine tastings, theme dinners, celebrity appearances and a show devoted to food products and utensils.

"New Orleans has been America's premier food city for more than 200 years," said La Fete's president, Moise Denny. "We feel that it is the ideal location for an annual celebration of cooking in America which will attract visitors from around the world."

La Fete, a non-profit organization, has produced regional food festivals in New Orleans the past four years. The City Council has allocated $25,000 from the municipal budget for production costs and individual activities will be sponsored by corporations.

Denny said her organization was created to improve New Orleans and serve as a lure for corporate headquarters and branch offices. American Express has signed on as the first major underwriter of this summer's event, she said.

The Culinarians, a national marketing association of food and wine authorities, are coordinating the talent and educational programs.

A gourmet dinner called "Prelude 84" will be held April 5 at the New Orleans Museum of Art to coincide with the opening of an exhibit titled "Food as an Art Form."

Other activities with La Fete include plantation tours, Mississippi River and bayou cruises, walking tours of historical sites and visits to the Audubon Zoo and the Louisiana Nature Center.

In other culinary news, the Louisiana Crawfish Farmers Association will host the first International Crawfish Tasting and Trade Show in Lafayette Feb. 4. Free to the public, the show will feature crawfish dishes prepared by some of the city's finest restaurants.

There will be crawfish linguine, Cajun rolls — even crawfish-stuffed beignets. Music will be provided by Dewey Balfa and other southwest Louisiana performers.

March on Austin to fight abortion

United Press International
AUSTIN — Urging prayer for the children they said died in "the war of abortion," about 4,000 anti-abortionists marched to the state Capitol Sunday in a grim commemoration of the 11th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The crowd bore banners and placards that read, "We're glad you were born," "Abortion: Hitler would be proud" and "Is being unwanted a capital offense?"

The group also sang hymns on the Capitol steps and listened to several speeches.

"We are here to pray for the children who died in this war, the war of abortion," said Angela Fletcher, spokesperson for the coalition of several groups.

"If you took all the American battle casualties from the Civil War through the Vietnam War, we killed that many American babies in nine months," she said. "We encourage the people of this nation to seek repentance."

John Whitehead, the keynote speaker, called for pregnancy hotlines, pregnancy crisis centers set up through churches, and legal picketing of abortion clinics.

He linked abortion to Nazi Germany, saying, "The parallel to Nazi Germany is obvious, anybody who doesn't see the parallel isn't alive today mentally."

"First it was abortion in Nazi Germany, then euthanasia and down the line. It's happening here, and we have to wake up."

The rally came two days after the Texas Abortion Rights Action League met to announce their political goals and decry the actions of the anti-abortionists.

"Succumbing to the pressure of anti-choice forces, who use smokescreens and mirrors to magnify their powers, the House of Representatives voted in September to totally eliminate Medicaid funding for abortions," Jan Friese, executive director of the league, said Friday.

"Less than half of the Texas delegation to Congress opposed this callous gesture," she said.

AVON
 Representative
Kari Mayse
Hobby 225
260-0053

JEWELRY FOR LESS
 Will Meet or Beat Any Locally Advertised Price!
ALL TYPES OF TWISTERS

Add-A-BEADS
 4 mm - .50      7 mm - $1.75
 5 mm - .80      8 mm - $2.50
 6 mm - $1.40

ALL TYPES OF JEWELRY AVAILABLE
 Call 260-3391 for appointment
ASK FOR BRYAN

New Year, New Look
 At
THE SHAPE OF THINGS

GUYS $12
GIRLS short $16
long $18
Perm Special $20.00
Cut Additional $7.50
 also: hennas, colors, high lift tints & frost

THE SHAPE OF THINGS
 Between Rebels & Luby's
 In Park Central Shopping Center
Nexus Products

846-7614
 exp. 2-29-84

★ Endowed Lecture Series
announces interviews for general committee membership.

Applications now available at the Secretary's Island (Room 216 MSC-SPD). Committee interviews to be held January 30 and 31

★ MSC

MSC CAMERA COMMITTEE

First meeting of the semester-Tonight
Rm. 301 Rudder 7:00 P.M.

Darkroom memberships
 Plans for the semester
 Leadership opportunities
 Newcomers welcome

Join Us for an "AFFAIR OF THE HEART"
1984 Spring/Summer Bridal Extravaganza

Bride 'n Formal and Al's Formal Wear, along with the Aggeland Hotel, have planned an exciting afternoon full of events for the bride, the groom, and the wedding party.

DATE: Sunday, January 29th, 1984
TIME: Booths open at 2:00 p.m. Style Show at 3:00 p.m.
PLACE: Aggeland Hotel Grand Ballroom 1502 South Texas in College Station, Texas
R.S.V.P.: Reservations Requested Please call (409) 693-6900 or (713) 659-7000

Bride 'n Formal and Al's Formal Wear Present THE STORYBOOK WEDDING
 Bridal Gowns, Attendants' Dresses, Mother-of-the-Bride Gowns, Special Occasion Gowns and Tuxedos will be modeled straight from the pages of the national bridal magazines.

EXHIBITS
 Many area firms associated with the wedding market will demonstrate their product or service for your pleasure. Talk to the vendors—Florists, Photographers, Cosmeticians, Heirlooms, Bakeries, Gift Registry, and more.

DOOR PRIZES:
 Thousands of dollars worth of door prizes will be given away during the afternoon, including a very special Honeymoon Trip as the Grand Prize.

AI's FORMAL WEAR OF HOUSTON, INC.      THE AGGELAND HOTEL      BRIDE 'n FORMAL