NFC wins Pro Bowl

United Press International HONOLULU — Washington's Joe Theismann passed for a record three touchdowns Sunday to lead the NFC to a lopsided 45-3 victory over the AFC in the Pro Bowl.

Theismann atoned for a less-than-spectacular performance a week ago in the Super Bowl with scoring passes of 16 yards to William Andrews of Atlanta, 8 to Green Bay's James Lofton, and 23 yards to another Packer, Paul Coffman.

The NFC, in rolling up a record number of points and the largest margin of victory, got its other points on a 5-yard pass from Joe Montana of San Francisco to Andrews, a 44-yard pass interception return by Nolan Cromwell of the Los Angeles Rams, a 14-yard run by Eric Dickerson of the Rams and a 23-yard field goal by Ali Haji-Sheikh of the New York Giants.

The AFC averted a shutout when Pittsburgh's Gary Anderson kicked a 44-yard field goal on the final play of the first half. It came after Chip Banks of Cleveland deflected and intercepted a Montana pass with only seven seconds left.

Theismann completed 21-of-27 passes for 242 yards, a game record.

The NFC took a 17-3 lead at the half and turned the game into a rout over the final two periods by putting 14 points on the board in the third and fourth quarters.

The NFC took advantage of a poor punt and a bobble by New England's Rich Camarillo to score its first two touchdowns. After Theismann guided the NFC to Haji-Sheikh's field goal, Camarillo got off a 23-yard punt that put the ball on the NFC 44. A 16-yard pass to Redskin teammate Charlie Brown preceded the 16-yard pass to Andrews.

Later in the second quarter, Camarillo failed to handle a snap from center and was dropped by Tampa Bay's Hugh Green at the AFC 25. Five plays later, Montana hooked up with Andrews for the score.

Three plays after the second half kickoff, Cromwell puffed off an errant pass by San Diego's Dan Fouts and raced 44 yards down the sideline to begin the blitz. On the next series, the NFC drove 65 yards with Theismann capping the march with an 8-yard pass to Lofton.

Early in the fourth quarter, Theismann again moved the NFC 65 yards with the score coming on a 6-yard pass from Coffman.

The NFC got the ball back on the ensuing kickoff when Greg Pruitt of Oakland fumbled at the NFC 39 after a spectacular 65-yard return. Dickerson finished the scoring 10 plays later when he reversed his field and raced in from 14 yards.

The 45 points scored by the NFC was the most by a team in the history of the game.

Gretzky's streak stops

United Press International EDMONTON — Though the Los Angeles Kings have proven adept at little else for the past two seasons, they seem to have mastered one art — stopping Wayne Gretzky's record-breaking, point-scoring streaks.

The Kings, paced by the two-goal performance of Bernie Nicholls, posted a 4-2 victory over the Edmonton Oilers Saturday night while halting Gretzky's point-scoring streak at 51 games.

The 23-year-old superstar center, who had his previous record of 30 games with at least one point snapped by L.A. last year, has been plagued by a shoulder problem recently but offered no alibi.

"I pondered the last couple of nights about not playing," said Gretzky, who compiled 61 goals and 92 assists during the streak. "But if I was going to be stopped, I wanted to be stopped playing, not sitting in the stands."

"But the shoulder's no excuse. They did a great job, they deserved to win the hockey game and deserved to stop the streak."

Gretzky's finest opportunity to extend the streak came in the first period. He set up defenseman Charlie Huddy, who missed the wide-open net on a two-one break. Gretzky also had two clear shots on net in the first period, but was foiled by goaltender Markus Mattsson, who turned back 27 Oiler shots.

"He never really had good chances," said Mattsson. "He had his best chance in the first period when they missed the open net. A lot of credit has to go to our defenseman and our forwards who forechecked and backchecked well."

L.A. defenseman Jay Wells said the Kings had no special method of defending Gretzky, other than to play him tough.

"I just think everytime he went for the puck, we hit him and we pushed him," he said. "We have to play that way against him — he's a great skater."

In his post-game comments, Gretzky expressed a mixture of disappointment and relief.

"I'm disappointed it's over, but it's a relief," he said. "I'm going down to Atlantic City to relax for a couple of days. I never thought or dreamed I'd go 51 games. Last year, it was 30, but I didn't think 51 was possible."

The victory snapped a nine-game winless streak for the Kings and was the first triumph for interim Coach Rogie Vachon, who took over the club Friday after Don Perry was fired.

"I was pulling for him (Gretzky)," said Vachon. "What I wanted and what I cared for was for us to win. But I was cheering for him."

Gretzky's scoring streak had been the focus of much attention in recent weeks, and one oddsmaker in Las Vegas had put the odds against the 23-year-old all-star scoring in all 80 regular-season games at 500-to-1.

"I guess nobody will collect the 500 to 1 bet," he said.

Before Gretzky went on his record-setting tear, the longest point scoring streak had been the 30-game stretch he compiled last year. Guy Lafleur held the mark until that point by scoring in 28 straight games in 1976-77.

Nicholls sandwiched his goals around a tally by teammate Anders Hakansson in the second period as the Kings built a 3-0 edge.

Oiler defenseman Don Jackson spoiled Mattsson's shut-out bid at 3:21 of the third period. Ken Houston scored an unassisted third-period goal for the Kings at 15:14, while Edmonton's Tom Gorence replied with his first goal of the year at 16:38.

Texas A&M's Joey Perry returns the ball in his match against Sam Houston State's Wade Bertels Friday. Perry won the match 6-2, 6-4. Overall, the Aggie men's and women's teams each took 9-0 victories over SHSU and the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Ross in NFL-USFL war

United Press International CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals tight end Dan Ross, scheduled to jump to the United States Football League next week, could wind up back in the NFL next season, according to Ross' agent.

Thomas Toner, Ross' agent, said he has located an NFL team willing to match the $1.5 million, three-year contract between Ross and the USFL New Orleans Breakers. He declined to publicly disclose the NFL team.

The Breakers reportedly are willing to break the contract because Ross is no longer the valuable drawing card he once was to them. When Ross signed, the Breakers were located in his hometown of Boston. Since then, the Breakers have moved to New Orleans.

Even though Toner says an NFL team is willing to match the $1.5 million contract, there is a problem because the Bengals retain NFL rights to Ross. And, Bengals' assistant general manager Mike Brown doesn't appear anxious to trade those rights to another team.

Brown said he would rather watch Ross jump to the USFL before trading his NFL rights for a "token" player. He said the Bengals would agree only to a trade for a player "equal in value" to Ross.

Brown also said he was unaware of another NFL team willing to make a deal for Ross.

"Nobody has talked to me," said Brown. However, Toner insisted an NFL team has been found.

"The NFL club called and confirmed our proposal," he said. "They are willing to make the deal right away."

Counselor says NFL treating drug-use symptoms, not cause

United Press International BALTIMORE — Only when top NFL officials understand the pressures on the modern athlete — and develop programs to help players cope — will cocaine and alcohol abuse subside, former all-pro Delvin Williams said.

But for now, Williams said, the NFL's programs are ineffective because they treat the symptoms of substance abuse, but not the cause.

Williams, executive director of a firm working with the United States Football League to provide drug counseling, said treating players at rehabilitation centers is not working.

"Many of these players are from the streets, from the ghettos. They're survivors," he said. "You put them in a hospital and they say, 'That's not me. You're the one who's crazy.'"

Williams said high schools and colleges must be accountable for an athlete's career planning, so that "one-dimensional" players are not cast off into society when their playing careers are over.

"They've become highly trained specialists with no place to transfer their skills," Williams said, who said he used cocaine while an all-pro running back with the San Francisco 49ers and Miami Dolphins from 1976-80.

He said the pressures of being a role model and hero can easily overwhelm an athlete, especially one from the ghetto.

"Everybody wants to talk to you, know you, drink with you," he said. "They are very vulnerable to abusive behavior patterns."

The skyrocketing salary structure in professional sports — and the naivete of many young stars about taxes, and insincere agents — compounds the pressures on players, he said.

"A lot of the athletes playing professional football are just kids," he said.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S SYMPOSIUM TO SERVE COMMUNITY

Recent reports have indicated that last year 73% of the new positions in managerial, supervisory and professional responsibilities throughout the American economy were filled by women. This significant development points to a growing need for programs that continue to prepare women for a widening variety of career choices.

Women of the Bryan/College Station community, the Brazos Valley, and the University community are being given a unique opportunity to discuss career concerns at a special "Women's Career Symposium" in the College of Business Administration on Friday February 3.

Seven successful businesswomen, the Executive Women of Dallas, will present a series of addresses, panel discussions, and films from 9am till 4pm in the Blocker Building, room 102. The sessions are open to the public as well as to students, faculty, and staff of the College of Business and the University.
