Actor arrested in London airport

LONDON — Actor Anthony Perkins, best known for playing a schizophrenic killer in Alfred Hitchcock's movie "Psycho," was arrested Sunday at Heathrow Airport for possession of marijuana and LSD, Scotland Yard said.

Perkins, 51, was charged with possessing eight grams of marijuana and three "spots" of the hallucinatory drug LSD, a police spokesman said.

He was released on bail after being ordered to appear in court Thursday.

Perkins made his first film in 1953 and his first European film in 1961. Among his films were "Friendly Persuasion," "Fear Strikes Out," "Catch 22," "Play It As It Lays" and "The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean."

The American actor, best known for his quirky portrayal of the killer in the 1959 Hitchcock thriller, was arrested as he arrived in Britain from Los Angeles to work on a new film.

The arrest was the second recent drug bust of an entertainer at the airport. Two weeks ago, Linda McCartney, wife of ex-Beatle Paul McCartney, was arrested at Heathrow after flying in from the Caribbean with a small quantity of marijuana. She was fined $105 and released.

3.3 million people vote

Ecuadorian run off set

QUITO, Ecuador — The two favored candidates in Ecuador's presidential election ran strong enough in early returns Sunday to put them into a head-to-head runoff to succeed President Osvaldo Hurtado.

A record 3.3 million Ecuadorians cast ballots in the presidential elections, the second since military rule ended in 1978 followed by elections in 1979.

With 20 percent of the ballot tallied, conservative Leon Febres Cordero, the candidate of the National Reconstruction Front coalition, had 151,242 votes of the total 840,000 counted.

"I expect to win. And then I expect to win comfortably during the second round," Febres, a mechanical engineer, said from his home in Guayaquil on the Ecuadorian coast.

His closest rival, attorney Rodrigo Borja, 49, the candidate of the Leftist Democratic Party, followed with 132,072 votes.

The two are expected to run against each other in the May 6 runoff because, as expected in the field of nine candidates, none received 50 percent of the vote.

The closest to the two front runners was the Concentration of Popular Forces candidate, Angel Duarte, 49, with 67,419 votes.

No other candidate had more than 6 percent of the vote. Voters, who cast ballots manually, also selected nine congressmen and local officials.

The election was seen as a personality contest because of the large field of candidates, none of whom clearly defined how he would deal with issues such as the ailing economy.

The elections were generally peaceful, with incidents reported at only two of the country's 1,600 polling stations.

The election was seen as a personality contest because of the large field of candidates, none of whom clearly defined how he would deal with issues such as the ailing economy.

The South American nation of 9 million has 3.9 million eligible voters. The elections were generally peaceful, with incidents reported at only two of the country's 1,600 polling stations.

In Quevedo, in northwestern Ecuador, one voter was seriously injured when a group destroyed several voting tables to protest a lack of sufficient ballots, officials said.

In the coastal city of Esmeraldas, voting had to be temporarily suspended because election officials were unable to distribute all the necessary ballots for the less prominent races, officials said.

Hurtado, who cast his vote in Quito early Sunday, will step down from the presidency Aug. 10.

He became vice president in 1979 when his running mate, Jaime Roldos, won the first presidential election after 10 years of military rule ended in 1978.

Hurtado assumed the top post when Roldos, 38, was killed in a plane crash in the mountains of southwest Ecuador on May 24, 1981.

E-Systems continues the tradition of the world's great problem solvers.

Steinmetz was one of the few geniuses concerned with the practical aspects of electrical engineering. His pragmatic analytical approach led to the development of efficient electrical power grids as we know them today.

Scientists and engineers at E-Systems are carrying on in his tradition. Through the combination of sophisticated analytical and simulation techniques, they are evolving optimal system solutions to some of the world's toughest problems in electronics.

E-Systems is recognized as one of the world's leading problem-solving companies in the design and production of communications, data, antenna, intelligence and reconnaissance systems that are often the first-of-a-kind in the world.
