the medal playoffs in these Games.
 A light failure at Zetra Arena greeted the first goal by Czechoslovakia, and for all practical purposes, the power was zapped out of the United States as it dropped a demoralizing 4-1 decision.
 They won by dominating in special teams situations, scoring two goals on power plays and one while shorthanded.
 In the few instances when the United States was able to penetrate the gritty checking of its opponent, goaltender Jaromir Schindler made the necessary stops to send the American fans streaming from the Zetra Arena without seeing their dream of another U.S. miracle.

U.S. skaters to duel for gold

United Press International
 SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — Peggy Fleming sat quietly in the stands at the Skenderija Arena, watching intently as current world champion Rosalynn Summers and former champion Elaine Zayak labored through a practice session.

The two Americans, who will duel for a gold medal in figure skating over the next nine days, seemed oblivious of each other as they carefully rehearsed the jumps they hope will carry them to a gold medal. Fleming knows exactly what they're going through.

She won three world championships and became the darling of the United States in 1968 when she captured the gold medal in the Olympics at Grenoble, France. She is still probably the most recognizable figure skater in the United States.

"There is just constant pressure on them," said Fleming, who will serve as a color commentator for ABC's figure skating coverage. "You want very much to do a good job. The Olympics are the Olympics — there's nothing like them. You really feel like an athlete at these games."

"It's a time when you have to work hard to keep your head together. Everyone is watching you and there's constant media attention. It's critical to maintain your concentration. There are so many things that can distract you and it's just so vital that you maintain your concentration."

"I remember what I went through in 1968. The pressure can affect your personality. I became very withdrawn. I became very reserved and I wasn't as open with people. Of course, I was only 19 and that had a lot to do with it but I tended to keep my feelings to myself. I felt if you told people how scared you were, you'd only become more scared. You have to remember these are 17 and 18-year-old girls and the eyes of the whole country and the whole world will be on them. That's an awful lot of pressure."

Scott Hamilton, the reigning world champion, is the favorite to capture the gold medal in men's singles. The women's competition is expected to be a duel between Summers, who won the world title last year; Zayak, the 1982 champion; European champion Katarina Witt of East Germany; and a promising 16-year-old newcomer, Californian Tiffany Chin.

The competition marks the first time two world champions have duelled for an Olympic gold medal in women's figure skating since Tenley Albright and Carol Heiss met in the 1956 Olympics.

U.S. coach Lou Valeri said, "We're very disappointed we got beat by a team that was physically stronger than us, and we didn't get the bounces we had the scoring chances."

With two losses in two games, the Americans now are four points behind Canada and Czechoslovakia in Group B, and only an incredible sequence would prevent those two teams from advancing into the medal round. Two teams from each group qualify.

Weather delay downhill skiing

United Press International
 SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — The glamour event of the Winter Olympics, the men's downhill, fell victim to atrocious weather conditions Thursday, causing a postponement of 24 hours.

Bad visibility and winds gusting up to 80 miles per hour forced the postponement of the opening event of the Alpine ski program. It was rescheduled for 6 a.m. EST Friday.

The race was called off almost two hours before it was due to be run. Even the chair lift to take the 61 racers up Bjelasnica mountain to the start house was stopped because of the dismal weather conditions.

The upper sections of the course were completely covered by fog, and the wind at the top of the track was measured at 81 miles per hour.

"Visibility was poor, it became even worse because of snowfall, thus the postponement was the only rational thing to do," a statement from the organizers said.

In fact, by the scheduled start time, conditions had deteriorated still further, with most of the mountain hidden by fog and cloud and with snow falling heavily on the course.

U.S. bobsledders compete today

United Press International
 SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia — The Olympic 2-man bobsled event commences Friday on the Trebevic course, with East Germany and the Soviet Union heavily favored to take all the medals.

So strong is the East German entry in this Winter Games that former world champion and 1980 silver medalist Bernhard Gemehausen did not qualify for the competition.

Instead, Bernhard Lehmann and Bogdan Musiol will man the first East German sled and Wolfgang Hoppe and Dietmar Schauerhammer will ride in the second sled.

The Soviet Union, which came into the medal picture the 2-man and 4-man competition in the past year due to a innovative design of sleds, will provide the East Germans their foremost challenge.

Zintis Ekmanis and Val Aleksandrov will ride in the Soviet Union's first sled while Kipurs and Aivar Chum will represent the Soviet Union's second chance medal.

The United States first will consist of driver Ted Rushlaw with James Trabakman, and the No. 2 has driver Fred Fritschman with kerman John Wayne DeLoe.
