

What's up

MONDAY

APOLLO CLUB: Registration will continue through Friday on the second floor of the Pavilion. The registration fee is $18.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL: A meeting will be held at 8:30 p.m. in 607 Rudder Tower. For more information, contact John Cook at 846-4219.

AUDIO ENGINEERING GROUP: Mike Smith, from Mastek, will be demonstrating and discussing audio special effects devices at 7:30 p.m. in 104 Zachry. For more information, call Erich Fried at 779-1929.

BETA ALPHA PSI: A professional meeting, with representatives from Arthur Young, will be held at 7 p.m. at the Ramada Inn (Penthouse). Business attire is requested.

COSGA: The Fourth Annual National Conference will continue through Tuesday. For more information, contact Vicki Younger at 260-0188.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH: A speech communication colloquium presentation will be given by Mr. Roger C. Pace, from the Pennsylvania State University, at 1 p.m. in 203 Blocker. The topic is 'Toward a Rhetoric of Consensus: An Examination of the Formal Characteristics of Conflict in Group Discussion.' For more information, contact Dr. Bill Owen at 845-3451.

IM-REC SPORTS DEPT.: Entries for volleyball triples, badminton doubles, pickleball doubles, innertube water polo, and the Penberthy softball tournament will open at 8 a.m. in 159 E. Kyle. The wrestling weigh-in will be held from 4:30-6 p.m. in 173 E. Kyle (men's locker room). Entries will be taken during this time. A slam dunk contest will be held at 7 p.m. on the main floor of G. Rollie White. Entries will be taken at the event. For more information, call 845-7826.

LIBERAL ARTS STUDENT COUNCIL: Nominations for the Faculty College-level teaching awards are due today. Contact Dean Lutes at 845-5143 for more information.

NAUTICAL ARCHAEOLOGY STUDENT LECTURE SERIES: Dr. William Fife will be speaking on safety procedures in deep sea diving at 7 p.m. in 311 Bolton. Contact Shirley Getelipe at 845-6398 or 846-7476.

R.G.V. HOMETOWN CLUB: A meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in 302 Rudder Tower.

SPIRIT AWARD APPLICATIONS: Applications are available in five locations: the Former Students lobby, 110 YMCA, the Student Activities Office, the Student Government Office, and 216 of the MSC. Deadline for the applications is Wednesday.

TAMU HISTORICAL SOCIETY: A meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in 204C of Sterling Evans Library. Dr. Kostolnyik will be speaking. Contact Anne at 693-0800 or the History Department for more information.

TAMU TENNIS CLUB: Sign-ups for the mixed-doubles tournament (March 3) are being taken in the MSC Hall through Friday. Memberships are still available and new Schwaert tennis racquets are for sale. For more information, contact Mike Streety at 693-2987.

TRANSFER STUDENT ORGANIZATION: A general meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in 607 Rudder Tower. New members are welcome! For more information, call Theresa Mewis at 764-0537.

UNIVERSITY LUTHERAN CHAPEL: A Bible class on the Book of Hebrews will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. in the Chapel. Contact Pastor Hubert Beck for more information.

Rec Committee to sponsor conference

Learn about American wilderness

By KATHLEEN WEST
Reporter

Hiking through America's wilderness, climbing towering mountains, fighting whitewater rapids, exploring dark caves. For some people such activities are just a dream — to others they're a reality.

At a conference sponsored by the MSC Outdoor Recreation Committee, outdoor enthusiasts will bring their realities to those who only have dreamed about such adventure, those who also have experienced it and those who are just curious about it.

The Outdoors Horizons Conference will be held today through Saturday and is open to the public. Mike Ritter, chairperson of the conference, said some activities are geared for specific types of people, but others should appeal to just about anyone.

"There are things anybody can enjoy," he said. One such activity, he said, is Robert W. Craig's presentation on his Mount Everest expedition. Craig, a veteran mountaineer, led a group of Americans to the top of Everest in 1983.

"This guy is someone anyone would be interested in," Ritter said.

Another activity geared toward a large audience is "I Saw the Wind," a presentation by Mark Thompson and Bob Jamieson. It combines Thompson's live music with Jamieson's stories and photographs taken from their adventures in wilderness areas throughout North America.

Ritter said Jamieson and Thompson performed in last year's conference and over 300 people attended.

Activities that are designed for more specific interests include a program dealing with problems faced by handicapped people in outdoor recreation, a wilderness first-aid program and a discussion on cave exploration.

The conference also includes two workshops: a river safety and rescue workshop and a rockclimbing workshop.

A barbecue held near the end of the conference will give people the chance to talk to the speakers and ask them questions, Ritter said.

"It's just a get-together more than anything else," he said.

For $10 one can attend all programs, except the barbecue, and one of the workshops. The programs can also be attended singly by paying fees ranging from 50 cents to $3, depending on the program. The barbecue costs $5. The money is used to help fund the conference.

"It's a break-even type of thing," Ritter said.

The conference will not include as many programs as the last two conferences, he said, but this year's programs will be better.

Residents armed in fear of convicts

United Press International

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Fearful residents kept their guns at their sides and grim troopers slogged through rain and snow in the hunt for two desperate convicts who killed a Sunday school teacher and fled into the mountains of East Tennessee.

The FBI entered the search for Ronald Freeman, 41, and James Clegg, 30, concentrated in the mountains around Bristol, where Clegg once lived.

State troopers set up roadblocks and checked out dozens of possible sightings of the fugitives, armed with a shotgun and at least four pistols.

"There is a good possibility the convicts might be in the area," Highway Patrol Lt. Jennings Stroud said.

"We've had one report that they were spotted in a wood shed and another that they were in a barn or a chicken house. We have nothing concrete at this time but some of these leads seem legitimate."

"If anybody rings my doorbell my gun will be in my hand," said Keith Venable, a retired Bristol police dispatcher. "I just hope my neighbor doesn't come knocking on my door. This is the most hairy situation we've had in this area as far back as I can remember. These guys have nothing to lose."

"It's dangerous to be out here," Highway Patrol trooper Jack Combs said at a roadblock. "I saw one man earlier carrying an armload of wood in one hand and a shotgun in the other."

Heavy snow and rain kept helicopters on the ground and limited visibility from patrol cars. A U.S. magistrate in Memphis issued warrants charging the men with unlawful flight, allowing the FBI to join in the hunt.

Freeman, serving 198 years for killing his wife and stepdaughter, and Clegg, serving life as a habitual criminal, were among five prisoners who picked up pistols left for them in a work field and escaped from Fort Pillow Saturday.

One of the fugitives was arrested Sunday hitchhiking down a highway near Memphis; another surrendered after a elderly woman fed him and talked to him of Jesus, and a third was believed to have fled the state in a stolen car.

But Freeman and Clegg, each armed with a pistol, climbed out of a hole where they had hidden for two days on Paul Windrow's farm near Brownsville, Tenn., Tuesday and killed the 59-year-old retired businessman and Sunday school teacher while he was grilling steaks in his backyard.

Fears that the convicts might be nearby led Windrow to tuck a .45 caliber pistol in his belt when he went outside. The convicts shot him when he pulled out the gun as they approached, officials said.

They abducted his wife Elizabeth, 57, and drove 400 miles across the state, leaving her unharmed near Knoxville. They told Mrs. Windrow they would never be captured alive and got into a car officials believed was driven by a woman accomplice.

A nationwide alert was issued and Deputy Safety Commissioner Billy Jones said law enforcement agents were authorized to shoot to kill.

"I really hope we get them before they kill somebody else," Trooper Byron Farmer said.

Final
Close-Out
Fall
and Winter

Shoes 19.99-49.99
Apparel 30% to 70% off
Accessories up to 40% off

Shala's
Culpepper Plaza

Bomb threat cancels Fonda's appearances

United Press International

MIAMI — Publicity appearances by actress Jane Fonda at two Miami department stores were canceled Sunday because of a bomb threat and pressure from the conservative Cuban exile community, department store officials said.

Fonda had been scheduled to appear at two Burdines department stores Wednesday to promote a new line of sportswear.

"Burdines was concerned about the safety of our associates and our customers, and it has turned into a battle of political viewpoints," said Ted Shola, operations manager for Burdines' store at Dadeland Mall, which was evacuated Saturday because of the bomb threat.

"We've had numerous phone calls and we have to be concerned about safety," Shola said. He said no more bomb threats were received. Police said no bomb was found at the Dadeland store after the threat by an anonymous caller.

Dozens of Cuban-Americans had phoned the department store saying they agree with anti-Fonda commentaries broadcast since Thursday by Salvador Lew, general manager of Spanish-language radio station WRHC.

Lew said Fonda, who built a huge physical fitness business with her exercise books and videotapes, is "a leftist communist," a "poor patriot." She said Fonda "betrayed her country" by visiting North Vietnam during the Vietnam war.

Callers to the department store asked that the appearances be canceled and threatened to return their charge cards.

DIRECT YOUR ATTENTION TO

the
BIG EVENT

MARCH 31, 1984

CALL STUDENT GOV'T AT 845-3051

ANNOUNCING

BOOK SALE

1/2 PRICE

LARGE ASSORTMENT AT SALE TABLE WHILE SUPPLY LASTS

TEXAS A&M bookstore

IN THE MEMORIAL STUDENT CENTER