Senate to vote on prayer

United Press International
WASHINGTON — President Reagan Saturday launched the opening salvo in an attempt to amend the Constitution to allow voluntary prayer in school, calling the prohibition on school devotion "intolerance against a genuine religious freedom."

He urged Congress to give the required two-thirds approval to the amendment coming up in the Senate next week.

Reagan devoted his weekly radio speech, a paid political program broadcast on the Mutual network, to an attack on the 1962 Supreme Court decision outlawing state-sponsored prayer and subsequent federal court rulings against prayer meetings by students in public schools.

The president has made restoring prayer in school a major campaign theme for his re-election and said in his nationally broadcast news conference on Wednesday it is one of his top three priorities before Congress right now.

Hart narrows gap with Mondale

United Press International
CONCORD, N.H. — Sen. Gary Hart, buoyed by a poll showing him finishing second in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary, said Sunday the race for the Democratic nomination boils down to a contest between him and Walter Mondale.

Hart's new optimism came from a Washington Post-ABC poll that showed front-runner Mondale still well ahead, with 38 percent of the New Hampshire vote to 24 percent for Hart. But it showed Sen. John Glenn of Ohio had slipped into third place with 14 percent of the vote.

The Mondale camp seemed unconcerned about Hart's new strength. The former vice president left New Hampshire briefly to campaign in Maine and Vermont, the next two stops on the political calendar after New Hampshire.

In Portland, Maine, Mondale refused to make any prediction on Tuesday's outcome but said he is "doing quite well" in New Hampshire.

The Post-ABC poll showed civil rights activist Jesse Jackson had 7 percent; former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, 6 percent; Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, 4 percent; Sen. Alan Cranston of California, 1 percent, and former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, less than 1 percent.

At stake officially are 22 delegates to the Democratic national convention in San Francisco in July. But for many Democrats the stakes are even higher — who will become Mondale's chief challenger for the Democratic nomination and which ones will be able to continue the campaign through March 13, when nine states hold primaries and caucuses.

President Reagan has no serious opposition for the 22 delegates in the Republican primary.

Hart said he is surprised to be so far in front of Glenn, his chief rival for second place, so early.

"This race has solidified faster than our somewhat conservative, cautious approach," Hart told reporters on a campaign swing through southern New Hampshire.

Hart said the time is fast approaching when the race will come down to a contest between him and Mondale.

"We're going to begin to deal with multiple states," Hart said. "The contest will become much more like a national campaign."

In a last-ditch effort to sway undecided New Hampshire voters, some 350 Hart volunteers canvassed the state during the last weekend before the primary, said Hart's deputy state coordinator, Susan Casey.

Hart's surprise second-place showing in the Iowa precinct caucuses last week brought in a flood of contributions that will help pay for the $125,000 New Hampshire TV campaign blitz in the final week, she said.

Despite the new poll, Glenn campaigned vigorously

and refused to be counted out.

"We expect to do even better than we did in Iowa," Glenn said.

"Meet the Press" television program. "We have a lot of support in New Hampshire, and we expect to do very well."

Glenn, who finished behind Mondale in his knowledge he is slipping in polls in three Southern states, in that hold primaries on Tuesday, but he said because his efforts are focused on New Hampshire now.

Tuesday could be the hurrah for several Democratic contenders, although he vowed to go on regardless how far back in the finish.

Cranston, Hollings, Askew are considered vulnerable, with Jackson McGovern seen likely to through at least the end of March 13.

Asked on CBS' "60 Minutes" if he will field the "New Nation" in New Hampshire, he fares poorly in New Hampshire, Cranston said. He readily deployed his Maine and I intend to stay in Maine to show what I can do that state."

ACLU says Reagan is subverting civil rights

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has undermined Congress and the courts by refusing to enforce civil rights laws as they were intended to be enforced, the American Civil Liberties Union said Sunday.

The ACLU issued a 28-page report outlining a "radical and shameful assault" on civil rights enforcement that "could plunge the country back into historic patterns of race and sex discrimination."

"The assault is being led by President Reagan, directed by his White House advisers and carried out by the attorney general and top officials in the Department of Justice," it said. "Its effect is a drastic curtailment of civil rights protection for millions of Americans and the undermining of our Constitution and the rule of law."

The report, entitled "In Contempt of Congress and the Courts," listed a series of incidents in which it said the administration ignored or failed to enforce the Voting Rights Act, the Fair Housing Act and non-discrimination provisions of federal tax laws.

It also said the administration refused to protect the rights of the mentally handicapped and "contravened congressional intent" of laws banning sex discrimination in federal education programs.

The Justice Department has denied the allegations.

"Although the organization hasn't shown us the report, from the title it is clear that it was written purely political motives and prepared by people who don't know what they're talking about," spokesman Tom said Sunday.

"The Reagan administration is vigorously enforcing civil rights laws and has done more than any administration have moved into new areas to protect the rights of women," he said.

"In every area of civil rights enforcement — housing, employment and schools — the report shows we have a great deal to protect the rights of individuals, clearly shown by the increases in budget and personnel for the Civil Rights Division," Decair said.

ACLU charged the administration has repudiated the mental elements of federal law.

"Its actions are at odds with the Congress and the courts and it has created a crisis which could plunge the country back into historic patterns of race and sex discrimination," the report said.

"In a manner without precedent in recent history, the Justice Department unilaterally sought to reach of its own civil rights enforcement authority and other executive agencies said.

It charged the administration with a 1980 law that Justice Department attorneys file lawsuits to protect the government-financed institutions.

It said the department failed to file suits to improve conditions at mental health institutions, despite its investigations showing widespread abuse in such facilities.

"Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Huie repeatedly distorted the pose of the legislation," it said.

It cited a case in which the state refused to bring a spite an investigation showed emotionally handicapped children at three Idaho institutions "were subjected to abuses that included neglect by the hospital staff," report said Reynolds said that no constitutional issues were at stake.
