First heart-liver transplant patient wants to go home to family, friends

United Press International PITTSBURGH — Stormie Jones, who made medical history at age 6 last month by undergoing the world's first simultaneous heart-liver transplant, faced the press for the first time Wednesday and said she wants to go home. Appearing tired, pale and ill at ease, with her lap covered with reporters' microphones, the Cumby, Texas, girl answered questions at a Children's Hospital news conference with short phrases. Stormie said she felt fine and, like any youngster far from home, she said she wanted to go home, and see her sister, Misty, and classmates at school. When asked what she thought of Pittsburgh, the youngster replied, "Awful." "I want to go home," she said, adding later that, if she could, she would tell her friends and her sister "that I love them." Then the small, pale, blonde, brown-eyed youngster, dressed in a pink dress with a white pinafore, looked down as her lower lip trembled and she began to cry. Stormie's mother, Lois Jones, 27, accompanied her to the news conference. "She's doing well, but she's still not used to all this and it's a little upsetting," said Jones, adding that she does not know when Stormie will be released from the hospital. "I've had no indication, that decision is up to the doctors." Stormie was taken off a liquid diet two weeks ago. "She's had some stuff from Burger King, pizza and hot dogs," said Jones; she attributed her daughter's rapid progress to the girl's strong constitution and to God. "I think she's always had the stuff, but I've said this before, and I hope this time someone remembers. It's the Man upstairs who made this all possible." Doctors had said the dual transplant was Stormie's only chance of survival. The child required a liver transplant because she suffers from a rare genetic disease that creates extremely high levels of cholesterol in the blood. However, she had undergone two double-bypass operations and her heart was too weak to withstand the stress of a liver transplant, necessitating the double procedure. "Her progress is so much better than expected," said Basil Zitelli, Stormie's physician. "It's only been three weeks since she's been post-operative. But the risk is constant. The risk is constant organ rejection, and she'll be monitored very carefully the rest of her life," Zitelli said. "But as time goes on there could lessen and there's no reason why she may not lead a normal life at this point."

Victim testifies in pool table rape trial

United Press International FALL RIVER, Mass. — A hysterical, sobbing and angry woman who says she was gang-raped on a barroom pool table could not identify three men now on trial for the crime, a police officer testified Wednesday. New Bedford police officer Ronald Doyon told a Bristol Superior Court jury that he accompanied the woman, 22, as she walked through Big Dan's Tavern in New Bedford shortly after the March 6, 1983, incident, and tried to identify her attackers. The mother of two circled the horseshoe-shaped bar and looked directly at defendants Virgilio Medeiros, Jose Medeiros and Daniel Silva, the officer testified. She paused in front of each man, and said, "He was in the bar, but I'm not sure if he did anything," Doyon testified.

When he met the woman outside the tavern, she was hysterical, sobbing and angry, her face was red and swollen, and her hair was in disarray, Doyon said. He added that he could detect the odor of liquor on her breath, but he did not think she was drunk. The woman told him she wanted to go back to the bar, and "point out those bastards who had raped her," Doyon said. Doyon's testimony agrees with the one given by another New Bedford officer, Carol Sacramento, who said that the woman could not identify her alleged attackers because they all began to look alike. But last week on the witness stand, the woman identified all six defendants as the men she believes participated in the assault. Doyon's testimony differed from most previous accounts of the incident, because he said the woman told him she was raped on both the bar counter, and on the tavern's pool table. Most other witnesses, including the woman, have said all the rapes occurred on the pool table. Doyon's testimony came in the trial of four of the six men charged in the incident. He already has told his story to the jury hearing arguments in the separate trial of the other two defendants. Adding details to his earlier testimony, Doyon testified he had found under the pool table a pair of men's underwear stained with green muck that matched the color of the defendant's pants. Another officer testified on a No. 10 field with a green muck. Earlier, officer Louisa who is not related to the defendant, testified that Medeiros told him he was involved. He said Medeiros refused to answer questions by saying he was going to help, adding that Medeiros also told him he was a bartender for information. Daniel Cunha, the husband of one of the two defendants, Daniel Silva, testified that he and Virgilio Medeiros were in the room at the time of the assault.

Stock slump blamed on deficit

United Press International NEW YORK — Stocks fell for the third consecutive session Wednesday in a demonstration of Wall Street's concern that both the strong economy and huge budget deficits are going to force interest rates higher. Despite some late bargain hunting, analysts said the market also is being hurt by foreign investors pulling out their money because the dollar has been in a severe slump. Some energy issues skidded when Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, introduced a bill to prohibit mergers between the nation's 20 largest oil companies following the California Standard-Gulf Oil and Texaco-Getty pacts. The Dow Jones industrial average, which skidded 12.67 points Tuesday, dropped another 8.90 to 1,143.63. It has lost 27.85 points in the past three sessions and analysts predicted it would pierce late-February lows. The Dow transportation average dropped 8.54 to 499.18 and the Dow utilities average shed 1.06 to 126.88. The New York Stock Exchange index lost 0.98 to 89.09 and the price of an average share decreased 34 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index shed 1.68 to 154.57. Declines led advances 1,259-369 among the 1,987 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST. Big Board volume totaled 90,080,000 shares, up from the 83,590,000 traded Tuesday. "The oil merger boom that was the only froth in the market that made investors think something might be better is gone and there's no other ball game around," said Dudley Eppel of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. Bonds plunged when Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker indicated the economic growth and large budget deficits could put pressure on interest rates. He also said the deficit-cutting measures under consideration in congressional committees would not address problems of 1984. "I think there are great fears Congress won't be able to do anything about the deficit," said

James Meyer of Janney, Montgomery & Scott, Philadelphia. "The supply and demand battle for funds over the next several months doesn't look good." Several analysts said the slowed down volume lately indicates foreign investors have begun to flee the U.S. market now that the dollar has begun to slide from its lengthy perch atop the international exchange ladder. Total volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 102,989,500 shares, up from 96,873,300 Tuesday. The American Stock Exchange index shed 1.71 to 207.55 and the price of an average share fell 12 cents. Declines topped advances 407-159 among the 771 issues traded. Volume totaled 5,730,000 shares compared with 6,260,000 Tuesday. The National Association of Securities Dealers index of OTC stocks lost 3.08 to 249.16.

On the trading floor, Oil, which agreed to a $13.4 billion merger with California Standard, was the active NYSE-listed issue, up 3/4 to 64 3/4. Socialcast was up 1/4 to 64 1/4. Mesa Petroleum, which stands to earn a $70 million from its Gulf holdings, was up 1/4 to 16 1/4. Atlantic Rock whose bid Gulf rejected, remained unchanged at 45. Texaco, which is to buy Getty Oil for $10.1 billion, was up 1/4 to 39 1/4. The stock plunge Tuesday after Texaco would buy back 25.6 million shares bought by Bankers Enterprise. AT&T was the second active issue, unchanged at 107 1/2. On the Amex, Gulf Canada led the active issues, up 1/4 to 14 3/4. The company is expected to be bought out now that it has agreed to merge with

Grand jury indicts home administrator charged with thrashing boy in his care

United Press International DALLAS — A disciple of the late Lester Roloff, who himself clashed with the state over disciplinary practices at his homes for wayward children, could go to prison for up to 10 years if convicted on felony charges of brutalizing a 15-year-old boy in his care. A grand jury Tuesday indicted Greg Blood, 22, administrator of Old Paths Boys Home, on two counts of aggravated assault, accusing him of beating one of his charges with bailing wire, an oak paddle and his fists. The unlicensed home is located in Glen Heights in south Dallas County.

Hugh Lucas, assistant district attorney, said the grand jury will hear additional evidence later this week against Blood; his wife Nacole, 18; and the home's owners, Don and Martha Vincent — Blood's in-laws. The Vincents have said most of the boys were placed with them because their parents either did not want them or could not control them. "Many, not just a few, of the parents have been hostile," Lucas said. "Many feel it should be kept within the church or family, that it shouldn't be aired in the courtroom. Others feel it was necessary discipline." On Feb. 11, the boy appealed for help to an ambulance driver responding to a call in the neighborhood. Sheriff's deputies removed all 10 residents, ranging in age from 8 to 15, from the home that same day. Blood said at the time he had punished the boy justly according to Biblical standards and those set by Roloff. The Vincents were followers of Roloff, who died in a 1982 plane crash. Blood has said his methods made good Christians out of boys he characterized as "spoiled rotten brats, homosexuals, liars, thieves and attempted murderers." The boy told deputies Blood thrashed him when he could not complete 23 laps, punishment for not tidying his room.

Next day, the youth left some gloves outside. Blood ordered more laps, boy said after he ran almost a mile, Blood began hitting him with a piece of pipe and, when he fell to the ground, jerked him up by hair and slapped his face repeatedly. The boy said Blood dered him to a garage, where he was hit 62 times with a paddle. If Blood is convicted of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and aggravated assault resulting in serious bodily harm, his sentence could be 10 years in prison, Lucas said.
