Lights, camera, action!

Columbia Pictures is conducting a nation-wide talent search for the lead in an upcoming major motion picture. The picture "Sylvester," is being produced by Martin Jurov.

The lead part is a 16-17 year-old orphan named Charlie. She's a groom who wants to "make it," by training an old horse — Sylvester — for the Olympic trials. Charlie is a spirited, spunky and wisecracking romantic.

The auditions will be at the Westin Galleria (5060 W. Alabama, take the Westheimer exit off 610 West) on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. both days. Applicants aren't required to be 16 or 17, but must look that age. To audition, applicants must bring a photo and a brief resume. After a short interview, the casting director, Pat Orseph, will give something to read to those she thinks might have a chance for the part.

"Sylvester" will be a Columbia Pictures/Rastar Productions film.
