Tower to cause traffic detours

Drivers on the campus will have to find alternative routes in the area near the Grove this weekend as construction equipment for the Albritton Bell Tower is brought on campus.

The portion of Lamar Street in front of the Grove will be blocked off to make room for the equipment.

Next week, the exit lane of Old Main Drive leading to Wellborn Road (on the Jones Street side, near Parking Annex 9) will be blocked off and traffic will be re-routed through the entrance lane. Entrance lane traffic will become two-way during construction of the tower.

Bob Wiatt, director of security and traffic for the University, said that no one will be allowed to park at the side of Old Main Drive near Parking Annex 31 next week.

He said that some random staff parking in that area may be blocked off.

Kissinger, Haig, Kalb to take part

Students, faculty to attend seminar

By DAINAH BULLARD
Staff Writer

College deans will select 15 students and 10 faculty members from each college to attend seminars with Dr. Henry Kissinger, General Alexander Haig and Marvin Kalb on April 19.

The selections, which will be made today, are part of a program sponsored by the MSC Endowed Lecture Series to promote student interest in the upcoming discussion between Kissinger and Haig. The discussion, entitled "Perspectives on United States Foreign Policy," will be at 8 p.m. on April 19. Kalb, chief diplomatic correspondent for NBC News in Washington, D.C. will moderate the discussion.

"We're very proud to be offering this," said Matthew Kirst, spokesman for the Series. Memorandums requesting the nomination of 15 students and 10 faculty members to attend the seminars were sent to the colleges March 20, Kirst said. The Corps of Cadets and the Graduate College were also invited to nominate students, he said.

The memorandums did not dictate a method of selection, but the deans were urged to consider applicants' level of interest and speaking ability, Kirst said. Participants do not have to be political experts, but they will be required to attend a briefing before the seminars.

The Colleges of Education and Geosciences are requiring interested students and faculty members to be nominated by department heads for consideration. The College of Science is accepting the first 15 students and 10 faculty members who apply for nomination. Other colleges are accepting all applications and will make final selections today. Col. Donald L. Burton, Commandant of the School of Military Sciences, will select representatives from the Corps.

Five seminars will be offered to the selected students and faculty members, Kirst said. Students will be allowed to attend the seminar they wish to select, he said.

Haig will present two seminars the morning of April 19. His first seminar is entitled "U.S.-European Relations-NATO: Military, Economic, and Political Cooperation." The second seminar is entitled "U.S. Far Eastern Policy: After Vietnam."

Kalb will present two afternoon seminars. His first seminar is entitled "The Soviet Union: Decision-making in the Kremlin." Kalb's second seminar is entitled "Journalism Behind the Iron Curtain."

Kissinger will present the fifth seminar of the afternoon. His seminar is entitled "U.S. Middle Eastern Policy: After Camp David."

Connally calls for higher taxes

United Press International
AUSTIN — Former Gov. John Connally said Thursday the Texas Legislature should raise the gasoline and sales taxes to pay for highway repairs and teacher salary increases.

people what you want the money for and what you're going to do with it." The Legislature is expected to consider an education finance package during a special session in May or June.

A&M research scientist to discuss arms talks

Dr. Lynn Hansen, associate research scientist for Texas A&M's Center for Strategic Technology, will speak today about the arms negotiations with the Soviets.

The talk will be in 410 Rudder Tower at 2 p.m. and is open to the public.

Hansen is representing the United States in a multi-national conference in Stockholm, Sweden. He is deputy head of the American delegation under James Goodby, former American ambassador to Finland and No. 2 man of the START negotiations.

The United States, Canada and every other European nation except Albania are participating in the conference on security-building measures and disarmament.

RECORD BAR'S GUIDE TO CHILDISH BEHAVIOR.

HOW TO PLAY THE FOOL FOR $6.49.

THE ROOMMATE. This year recycle some oldies but goodies. Short-sheeting the bed is always good for a cheap laugh. However, unless your roommate is a saint, reprisals will occur during finals week. So be nice. Short-sheet the bed, but leave "The Works" in his pillowcase. Queen's new release is just $6.49. And your roommate will only screw up your life, not your finals.

THE GIRLFRIEND/BOYFRIEND. This is a touchy area. Somehow the person you love never appreciates your sense of humor. But don't miss this opportunity to invent some fatal family disease. When you've received more than your share of sympathy, casually mention that it hasn't occurred since the eighteenth century. Make up (or out) with the new album by April Wine. It's a long term relationship set in rock.

IN CLASS. Forget it! Your professors already think you're a fool. But for your classmates' enjoyment, Biology Lab is a great place to cut up. Small furry animals elicit the greatest response. However, this is not exactly funny. Instead, steal material for your next class presentation from Weird Al Yankovich. His album, "In 3-D", is just $6.49.

PARENTS. Record Bar suggests you not play an April Fools joke on your parents. Remember who holds the bank book. Instead, tell them you've started investing in blue chip rock like the Alan Parsons Project. Or you're studying social sciences with Howard Jones' "Human's Lib". Tell them they too can sponsor your higher education for just $6.49. April Fools.
