Lucas' first death-penalty trial starts

United Press International
SAN ANGELO — Witnesses in the first death-penalty trial of admitted mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas were scheduled Monday to begin outlining the state's case in the 1979 Georgetown slaying of an unidentified hitchhiker.

Lucas is accused of strangling, robbing, kidnapping and sexually assaulting the woman, whose body was found along Interstate 35 in central Texas on Halloween night. She was clad only in orange socks. State District Judge John Carter granted the 47-year-old drifter and former Michigan mental patient a change of venue for the trial. Court officials said the prosecution and defense each planned to call about 10 witnesses.

One defense witness will be Ottis Toole, a Florida inmate and former traveling companion of Lucas. Lucas' attorneys say they will argue he is innocent by reason of insanity.

He has confessed to more than 150 slayings across the country. Although previously convicted of two Texas murders, this is the first time Lucas has faced a capital murder charge.

If convicted, he would receive a sentence of life in prison or the death penalty.

Georgetown attorneys spent 13 days questioning more than 80 potential jurors to seat a four-man, eight-woman jury with two women alternates. Jury selection was completed Wednesday.

Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh has said he will seek the death penalty if Lucas is convicted.

"This is the first capital murder case for everybody except Walsh," defense attorney Parker McCullough said last week.

Carter previously ruled confessions Lucas gave Williamson

County authorities will be allowed as evidence.

Defense attorney Don Higginbotham said Lucas made the statements to give police what they wanted to hear and also as "legal suicide" in remorse for the stabbing death of his 15-year-old common-law wife, Frieda "Becky" Powell.

Lucas received a life sentence for Powell's death and also was sentenced to 75 years in prison for the slaying of an elderly Ringgold woman.

Kansas University to sponsor Vietnam awareness week

United Press International
LAWRENCE, Kan. — A week-long effort to raise money for a Vietnam memorial in the nation's wheatbelt begins today, in memory of University of Kansas students who died in the jungles and rice paddies of Southeast Asia.

The fundraiser coincides with POWMIA-Vietnam Memorial Awareness Week at K.U.

"This isn't a memorial to the Vietnam War, but a memorial to K.U. students who died in that war ... to honor the sacrifices of those K.U. students who served and died," said Lisa Ashner, a member of the University of Kansas Vietnam Memorial Committee.

"I just thought it was something that was neglected on our campus," the 21-year-old senior said.

MIA-Vietnam Memorial Awareness Week was the university's ROTC Arnold Air Society chapter.

The ROTC group will circulate petitions that demand a full accounting of the 2,500 Americans who are listed as missing in action or who were prisoners of war whose fate remains unknown, said Brett A. Loyd, commander of the ROTC chapter.

Loyd, 20, a junior, said the petitions would be forwarded to the Vietnamese consulate at the United Nations.

On Thursday, retired Lt. Gen John P. Flynn, San Antonio, will discuss his 5½ years of captivity in North Vietnam. He was the highest ranking U.S. Air Force officer captured during the war.

Kay Bosiljevac, Omaha, Neb., a member of the National League of Families, will speak Wednesday. In 1972, her husband, Maj. Michael Bosiljevac, was shot down over North Vietnam.

Lawrence-area veterans will show slides of their tours in Vietnam today.

Since last fall, about half of the $30,000 needed for the memorial has been raised. Plans call for the memorial, a fountain incorporated with limestone, to be built in a courtyard near the student union.

So far, most donations have come from student groups, she said. The committee hopes this week's activities will result in donations from a wider spectrum.

Through what is described as a tedious search, the committee has uncovered the names of 51 K.U. students who were killed or are listed as missing in action in Vietnam. Ms. Ashner said those names will appear on the memorial, which she hopes will be constructed by next Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

"This memorial has provoked discussion about Vietnam, what it was about, what was right about it or what was wrong," she said. "If we are not to repeat things like that, we have to be aware of it."

Chancellor appointed to U.S. energy board

University News Service
Texas A&M University System Chancellor Arthur G. Hansen has been appointed by U.S. Secretary of Energy Donald Paul Hodel to serve on the Energy Research Advisory Board.

The board, established in 1978, advises Hodel and principal Department of Energy officials on national energy research and development programs and policies.

"In this capacity, the board plays an important role in providing outside advice to the Department of Energy," Hodel said. "The findings and recommendations of the new board have provided, and should continue to provide, valuable input to the decision-making process that shapes our nation's energy future."

Hansen said he welcomes the opportunity to serve on the board.

"My service on the Energy Research Advisory Board should provide a unique opportunity to obtain a broad picture of our national energy research posture," he said. "I view this as being particularly important to the Texas A&M System."

The Texas A&M System has long been involved in energy research in a variety of areas.
