Children's trauma unit
now open

United Press International

DALLAS — Parkland Hospital announced Wednesday the opening of a medical center designed solely for the treatment of seriously injured children.

The Parkland Pediatric Trauma Center is expected to significantly improve the ability of medical science to prevent deaths and long-term disabilities among children, said Dr.
Ron J. Anderson, Parkland's president and chief executive officer.

The center is one of only four pediatric trauma units in the nation and the only complete center designed for treating seriously injured children, Anderson said. Other centers are located in Salt Lake City, Baltimore and Boston.

The center also will serve as a major research and teaching facility where pediatric physicians and nurses can learn improved treatments and develop methods of preventing injuries.

"The center's aim will be not only to treat the injured child, but also to play a crucial role in developing a body of knowledge about pediatric trauma," Anderson said. "It will serve as a clearinghouse of information in child trauma."

The center's computer-based information system will collect and correlate demographic and patient outcome data. This, the medical staff says, is crucial to the development of new and better treatment methods and to the more effective application of existing techniques and technology.

"What we learn by having a central source of information will enable us to react more quickly as physicians in diagnosing injured children," Anderson said. "That faster and more accurate diagnosis can save lives and speed recovery."

Police scrutinize
hiring of students

EL PASO — An investigation is being conducted into the screening process by which potential employers hire high school students, police said Wednesday.

Officers said the mother of a learning handicapped student complained a man posing as a potential employer lured her son to his home, showed her graphic films, exposed her and then made sexual advances.

The 18-year-old student police he was referred to "employer" through a voluntary coordinator at an El Paso high school. Coordinators pare handicapped students employment and help them find jobs.

Police said the student was picked up at his home by a man who had advertised in painters' helpers.

The incident occurred during a second interview at the man's home, not far from high school, after the student was interviewed earlier with another youth.

The student told his coordinator, Bob Pena, after the interview that the man would call the school with a decision.
Instead, police said, the student told them the man called him and asked for a second interview, picked him up and took him to the man's home for an hour-long interview.
