Texas A&M's Buddy Haney slides back into first ahead of the throw to Baylor's first baseman Keith Shepherd. The Aggies lost two of three games to Baylor last weekend to fall out of first place. The Aggies play again Wednesday against Sam Houston State at 7:30 in Olsen Field.

Softball team gets stood up

NE Louisiana women don't show up

There are some things in this world that cannot be done alone. It takes two to tango, see-saw, play catch, shake hands...and a few other things. One of these things is softball. There just has to be two teams to have a softball game.

The women's softball team had a game scheduled for yesterday afternoon, but their opponent, Northeastern Louisiana, didn't, or couldn't, show up so there was no softball game.

Aggie coach Bob Brock said the Northeastern coach had to back out of the scheduled doubleheader simply because the team didn't have enough money to make the road trip. Evidently Northeastern had just played a few games in Lubbock and couldn't afford to travel again.

Brock wasn't upset. The team just practiced instead of played.

Actually, the unexpected day off may have been welcomed by the Aggies. The team is battered and bruised and could easily use some extra time to heal before traveling to Utah later this weekend for an important tournament.

Third baseman Cindy Cooper is playing with two broken bones. The middle finger on her throwing hand is broken and swolleness won't go down. Cooper also has a stress fracture in her foot, which she thinks will need surgery when the season is over. Outfielder Iva Jackson has missed several games because of a severe heel bruise. Linda Lancaster is being hampered by a sore shoulder. Lancaster replaced Patty Holthaus at second base after Holthaus' arm was broken when she was hit by a pitch. Other team members have nagging injuries that require bandaging and taping jobs or need ice packs applied to sore arms between innings.

A&M's record is just a little bit behind last season's. The Ags are 38-13 this spring and have several games left to play; last spring they were 34-10. The records are close, but the team hasn't quite dominated the way it did last year. Brock said he was only a little disappointed.

"It's a kind of a letdown," Brock said, "but we've done the best we can. We lost our two pitchers from last year and we've had a lot of injuries."

Brock said the upcoming tournament in Salt Lake City, Utah was important for the team because all the teams competing there, except for UCLA, are in the same region as the Aggies. And it is A&M's record against those opponents that determines if they will be one of the two teams selected for the regional tournament on May 9.

Olympic basketball: only 20 remain

United Press International

After a week of exhausting basketball in what many in the original field of 72 called their greatest athletic challenge, the All-America team escaped the latest cutover.

Patrick Ewing, the center for NCAA champion Georgetown, and Michael Jordan of North Carolina, the Player of the Year, were joined by Sam Perkins of North Carolina, Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma and Chris Mullin of St. John's.

Dave Gavitt, chairman of the selection committee, announced the cuts at a morning news conference after he and Knight met with the players.

"These 20 players by far and away were beyond everyone else in the trials," Knight said. "No one else was remotely close. Another group of coaches would have picked another team."

The 20 return to the Indiana University campus May 10-15 for further evaluation. The roster must be trimmed to 12 by July 14, two weeks before the Olympics in Los Angeles.

Monday's cut was to have narrowed the squad from 34 players to about 18, but Knight said there was good reason for increasing the number.

"The play at guard was so strong that rather than try to establish the guards through debate, we wanted to establish the

Women shooting for Olympic team

United Press International

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Southern California, Tennessee and Louisiana Tech placed two players each Monday on a squad from which coach Pat Summitt will select the U.S. olympic womens basketball team.

USC's Pam McGee of Flint, Mich., and Cheryl Miller of Riverside, Calif., made the 17-player pool that will be pared to 12 following an international tournament this week.

Also staying in the competition are Tennessee's Cincy Noble of Clarksville, Tenn., and Lea Henry of Damascus, Ga., and Tech's Janice Lawrence of Lucedale, Miss., and Kim Mulvey of Tickpaw, La.

A United States Olympic Committee spokeswoman said Ms. Summitt and the selection committee decided Monday to keep LaTaunya Pollard of Long Beach State and Chicago in the group despite a knee injury.

The committee had intended to keep 16 women at this point, but Ms. LaTaunya remained in the field because of her past record playing for the 1980 team and because it was not known how severe a right knee injury was.

She was to undergo arthroscopic surgery Monday in Colorado Springs.

Other making the 17-member group were Cathy Boswell, Illinois State, Shorewood, Ill.; Patty Joe Hedges, Kentucky, Louisville, Ky.; Lynette Woodard, Kansas, Wichita, Kan.; Anne Donovan, Old Dominion, Ridgewood, N.J.

Also, Denise Curry, UCLA, Davis, Calif.; Tresa Spaulding,
