Rookie's fortune changes

United Press International

HOUSTON — Corey Pavin, the first rookie to win a PGA tournament this year, was faced with the same problem he experienced in the Phoenix Open — a second place finish.

Pavin finished second in that tournament to Tom Purtzer, who was playing before a hometown gallery.

Sunday, going into the Houston Open's final round, Pavin was paired with John Mahaffey, touring pro for The Woodlands Country Club. Mahaffey held a two-stroke lead on Pavin and four others, bunched at 7-under-par.

It took a pep talk from his wife, Shannon, to keep Pavin's mind on the game and not the gallery Sunday.

"She doesn't know much about golf, but she reminded me that there would be at least one person in the gallery cheering for me," Pavin said.

Pavin, 24, collected $90,000 for his 10-under par effort.

He and runner-up Buddy Gardner caught Mahaffey on the front nine at 9-under. Mahaffey fell out of contention with four bogeys on the back nine.

The spotlight then turned to the battle between Pavin and Gardner.

It ended at No. 14 when Pavin's 25-foot putt placed him two-strokes ahead at 11-under.

"That was a very bold putt," said Doug Tewell, who finished four strokes back of Pavin in fifth place. "He stroked that ball pretty hard. If it goes past the hole, he might have had trouble with the putt coming back."

Gardner narrowly missed a putt for birdie at No. 18 that could have put the game into a playoff. But he wasn't disappointed in his play, which earned him $54,000.

"I'm very happy. I kept it together," he said. "I take my hat off to Corey. He's gutsy."

Huskers' first two picks

United Press International

HOUSTON — Dean Steinkuhler, All-America as an offensive guard at Nebraska, signed a four-year contract Monday as the Houston Oilers' first pick in the NFL draft.

Cornhusker teammate Irving Fryer had already signed a $2.65 million agreement with the New England Patriots, who hold the first selection in Tuesday's draft.

Terms for Steinkuhler's contract were not released, but it has been reported he agreed to $2.6 million over four years.

At a news conference Monday, Steinkuhler was given his Oilers' jersey with No. 70 on it.

"For at least two weeks, when I began talking to the people, this is the place I wanted to go," said the 6-foot-3, 270-pound lineman.

Steinkuhler said he had also talked with the New York Giants, who hold the third pick in the draft, but "liked the area around Houston better than there. New York doesn't fit my lifestyle as well."

In addition to the NFL clubs, his agent also met with officials of the Los Angeles Express and the New Jersey Generals in the USFL.

As a senior, Steinkuhler was UPI All-America and Lineman-of-the-year. He also won the Lombardi Award and the Outland Trophy as outstanding college lineman.

Steinkuhler will be moving from guard to tackle in the Oilers' offensive line.

"There may be some risk in planning to play him at tackle since that has not been his natural position," said coach Hugh

Campbell. "But there is risk that he can't be moving line."

Steinkuhler said he anticipates how he will adjust to the adjustment to tackle.

"I've never played before," he said. "I'm not sure what it'll be like."

The Oilers have drafted offensive linemen with picks for three years.

Steinkuhler said his young line that includes top draft pick Mike Mutschers was another reason he wanted to come to Houston.

"I knew if I came to Houston, I would be with a good coaching staff," he said. "I believe about the players here will help me."

Track sale uncertain

United Press International

SHREVEPORT, La. — A leading Louisiana thoroughbred breeder said Monday there was "no firm deal" for him and a local banker to purchase Louisiana Downs for $60 million from Ohio businessman Edward J. DeBartolo.

A Dallas newspaper quoted former Louisiana Downs president and general manager Vince Bartimo as saying he arranged a purchase deal with oilman and horse breeder Robert Roberts and businessman-banker Gus Mijalis in 1982.

Bartimo, fired by DeBartolo in February 1982 for alleged misuse of track funds, owned 10 percent of the Bossier City track before he was dismissed.

"The tragedy is that I had a bona fide offer of $60 million and DeBartolo ruined the whole thing," Bartimo told the newspaper. "I had worked the deal in good faith, and I left his employment in good faith. I didn't do anything wrong."

"And that was just an idea, a method of forming a limited partnership ... and then public, Louisiana citizens shares of the track," he said. The plan would have allowed 2,000 to 3,000 Louisiana residents to purchase the track, he said.

He and Mijalis discussed exclusive ownership of the track, Roberts said.

Roberts said he knew if the track was aware of the meeting with Bartimo.

Injuries prevail at A&M tourney

Bruised hands, slippery floors and sweaty bodies were expected at the 7th Annual Spring Aggieland Handball Classic, but injuries were not.

Lance Lowy, a handball coach at Texas A&M, said the quality of players were outstanding, making the tournament better than usual. He also said the intensity and competitiveness were "fantastic."

The intensity and competitiveness were there, but so were the injuries.

Renee DeLassus was the victim of a slippery floor Sunday, which caused her to slip into the wall cutting her knee. She was taken to A.P. Beutel Health Center for stitches.

Steve Smith, a psychology professor at Texas A&M, was injured Saturday night while playing Todd Worrell, a contender for the men's open singles.

Smith, wearing safety glasses, was accidentally hit in the eye with the ball. A lens popped out of his glasses, cutting his eyelid and bruising his eye.

Smith, who's been playing for 23 years, said the glasses saved his eye.

"If I hadn't worn my glasses, I'd be blind right now," Smith said.

Most of the competitors managed to go without serious injury.

Austin's Joe Thomas captured first place in the men's open division after he and San Antonian Todd Worrell played an abbreviated game due to slippery floor conditions.

Worrell won second place, while Austin's Dale Littwin, won the men's A consolation match. College Station's Brent Bertrand defeated Mark B. to win the men's B-division. Bob Davidson placed second in the men's B-plus consolation match.

Roy Dimon, from Dallas, won the men's B division and Brian Bob Jones took the men's B consolation match. The men's B consolation match was won by David Utsey.

In men's C division, Jonathan took first and Larabee placed second. Saunier won the men's C consolation game.

Cancer victim top Crosby pro-am list

United Press International

HOUSTON — A former top-ranked 19-year-old amateur golfer, battling cancer for the past year, got his wish Monday to play with some of the world's top professional golfers at the Crosby Pro-Am Tournament in California next year.

Kathryn Crosby, widow of Bing Crosby, named Stuart Hendley as the first of 168 amateurs to be invited to play in the tournament at Pebble Beach, Calif., next February.

"Stuart has earned this invitation," Crosby said at a news conference in Houston.

Hendley, 19, of Houston, previously was named the No. 1 ranked junior golfer in the country by Golf Digest magazine and was on the World Cup team.

His golfing career came to a halt in January 1983, when doctors determined he had a cancerous tumor on his left. Chemotherapy treatment prevented him from playing for more than a year.

"He was one of the outstanding golfers in the country," Crosby said. "With his illness he has conducted himself as a champion. He thinks his golfing will be finished and he is in fine shape and ready to play," she said.

"And, in the spirit of a Texan, he expects not only to play, but to win the tournament," she said.
