

Campus ministers help students with problems

By LESLIE MARTIN
Reporter

Talking about your problems is a healthy approach to coping with life's problems. But when roommates, friends, or parents are nowhere to be found, there is a place on campus where students can turn for guidance.

The All Faiths Chapel provides a pastoral counseling service called the Listening Ear.

The Listening Ear, provided in conjunction with the Wellness Center, is 10 men and women from the Campus Ministers' Association who volunteer their time to work with students. The free service is available each Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the meditation room of the chapel and no appointments are necessary. The phone number in the room is 260-0061.

The advisers come from several denominations and will counsel students on everything from general problems to religious questions. They make no attempt to convert the students to any certain faith.

"If a student has a question about a certain religion or something in his church I will refer him to the appropriate pastor," said Rabbi Peter Tarlow from the Hillel Foundation.

There also are volunteers from St. Mary's Catholic Church, United Campus Ministry, University Lutheran Church, Chi Alpha, Central Church of Christ, the Wesley Foundation, and the Episcopal Student Center.

The All Faiths Chapel also is available for weddings, funerals, and religious group meetings.

"The renovations should be finished by the first of May and at that time the chapel will again be available for use," Carreathers said.

Krueger defending alien stance

Bob Krueger, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, said Tuesday that he offers himself as the mainstream candidate capable of uniting the broad spectrum of Democrats looking for effective leadership in Washington.

Krueger said neither of his two opponents, Kent Hance or Lloyd Doggett, offer that kind of leadership.

"It is important for the Democrats to have a candidate capable of serving as a Senator effectively in Washington," Krueger said. "In the past we have often been misrepresented."

Krueger said he was surprised that one of his opponents, Kent Hance, had tried to suggest that some of the candidates for the U.S. Senate were prepared to allow illegal aliens enter the country illegally.

"I testified before the U.S. Congress in 1981 that I felt we needed a very strong immigration policy, one that would prevent illegal immigration," he said.

Krueger said he indicated at that time he thought this strong immigration policy should protect American jobs but at the same time protect Hispanics against discrimination by holding employers accountable.

Krueger said Hance has also said the other candidates are for amnesty for illegal aliens but Hance himself had told The El Paso Times in September that he "would also let illegal aliens already here apply for citizenship."

Krueger said if Hance is prepared to grant anyone already here citizenship, it would be a far greater amnesty policy than his own.

"My policy is that we're not likely to send illegal aliens home who have been here 50 or 60 years," he said. "But if they have been here for 50 or 60 days we will."

Marines arrive from Lebanon, get hero's welcome at port

United Press International

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. — Nearly 1,800 Marines who invaded Grenada and then served the last American peacekeeping force in Beirut returned to the United States Tuesday, still wearing their flak jackets and helmets.

The 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit got a hero's welcome from generals, wives and friends when their ships docked at the state port in Morehead City. Scores of signs and trees decked with yellow ribbons lined the 40-mile bus route to Camp Lejeune.

"In years to come, you can say you stood in harm's way to give the people of the world a chance to be free," Maj. Gen. Alfred Gray, commander of the 2nd Marine Division, told the Marines.

The Marines left Camp Lejeune Oct. 18 on what was expected to be a voyage straight to Beirut. But, instead, they were diverted to Grenada for the invasion before arriving in Lebanon in mid-November.

The Marines left Beirut and moved to ships off the coast of Lebanon in late February.

As the first of the returning ships, USS Trenton, was nudged into its slip by two tugboats a Coast Guard patrol boat sent a plume of water up in salute.

Sailors heaved lines to dock and crews and Marines crowded the deck of the Trenton, cheering loudly and waving their rifles.

The difference between this summer job offer and others is like night & day.

Others:

Are you comfortable working for a company that's been in business a year or so? (Many of the companies who recruited just last year are already out of business.)

Will they be around to write your last paycheck?

Training? Naa... Just hit the streets and get to work.

Satisfaction?

Can they really guarantee you anything about your summer income? Or is their sales pitch just a lot of hot air? Three to 18 months in business doesn't prove much. 90% of all new businesses fail within the first five years.

& day.

Eagle Marketing, a division of Eagle Systems International, is looking for motivated students to fill excellent jobs for the summer of '84.

We'd like to present a complete job description and answer your questions at a brief, get-acquainted meeting. See below for the time and place of our next meeting.

Now, a word of caution:

You've probably heard a lot about summer sales jobs over the last few weeks. When you compare the offers, remember:

Eagle:

Eagle Systems and affiliates have been in business over 20 years. We're very stable. Definitely here to stay. Eagle has offices in Utah, California and now in Dallas with a summer sales force of hundreds of college students like yourself working throughout the country and in Canada.

We'll be around to write all your checks. We've been writing rather fat checks for years. And we will be again this year. And next. And the year after that.

We'll train you to do the job right, successfully, and enjoyably. At our expense, you'll attend a professional training seminar.

A high level of job satisfaction comes from being involved with products that can improve lives.

Our 10-year summer track record proves what your income can be. Our top first-year sales people earned over $16,000 last summer. Our top second-year salesmen earned over $30,000 in 16 weeks.

We'd like to tell you about the job and answer your questions. Join us for a 60-minute, get-acquainted meeting. No pressure. Just facts and nice people.
