Reagan meets with pope in Alaska after visit in China

United Press International

FAIRBANKS — President Reagan assured Pope John Paul II Wednesday the United States is determined to be "a force for peace in the world" and a defender of individual freedom around the globe.

The president, on his way home after a six-day state visit to China, and the pontiff, beginning a 10-day tour of Asia, crossed paths for about 40 minutes at Fairbanks International Airport, 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle.

A crowd of about 10,000 people — smaller than expected because of rain — gathered to greet the world leaders, both victims of assassination attempts, who met amid tight security.

"In some ways, Alaska can be considered today a crossroads of the world," John Paul said at an outdoor ceremony during which Reagan welcomed him to the United States. "President Reagan is returning from visiting the beloved people of China, even as I am making my way to a neighboring area in the Far East."

At a red-carpet welcoming ceremony for the pope, Reagan, who has courted Catholics in his bid for re-election, praised John Paul as "a minister of peace and love" and his church as "one of humanity's greatest moral and spiritual forces."

The pope praised "the wonderful diversity" of Alaska, where "65 languages are spoken and peoples of many diverse backgrounds find a common home with the Aleuts, Eskimos and Indians."

"To live in harmony and concord requires a constant openness to each other on the part of each individual and group," he said.

"It is expressed in a dialogue that is honest and frank, one that is based on mutual respect. Openness to others begins in the heart."

The pope and Reagan held their talks, the first since the Vatican and the United States upgraded diplomatic relations to the ambassadorial level, in an airport VIP room redecored for the occasion with Eskimo art, a new rug and a coat of paint at a total cost of $50,000.

The meeting between Reagan and John Paul came as the president and Mrs. Reagan wrapped up a 31-hour stopover in Alaska, a common refueling spot for trans-Pacific flights.

The Reagans left soon after on the final leg of their return to Washington. They were to reach the capital late Wednesday night.

In his welcoming comments to the pope, Reagan also took note of the new formal ties linking the Vatican and Washington.

As he did during his China visit, Reagan emphasized religion in his comments to the pope, and linked faith with his efforts for peace.

"We are just returning from a mission of peace," Reagan said, "and I can think of no more fitting close to this journey than to be here in the presence of your holiness, who has worked diligently for recognition of the rights and dignity of the individual and peace among nations."

Reagan recalled how, in setting out across the Pacific on Easter Sunday, he had offered "a prayer for peace, a prayer that the nations of the world would renounce the agony and heartbreak of war and learn to live in love with each other."

"We must never underestimate such efforts," he said. "Far more can be accomplished by the simple prayers of good people than by all the statesmen or armies of the world."

Reagan extended what was to have been a brief refueling stop in Alaska to an overnight stay to accommodate the brief meeting with the pope, who was bound for South Korea, New Guinea, the Solomon Islands and Bangkok.

The private session between Reagan and John Paul, held in the airport terminal as the pope's DC-10 and Air Force One were parked nearby, was their first on American soil. The two last met at the Vatican in June 1982.

Mattox hearing begins

United Press International

AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox goes to court Thursday for a pre-trial hearing that marks the beginning of his defense against charges of commercial bribery.

Mattox is charged with threatening the lucrative public bond business of Houston law firm of Edmond, bright & Jaworski. He allegedly told a senior member of the firm he would reward the firm's bond business if it attempts to question Mattox's sister in connection with a civil suit she dropped.

Mattox was originally charged last September with a pre-trial hearing has been delayed several times.

Mattox faces a maximum penalty of two to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Harris proposes election changes

By JAMES WALKER
Staff Writer

With the Republican primary just days away, 6th District congressional candidate Bob Harris held a news conference Wednesday to call for changes in the electoral process.

Harris, speaking at his Bryan office, proposed a plan to limit the lengths of congressional terms, curtail contributions from political action committees and restrict the lengths of campaign can be conducted.

The biggest change proposed was a call to limit U.S. senators and representatives to a maximum of 12 consecutive years in office, to be followed by a period of four years before they can seek election.

His plan would extend a representative's term from two to three years, with no one occupying a seat for more than four consecutive terms.

"We need to have our congressmen come back, and under the laws they have passed," Harris said. "They spend more time in Washington than they do in their home districts."

Harris also proposed limiting the current $5,000 PAC contributions to $2,500. He also said he would support a limit established on the amount of PAC contributions which a candidate may receive.

But things are most important to put him through a campaign budgets.

"There is something wrong with our system when someone has to spend $600,000 to have a $700,000 or more in order to be elected to a Congressional seat that pays you $70,000 a year," Harris said.

To reduce the cost of running for office and voter apathy resulting from long campaigns, he said congressional dates should be limited to an eight week campaign and a six month campaign.

GETTING YOUR SECURITY DEPOSIT BACK

With the end of the semester come concerns about finals, getting a summer job, and moving out of your apartment. One major concern that many students express is the return of their security deposit. The requirements for return of your deposit are outlined in the security deposit section of your lease. These requirements are usually as follows:

1. Give written notice of intent to vacate at least 30 days prior to the ending date of the lease.
2. Occupy the unit for the entire lease term.
3. Clean the apartment in accordance with the move-out cleaning instructions.
4. Pay all rent according to the terms of lease.
5. Give the manager your forwarding address in writing.

You must fulfill all of these requirements for your security deposit to be refunded. When you are ready to move out, make an appointment with the manager to jointly inspect the apartment and compare the condition of the unit with the Move-In Condition Inventory form that you completed at the beginning of your lease term. Have the manager sign and date the Move-Out Condition Inventory form. Keep a copy for your records. If you feel there may be a discrepancy, you may also want to take photographs to prove the apartment's condition. The owner is required by law to return your security deposit within 30 days or to provide you with an itemized list of deductions. If your deposit or the list of itemized deductions is not received within 30 days, notify your owner/manager and request an explanation. If you need information or assistance, contact the Off Campus Center or the Students' Legal Advisors.

*Remember that you cannot use your deposit as your last month's rent unless this is provided for in your lease or you have a written agreement from your owner or manager.

THE AGGIE GUIDE TO CONQUERING YOUR FINALS

How do you study... take tests... deal with stress during exam times? Have you finalized your living plans for next semester? These are common concerns at the end of each semester, so the Off Campus Center and the Student Counseling Service have prepared a pamphlet to assist you during this stressful time. Included in "The Aggie Guide to Conquering Your Finals" are suggestions related to finding roommates, getting security deposits returned, stress management, preparation for exams, and how to take exams. Copies of this guide may be obtained in the Off Campus Center, Student Counseling Service, A.P. Beutel Health Center, MSC Bookstore, MSC Cafeteria, Sterling C. Evans Library, and the Student Activities Office in the Pavilion.

Summer Shuttle Bus Service

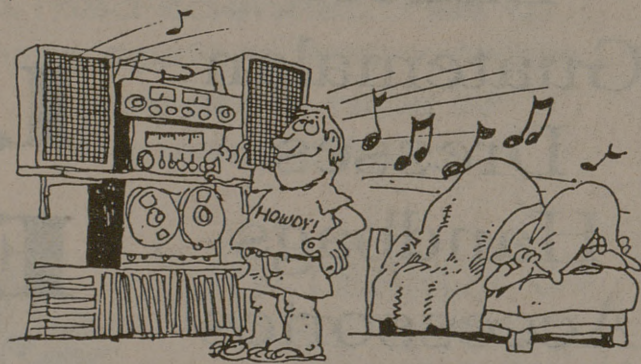

The following apartment complexes are chartering buses from the University in order to provide summer bus service to their tenants. The properties listed in each group will comprise one route. Bus passes may be obtained through the apartment managers.

ROOMMATE NEEDED?

Many of you are probably trying to finalize your housing and roommate plans before the end of the semester. The Off Campus Center's Roommate Referral Service is in full swing for the summer and fall semesters. Whether you have housing and need roommates, or need both housing and roommates, the OCC files will be helpful to you. The Center is also sponsoring roommate sessions where you can meet people who are seeking roommates. The sessions will be held on May 3, 7, 8, & 9 at 2:00pm in 402 Rudder Tower. The OCC staff won't attempt to "match" you with someone, but we will provide you with referrals and any other assistance you may need. So, don't wait until the summer months: Come by the OCC and make use of the card files, and make plans to attend a roommate session.

Loupots Off Campus Corner is sponsored by Loupots Book Store at Northgate as a service to Texas A&M off campus students. Stories and art work are provided by the staff of the Off Campus Center.

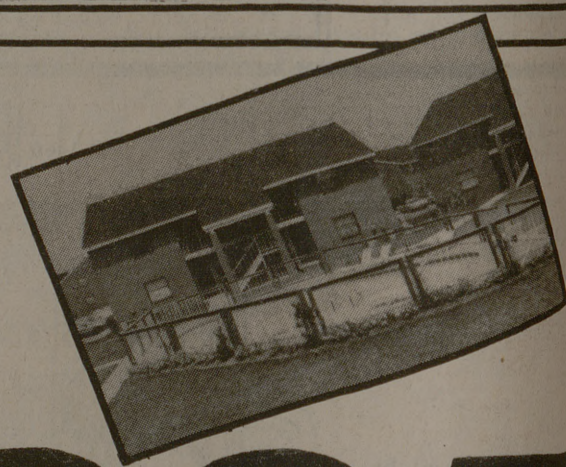

Hey Ags! Ol' Army Lou, Class of '32, wants you to know that he understands the special parking concerns of off campus students. As a special service to customers of Loupot's Bookstore, a parking lot is available behind the Northgate Merchants. When shopping in Loupot's for textbooks, t-shirts, or gifts be sure to utilize this convenient parking.

Are you having trouble finding someone to buy that tattered chemistry text? Well, your search is over! Loupot's pays premium prices for good used books and will also buy those hard-to-sell books. Whether you have used books to sell or you are looking for a new or used book to buy, Loupot's Bookstore at Northgate is the traditional place for Aggies to shop.
