

Kids get high off marker

United Press International
AUSTIN — The Sakura Outliner, a marker pen manufactured in Japan, is being recalled in Texas because school children are breathing the vapors to get high.

Dan Sowards, chief of the Texas Health Department's Product Safety Program, said the pen contains enough of the chemical xylene to require warning and first aid statements under state law.

The hazards include combustibility, explosive potential, breathing the vapors and ingestion.

A statement from the Health Department said teachers and parents should be "alert to the possible abuse of these pens by children who cup their hands to concentrate these vapors."

Sowards advised parents to check their children's school supplies for the markers, which come in eight colors.

The pen is manufactured by the Sakura Color Products Corp. of Japan and is distributed by the Ogawa Company, Inc., of Gardena, Calif.

Tornado hits Montgomery; leaves 5 dead, 30 injured

United Press International
MONTGOMERY, Ala. — A tornado roared across a highway Thursday, hurling 30 cars into trees and a roadside swamp, and then crashed into a residential area. At least five people were killed and 30 injured.

A task force of about 40 officers probed the swampy area off the four-lane Northern Bypass highway with sticks, trying to determine if bodies were thrown into the morass.

Mark Miller of the Alabama Emergency Management Agency said that "confusion on the reports from the scene" had led him to announce earlier that seven were dead. He said "we've settled on known deaths as five" — four on the highway and one in a mobile home in the residential area.

Spokesmen said 17 people were taken to Baptist Medical Center and 13 to Jackson Hospital.

"The injuries range from lacerations and bumps and bruises to very serious injuries," said Baptist spokesman Gene Hannah. "We've got three patients in surgery. We've got one patient who had a coronary."

The tornado struck the highway about 7 a.m. Thursday, shortly before rush hour.

Police estimated 30 cars were thrown off the road, some of them into the swamp on either side of the interstate. Dozens of trees on either side of the road were snapped. Pieces of a steel girder that held a highway sign were strewn across the open area.

Ronald Jackson, 21, said he was driving down Northern Bypass when "the wind picked up and things started blowing around. Just before we pulled over I saw it coming from the southwest. I was scared as hell."

Jackson, who suffered contusions and lacerations, said his car was "turned over in the ditch and picked up and dropped again."

"I was screaming 'stop! stop!'" he said. He said cars in trees and in ditches the tornado passed.

"It got real dark and I noticed everybody pulling over, and it looked like we were going to get real bad," he said. "I pulled right off the road. The next thing I knew I turned me over, too."

He said his tanker was over, then blown in the direction and pushed up a hill.

Alliance vows to picket 'fat cats'

United Press International
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A dozen members of Alliance for Progress '84 vowed to picket today outside a $1,000-a-plate breakfast for Vice President George Bush, saying "fat cats should spend the money to help the poor.

"We see something wrong with an administration that with one hand has $1,000 breakfasts for the fat cats while with the other hand it denies school lunches to three million children cut from the school lunch program since 1981," said John Mass, county chairman of Arkansas Community Organizations for Reform Now.

The Alliance members — outnumbered by reporters and photographers at a downtown rally Thursday — said they would be at the Old State House at 6:45 a.m. so Bush would see their protest.

"Poor people could never attend this breakfast," said Mary Bolden of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. "They don't see $1,000 in a month — in many cases in two months."

The breakfast is a fund-raiser for Republican Congressman Ed Bethune, who is running against incumbent Sen. Pryor, D-Ark., in what is expected to be the state's hottest race.

About 125 tickets have been sold to the breakfast, an aide said.

Bush later will dedicate Veterans Administration Hospital named for the late Sen. McClellan, D-Ark.

The hospital is a goal of the Alliance members, but it never would have been funded if Reagan had been in office when it was planned.

"We do not believe the Reagan-Bush administration should attempt to take credit for a new VA hospital in Little Rock — years in the making — when their actions in Washington are designed to harm the veterans this hospital is intended to help," Mass said.

The group also calls for cutting education funds and practicing what it called "massive socialist weapons merchants."

The Alliance's stated purpose is to "register, educate and mobilize low-income voters."

It includes Acorn, the CIO, the Arkansas Education Association, the Arkansas Center, the NAACP, churches and the pro-campaigns of Walter Mondale and Jesse Jackson.
