Gandhi, others, sign statement

Leaders urge arms halt

United Press International

The leaders of six nations from India to Argentina called on the United States, the Soviet Union and the other nuclear powers Tuesday to reverse the arms race and stop the "rush toward global suicide."

The statement was signed by India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, President Miguel de la Madrid of Mexico, President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, Prime Minister Olaf Palme of Sweden, Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu of Greece and Argentine President Raul Alfonsin.

"We urge, as a necessary first step, the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as the United Kingdom, France and China, to halt all testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons and their delivery systems to be immediately followed by substantial reductions in nuclear forces," the statement said.

"Today, the survival of humankind is in jeopardy," said the statement. "The rush toward global suicide must be stopped and then reversed."

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Pope John Paul II were expected to issue back-up statements to the plea.

U.N. ambassadors from the six countries presented the statement in New York to the mission chiefs of the five nuclear powers.

U.S.-Soviet talks on nuclear arms control were stymied last year when the Russians walked out of two sets of negotiations in Geneva because of the deployment of new American nuclear missiles in western Europe.

"Neither the American people nor the Soviet people want war. I think, by and large, millions all over the world want peace and to be able to live their lives in harmonious conditions," Gandhi said in an interview with NBC's Today Show.

Soldiers attacked on Salvadoran road

United Press International

Salvadoran leftist guerrillas claimed Tuesday that they ambushed a three-truck convoy of the U.S.-backed army, killing 25 soldiers and wounding 15 others. The army immediately denied the assertion.

In Nicaragua, the government said it crushed an attack by CIA-supported insurgents in the central province of Matagalpa and in other northern regions, killing 41 rebels, while 15 of its soldiers were slain.

The American Catholic Conference sent a letter to the Honduran government asking it to reconsider relocating the 12,000 Salvadoran war refugees who are living in camps near the Honduran-Salvadoran border.

Honduras announced last November its decision to relocate the refugees to Olanchito, a good agricultural zone, 120 miles north of Tegucigalpa, saying they would have better living conditions and security away from the frontier.

A Defense Ministry spokesman labeled the claim by the Salvadoran guerrillas "completely false." Military officials at the Third Infantry Brigade in San Miguel, where the troops are stationed, were unavailable for comment.

Funeral home operators in San Miguel who normally handle army burials said they had received no corpses nor had they been contacted by military officials.

The clandestine Salvadoran Radio Venceremos claimed one vehicle of the three-truck convoy was destroyed in the ambush, carried out with mines and rifle fire against a specially trained "hunter battalion" that was withdrawing from a military sweep.

It said the elite rebel Rafael Arce Zablaj Brigade carried out the attack on a road between Ciudad Barrios and Chapeltique, two towns 63 miles east of San Salvador.

It claimed 25 soldiers were killed and 15 others injured. It gave no rebel casualty figures.

A soldier stationed in Ciudad Barrios and reached by telephone said a 30-minute fire-fight occurred Monday between infantrymen on foot and rebels south of the town but no casualties were recorded.

Arabia

Saudis to use $1 billion to improve air defenses

United Press International

Saudi Arabia, armed with a U.S. offer to protect oil tankers in the Persian Gulf against Iranian air strikes, said Tuesday it was beefing up its air defenses with $1 billion in improvements.

Iran warned the United States and its allies against attempting to support Iraq and the Western allies in the Gulf region, saying it would "give a crushing response" to such efforts, according to the Islamic Republic News Agency.

The announcement coincided with a Japanese appeal to Iran and Iraq to stop attacking civilian oil tankers in the Persian Gulf and a pledge of continued efforts to end the Gulf War.

Foreign Ministry officials in Tokyo said.

The officials said the appeal was made by Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe in a two-hour meeting with an Arab League mission now in Tokyo, which includes the foreign ministers of Iraq and Kuwait.

Riyadh's $1 billion system will use electronic equipment manufactured in Saudi Arabia and financed partly by foreign money, sources said. It was not described further and the source of the funds was not identified.

It was believed the system will be linked to American AWACS aircraft stationed in Saudi Arabia.

In Washington, officials said they had received no request from the Gulf countries for U.S. warplanes to move to Gulf airbases to provide air cover for the oil tankers. They said no such request was expected at the present time.

The officials said President Reagan reaffirmed a pledge to protect the strategic waterway in a letter to Saudi ruler King Fahd saying the United States would discuss any requests for military assistance from Gulf nations.

Richard Murphy, assistant secretary of state for the Near East, went to Riyadh to deliver the letter.

There was no immediate Saudi reaction but Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki

Yamani said Monday he did not think the United States should intervene militarily in the Gulf as it might provoke a confrontation with Moscow.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry condemned what it called the United States and its allies "desperately searching for a solution hoping to save (Iranian President) Saddam (Hussein) their own interests and those of their agents in the region," Tehran news agency reported.

Iran has repeatedly said it will close all oil routes in the Gulf if Iraq continued attacking ships loading oil from Iraq. Warplanes have damaged several oil tankers in recent weeks.
