One game to decide series

Boston, L.A. vow war

United Press International
BOSTON — The dream series boils down to a dream game, and the Celtics vow it will be a nightmare — for the Lakers.

Tuesday at 8 p.m., Game 7 of the NBA championship series brings Los Angeles Lakers back to Boston Garden for the season finale.

"It will be warfare," said Celtics forward Cedric Maxwell. "Everybody's back is against the wall. We're going to get down in the trenches and win it."

Because a heat wave in New England has remained stationary, Game 7 may be a repeat of Game 5's steambath in which temperatures hit the mid-90s at the Garden, which has no air conditioning.

The Lakers and 37-year-old Kareem Abdul-Jabbar were most affected by Friday night's heat and the stifling humidity indoors, as Boston scored a 121-103 victory.

"I hope it's 100 degrees on Tuesday," said Celtics sixth man Kevin McHale after LA evened the series Sunday at The Forum in Inglewood, Calif., with a 119-108 comeback victory. "We've got to come back and be strong, but the fans will be behind us 110 percent."

In the first quarter of Game 6, James Worthy shoved Maxwell into the crowd on a fast-break attempt. The move was seen by Boston as evening the score, as McHale had leveled Los Angeles forward Kurt Rambis in a similar situation in Game 4.

"They retaliated for what we did the other day," Maxwell said. "And they wanted to get the crowd into the game early. But we're a physical team. We'll get him (Worthy) back in Boston."

Worthy agrees with Maxwell's evaluation of Game 7.

"It will be an all-out war," he said. "The crowd won't be an advantage; the heat will have no effect. It's what we play for all year, and we'll be ready."

Guard Magic Johnson, tagged as the goat for his play in LA's two overtime losses, said the Lakers hadn't given up because they are winners.

"When you're a loser, you end up losing, but we don't have those thoughts in our head," Johnson said. "We feel good and confident that we can go into Boston and win."

The Lakers took control of Game 6 in the third quarter when they established their running game and set a faster tempo than Boston is comfortable with.

"Whoever controls the tempo of the (seventh) game and plays it their way will win," said Johnson, whose total of 80 assists has set a record for a championship series. The record of 73 was previously held by Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks.

Johnson has been slightly hampered by tendinitis in his left knee through the finals. Lakers backup center Bob McAdoo is likely not to play Tuesday night because of a strained Achilles tendon.

"We know what we've got to do come Tuesday," McHale said. "We have to play a very poised game. We need to scrap and fight, and when they get those runs, we've just got to hang on."

Fishel takes out anger on Texas

United Press International
OMAHA, Neb. — Major League Baseball held its annual free-agent draft one week too early for Cal State-Fullerton outfielder John Fishel and one week too late for the defending NCAA champion Texas Longhorns.

Inspired by his lowly selection in the 19th round by the Oakland A's earlier in the week, Fishel flogged the 1984 College World Series tournament field with his bat to carry Fullerton to its second NCAA title in six years under Manager Augie Garrido.

Fishel batted .520 with a tournament record-tying 13 hits in 25 at-bats as the Titans rebounded from a second-round 6-4 loss to Texas to eliminate traditional powers Miami, Arizona State and Oklahoma State in order before downing the Longhorns, 3-1, in the title game Sunday night.

Fishel knocked in four runs in the 10-2 victory over Oklahoma State and also collected two homers in Fullerton's six games in Omaha. He shared the tournament lead in both runs (6) and RBI (10) to earn acclaim as the most outstanding performer of the 1984 Series in a vote of the media.

Fishel hit a team-leading .378 for the Titans in this his junior season with 16 home runs, 28 stolen bases and 88 RBI. He hit .332 as a sophomore in 1983 and .313 as a freshman in 1982 after turning down a bonus to sign with the New York Yankees out of high school.

Fishel thought he had substantially improved his market value for a potential major-league career during his three-year stay on the Fullerton campus but was deflated to learn he lasted until the 19th and final round of baseball's June 5 draft.

"He was disappointed and in the tank after the draft," Garrido said. "He turned down something like $50,000 out of high school and in three years I've turned him into a 19th round draft pick. But he was able to put his negative feelings in the right place and concentrate on the team."

AL, NL name best players

NEW YORK — Outfielder Jim Rice, who hit .577 (15-for-26) and slugged 1.038 for the Boston Red Sox, Monday was named the American League's Player of the Week.

Rice's 27 total bases during the week included three doubles and three home runs; he scored eight runs and walked three times. With men in scoring position, he hit .647 (11-for-17) and he hit safely in six of seven games.

Other contenders for the award were Texas starter Charlie Hough, who won two games and struck out 13, and Chicago designated hitter Greg Luzinski, who hit back-to-back grand-slams.

And in the national league, reliever Jesse Orosco, who posted saves in each of his three appearances to spark the New York Mets to six straight victories, Monday was named the National League's Player of the Week.

Rangers complete sweep of A's

United Press International
ARLINGTON — Pete O'Brien ripped three hits, including a two-run homer, and Larry Parrish drove in two runs Monday night to help the Texas Rangers complete a four-game sweep of the Oakland A's with a 6-3 victory.

Oakland has now lost five straight and 11 consecutive games at Arlington Stadium, dating back to Sept. 1982. They have also lost 14 of their last 17 on the road.

O'Brien gave Texas a 4-3 lead and chased starter Steve McCatty, 3-5, with his fifth homer in the sixth inning. Parrish drew a leadoff walk before O'Brien ripped his second homer in two nights into the right field seats. O'Brien has driven in the game-winning run in three of the Rangers' last four victories.

Texas added a pair of insurance runs to make it 6-3 in the seventh on RBI singles by Parrish and Gary Ward. The Rangers scored in the first inning to make it 2-1 on a two-out RBI double by Parrish and closed the gap to 3-2 in the fifth on an RBI single by Curtis Wilkerson, who had three hits.

In other games around the American League, Lou Whitaker belted a two-run homer in the fourth inning Monday night to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays for their fifth triumph in their last six games.

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore defeated Milwaukee 3-1, Boston downed New York 9-6 and Texas beat Oakland 6-3.

In National League games, San Francisco beat Los Angeles 8-4, Montreal edged Chicago 2-1, St. Louis topped Philadelphia 6-4 and New York defeated Pittsburgh 3-1.

In a later game, Cincinnati was at Houston.
