Senator advocates increase in oil reserve

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and a consumer organization joined forces Tuesday to push for doubling the proposed size of the national oil reserve.

At a joint news conference, the Consumer Federation of America issued its own study that substantiated Bradley's contention that a bigger Strategic Petroleum Reserve is economically justified and in the national interest.

The reserve, begun in the mid-1970s after the Arab oil embargo, now has about 400 million barrels of oil and is scheduled to eventually reach 750 million barrels. It is stored in huge underground salt caverns in Texas and Louisiana.

Bradley, who recently introduced a comprehensive emergency preparedness plan to the Senate Energy Committee, and the consumer federation, composed of more than 200
