Secret Six to perform at Dr. G's

By ROBIN BLACK
 Senior Staff Writer

Secret Six — which bills itself as a dance band — will perform tonight at Dr. G's. The Austin band has a style more complex than simple dance music, though — a style that's a kind of new-wave swing.

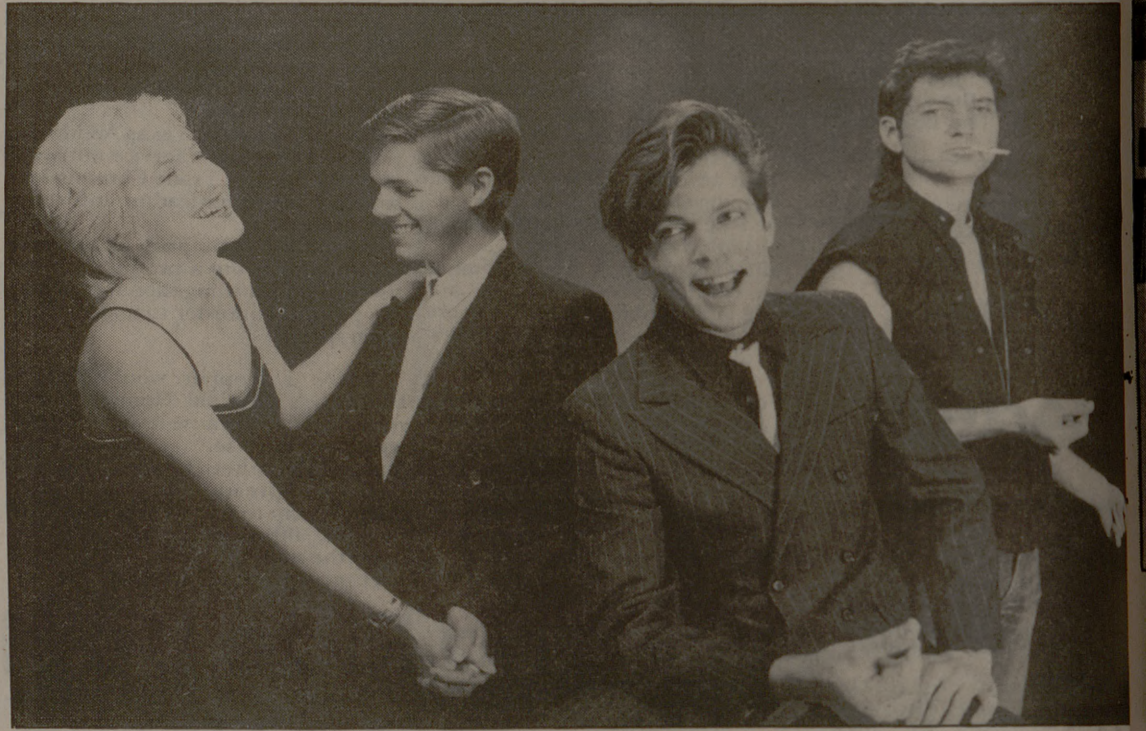

Jesse Sublett, lead singer and creator of Secret Six, is also known as the key member of the Skunks — also Austin-based. The Skunks captured national attention six years ago and sparked widespread interest in the Texas new music scene, predating current state successes such as Joe "King" Carrasco.

Sublett dissolved the Skunks in February 1983 after he grew dissatisfied with the direction the band was taking and formed Secret Six two months later.

Sublett said he knew in advance what he wanted in a band, so he worked up a basic format and auditioned musicians for the parts he needed. He got the band together and it debuted in Austin in early May 1983.

Since then the band has been very successful in Austin as well as in Houston and Dallas, playing to crowded clubs and receiving very complimentary reviews. The band has not been so lucky in College Station, however, and this is something that has Sublett puzzled.

"I can't explain why we haven't achieved the same success here that we have in Dallas or Austin," he said. "Maybe College Station is just off the beaten path."

Secret Six

Twelve record companies have come into Austin in the past year to scout out Secret Six's potential, and that interest has led to a contract with Elektra Records.

Secret Six will be included on an album with nine other bands that Elektra will release this fall highlighting Texas bands and music.

Sublett said nothing concrete has been negotiated yet.

The band will play at Dr. G's around 9 p.m. tonight and the are $4.

Premiere Players to present the comedy 'The Orphans'

By KAREN GILES
 Reporter

The Premiere Players, a summer performing group made up of high school students, will present a comedy, "The Orphans" by James Pridoux, at 8 p.m. tonight through Friday in Rudder Forum.

Members of the Premiere Players, sponsored by the Texas A&M Theater Arts program, are 10 high school students from Bryan-College Station. They were selected through auditions by the play's director, Shawn Brown. Six are cast members and four help out backstage with props, lighting and sound effects.

"The Orphans" is the story of Lily and Katherine Spangler, two eccentric old ladies, who inherit $6 million after their parents' death on the Titanic. The Spangler sisters protect themselves and their money from everything around them by staying in their small apartment.

"The conflict arises when a charming young man tries to swindle the money from the old ladies, when he tells them he's their relative," Brown, a Texas A&M theater arts graduate, said.

Brown said the idea of Premier Players originated in 1968 when Robert Wenck, a Texas A&M theater arts professor, decided that a summer theater was needed for high school students.

Stage manager John Luscombe,

16, an A&M Consolidated High School student said he's not worried about stage fright, because he has three lines.

"But my job as stage manager is 10 times more demanding than the role I've ever done," he said.

Karen Linnstaedter, 15, an A&M Consolidated High School student said she worked on props, and surprised at how hard it was to do many of them.

Tickets are $1.50 for students and $2.50 for non-students in MSC Box Office, and can be purchased in advance.

U.S. Census Bureau says women paid less

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Women are not only paid considerably less than men but have less work experience because they are three times as likely to interrupt their careers to tend to family matters, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

John McNeil, one of the authors of the report, said the survey showed, "Women get into jobs where experience is not a very important factor. You can describe them as dead-end jobs."

The report said 72 percent of women who have ever worked exper-perienced a career interruption of six months or longer, compared to 26 percent of males.

Men who were surveyed spent only about 2 percent of their potential work years away from the labor force, compared with about 23 percent for women.

The Commerce Department Census Bureau report was based on a 1979 survey of some 10,000 households.

The report showed that women in the study earned an average of $4.40 per hour, while men earned $6.90.
