AGGIES

"Doug's not a proven product yet, but he's got all the ability in the world," Ruel said. "I really believe that if Doug will continue to work hard like he has been, he's got a great future. He's shown all the signs of being a tremendous football player."

Last year's starting center, senior Matt Darwin (6-5, 258, Houston), will move to right guard for '84, leaving freshman Matt Wilson (6-5, 261, Spring) and senior Joe Velasquez (6-3, 253, Houston) to battle for the starting job.

"Matt (Wilson) is a young offensive lineman who's got a lot of talent and he showed some promise early in spring," Ruel said. "Joe Velasquez is a senior who's got some experience and is just a tough young man. He's got more game experience because he's been our long snapper on punts."

With Darwin making the move to right guard, Ruel is confident Darwin should be able to excel at his new position.

"It (the position change) frees Matt (Darwin) up," Ruel said. "Matt was an excellent center, in fact, he was recognized as one of the better centers in the league. But this change will prove to the rest of the league what kind of player he is."

Darwin is no stranger to the offensive line. In his four years at A&M, he's played every position possible and Ruel jokingly admits that that kind of experience could be an asset even after Darwin graduates.

"When he (Darwin) gets finished his senior year, I'm going to let him become a coach," Ruel said.

Also on the offensive line, returning starters Ken Reeves (6-6, 270, Pittsburg) and Nate Steadman (6-5, 264, Houston) will swap positions, with Reeves moving to left tackle and Steadman moving to guard.

According to Ruel, Aggie Assistant Coach George Pugh has made the tight end position one of A&M's strong points with the development of players like sophomore Duncan Webb, red-shirt freshman Sylvester Morgan, senior Mark Lewis and All-SWC performer Rich Siler.

"Mark has shown some greatness in games," he said. "Before he got hurt, he proved to us he could play. He's got good speed, good size and good hands. That's everything you're looking for in a tight end."

On defense, all the Ags wanted to find during spring camp were three linebackers to fill the vacancies left by Billy Cannon, Jeff Paine and Jerry Bullitt.

stead) and Ken Ford (6-3, 204, Wharton) moved from positions in the secondary to starters at inside linebacker in the Ags' 3-4 defense.

Texas A&M Defensive Coordinator R.C. Slocum knows his linebackers may be inexperienced, but he's satisfied with their results in fall camp.

"I've been extremely pleased with the way those changes worked out," Slocum said. "They're showing a lot of promise, but I'll say at this stage because we haven't played those guys (Holland and Ford), we've got one guy at inside linebacker, senior Mike Ashley, that has played the position."

Slocum said his main concern about Ford and Holland is their lack of experience, but he's confident they'll respond under pressure.

"Those guys (Ford and Holland) are both, you might say, underdogs coming from the secondary and there not big, physical linemen, but they've got more quality so that should balance things out."
