Post office pays tribute to Jordan

United Press International

HOUSTON — More than 500 people turned out Monday to hear former Congresswoman Barbara Jordan describe the naming of the downtown post office in her honor as "the highest tribute that can be paid to any living human being."

Mayor Kathy Whitmire also read a City Council resolution proclaiming Monday as Barbara Jordan Day in Houston. Postmaster General William Bolger told the crowd that no matter where the main Houston post office is located in the future, it will be known as the Barbara Jordan Building.

Speaking from a wheelchair, Jordan said she turned to the Bible when she had difficulty defining the honor. Quoting from Matthew 13:57, Jordan said, "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country and in his own house."

"If knowing me you still honor me in this way... then this is the highest tribute that can be paid to any living human being," she said. "I'm glad you're doing this. I like it. I like it a lot."

She was praised by Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, as paving the way for other black and Hispanic politicians. Leland, who now represents the 18th Congressional District served by Jordan, sponsored the resolution that was unanimously approved by the U.S. House to name the building after her.

Leland said the district still is referred to as Barbara Jordan's district and he finds it difficult to walk in her footsteps.

Jordan, now a professor at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, said she would not run for Congress again, then drew laughter and applause when she added - from the 18th District.

"So many things are happening for women these days in politics. We have (Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine) Ferraro — she may be paving the way," Jordan said.

Noting that she served six years in the Texas Senate, six years in Congress and will be at the university six years in January, Jordan said, "There's no telling what the next six years will bring."

Preacher's wife in Houston found guilty of prostitution

United Press International

HOUSTON — A preacher's wife pleaded guilty Monday in state district court to one misdemeanor charge of promotion of prostitution and was found guilty in another court of a previous prostitution charge.

Josephine Elizabeth Power received a sentence of three days in jail and was fined $750 after pleading guilty. However, a court spokeswoman said she also received credit for two days in jail and will not spend any additional time behind bars.

In another courtroom, Judge Donald Shipley found Power guilty of a prior charge of prostitution. Power had been ordered in January 1982 to report to a probation officer for six years, even though she never had been found guilty of the charge.

She was sentenced to 10 years probation and ordered to pay a $2,000 fine and $5 a month to the Crime Stoppers program for the duration of her probation.

Power was arrested March 20 at Holiday Inn in north Harris County.

Her husband, the Rev. Lark Jackson Power, Jr., was taken into custody the same day as he emerged from his weekly Rotary Club meeting at the hotel. Power, the pastor of the independent Houston Baptist Temple in Spring, was found guilty last month of aggravated assault on a sheriff's deputy in an incident that occurred later that day.
