Cadet

ministered cardio pulmonary resuscitation on the scene. Goodrich was taken to St. Joseph Hospital, where he died after almost 12 hours on life-support machines. Preliminary autopsy results listed heat stroke as the cause of Goodrich's death.

Dr. Claude Goswick, director of A.P. Beutel Health Center, said Goodrich had been treated at the center Wednesday for upper respiratory problems. Goodrich was given routine drugs — erythromycin, an antibiotic, and a decongestant antihistamine, Goswick said.

Dr. Anun Amin, Goodrich's physician at St. Joseph Hospital, said Goodrich had been taking medication every other day for mild hypertension. However, both Goswick and Amin said none of these medications should have contributed to Goodrich's collapse.

Separate investigations into the circumstances surrounding Goodrich's death are being conducted by Col. Donald Burton, Corps commandant; Dr. John Koldus, vice president of student services; and Bob Wiatt, director of security and traffic.

Burton said Friday that his investigation began when Goodrich's case was first reported. Burton said he is investigating the Corps' physical training program. All forms of physical training have been suspended until the investigation is finished, he said.

"We have, with the cadet commanders, decided to suspend all forms of physical training temporarily until we have a good opportunity to review exactly the controls, the planning and the organization of all forms of physical training in the corps," Burton said.

Corps physical training should resume some time this week, Burton said.

No discipline has been taken against the students involved in Goodrich's death, Burton said. Punishment from the commandant's office will not be decided until all investigations are complete, he said.

"We cannot take action when there may be higher action mandated," Burton said.

Koldus said Friday that the findings of his investigation may be reported to a student affairs committee hearing some time this week. Koldus said his investigation was concerned with finding out how prominent the abuse of authority is among cadets.

The results of the University Police investigation into Goodrich's death will be kept secret until they are released to a grand jury Brazos County Grand Jury.

Wiatt said the grand jury will probably be asked to decide whether the students involved in the circumstances surrounding Goodrich's death will face criminal charges. These students may face charges ranging from involuntary manslaughter to criminally negligent homicide, he said.

Involuntary manslaughter (recklessly causing someone's death) is a third-degree felony, punishable by two to 10 years in prison and a fine of up to $5000. Criminally negligent homicide (causing a death through negligence) is a Class A misdemeanor, with punishment of up to one year in prison and a fine of up to $2000.

Members of the Corps wore black armbands to symbolize their state of mourning during the march-in to Kyle Field before the Texas A&M - University of Texas at El Paso game Saturday. Cadets entered the stadium to the sound of muffled drums as opposed to the traditional Aggie War Hymn and military music usually played by the Aggie Band.

Goodrich is survived by his parents, Ward and Betty Goodrich; two brothers, Robert and Kenneth Goodrich; a sister, Susan Wingert; and his grandparents, Lt. Col. (ret) and Mrs. Wirt P. Sarley, and Grace Goodrich. A reception and memorial service will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesday at Browncroft Community Church in Webster.

U.S. rejects words of Soviet leader

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration, while reading some elation into the tea leaves, Sunday dismissed as "wholly familiar and important" Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko's latest criticism of U.S. arms talk policy.

The American reaction followed a familiar pattern in the diplomatic probing conducted by the White House and the Kremlin in the nearly two years since superpower arms talks collapsed.

Robert Sims, deputy White House press secretary, said Sunday that U.S. officials are carefully studying Chernenko's comments reported Saturday by Tass — particularly his declaration of "readiness to negotiate." But, Sims said, they do not seem to go beyond previous statements of hope for dialogue in areas other than nuclear weapons talks.

Sims' comments paralleled those in a State Department statement, which said Chernenko's "assessment of U.S. policy is unfortunately both wholly familiar and wholly false" — an apparent reference to his accusation that the Reagan administration is seeking global military superiority.

"They are now talking about a crusade not only against socialism, but actually the entire world," Chernenko said. "Obsessed by force, they are simply losing a sense of reality."

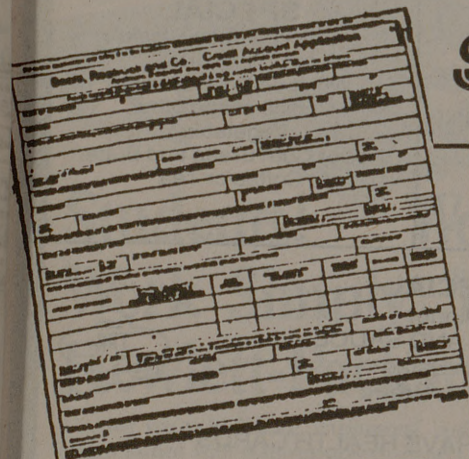

Chernenko, who has not been seen publicly since mid-July, also was quoted by official Soviet media Sunday as saying Moscow's proposal for negotiations to ban the militarization of space was spoiled by President Reagan's bid to include discussion of curbing nuclear weapons on Earth.

On the space talks, Sims said the Soviets refused to take yes for an answer in rejecting Reagan's call for also including strategic and medium-range nuclear weapons.

However, the State Department said, "We welcome Chernenko's statement that the Soviet Union is also in favor of serious and specific negotiations. We are ready to return to the Geneva negotiations on START and INF the moment the Soviet Union declares its willingness to join us."

The two sets of Geneva talks ended late last year following the deployment in Western Europe of new U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise nuclear missiles.

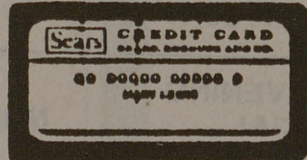

Chernenko said, "I want to reaffirm with all certainty our readiness for dialogue, for honest and serious talks aimed at finding accords that take into account the security and interests of all countries and peoples."
