defeated Greg Holmes, the 1983 NCAA champion, 7-6, 6-3, 6-1; and Gomez swept past No. 12 Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 7-6, 6-1.

Lendl had his serve broken only once by Jarryd, and at that point he already was up 4-1. Later, wearing a white Wayne Gretzky practice jersey with the number 99, he said of himself, "I feel like I'm newly born right now. I feel I have new energy and new desire to play."

Gerulaitis had a set point at 6-5 in the second-set tie-break against Gomez, and when he blew it 10-8 he seemed to lose heart. He was assessed a code violation for abuse of officials on the final point of the tie-break, and then fell behind 4-0 in the third set.

Gomez meets Lendl in the quarterfinals.

Cash, a semifinalist at Wimbledon, fought back from a 3-5 deficit and overcame two set points in the opening set, taking the tie-break from Holmes 7-5 on a net-cord. The 19-year-old Australian has yet to drop a set in four matches.

Australian Wendy Turnbull, the No. 13 seed, easily defeated No. 8 Claudia Kohde of West Germany 6-3, 6-1, and No. 14 Carling Bassett of Canada advanced with a 6-1, 6-1 rout of Petra Delhees Jauch of Switzerland.

Navratilova opened her Center Court match with a service break at love, and she was able to nurse that advantage through the set. In the second set she broke in the third game and made that stand.

"With her it usually is tough," Navratilova said of Potter, "but I never felt threatened on my serve. I'm glad I had a chance to play a tough serve-and-volleyer like her."

Evert Lloyd, who had dropped only one set in eight previous meetings with Gadusek, appeared in deep trouble when she dropped her first three games.

The second seed came back to win the next four games but then double-faulted twice in the eighth game to allow Gadusek to break back to 4-4. From that point, though, Evert Lloyd was in total control, sweeping the last eight games.

"I thought that I played poorly the first three games," she said. "This is what I needed. I needed to play a baseliner. She took me by surprise. She started out consistent and I made a lot of mistakes the first three games."

"Against a better player I would have been in more trouble. I knew against Bonnie that as soon as I found my rhythm I'd come back."

Seahawks shutout punchless Browns

United Press International

Most NFL clubs have never played a regular-season game on Monday afternoon. The Cleveland Browns still haven't.

Dave Krieg, who quarterbacked Seattle to its initial playoff appearance last season, threw three touchdown passes Monday in the Kingdom. This was enough to spark the Seahawks to a 33-0 rout of Cleveland in a season-opener, handing the Browns their first shutout since 1977.

The game was switched from its original Sunday date to 4 p.m. PDT Monday because of a scheduling conflict with the Seattle Mariners.

The decision may have been costly for Seattle, however. Running back Curt Warner, who led the AFC in rushing last year as a rookie, was helped off the field in the second quarter with an injured right knee and surgery may be needed.

Krieg fired scoring passes of 5 yards to Mike Tice in the first quarter, 7 yards to Paul Johns in the second period and 34 yards to rookie Daryl Turner in the third quarter. Seattle's opportunistic defense and special teams were equally responsible for giving the Seahawks their first victory in a season-opener in the club's history.

Just as they did all last season, the Seahawks took advantage of numerous turnovers and sacks. Cleveland lost three fumbles, was intercepted twice and suffered seven sacks.

Cleveland quarterback Paul McDonald, who inherited the starting position after Brian Sipe's defection to the USFL, was just 8-of-27 for 114 yards before he was replaced in the final quarter by Tom Flick.

Krieg connected on 14-of-28 passes for 179 yards and the three touchdowns before giving way to Jim Zorn in the scoreless final period.

Norm Johnson added field goals of 22, 50, 41 and 24 yards to account for the rest of Seattle's scoring.

In a Monday night game, Dallas was at the Los Angeles Rams in a rematch of an NFC playoff game last year.

On Sunday, it was the Los Angeles Raiders 24, Houston 14; Atlanta 36,

New Orleans 28; Kansas City 37, Pittsburgh 27; New England 21, Buffalo 17; the New York Giants 28, Philadelphia 27; Green Bay 24, St. Louis 23; San Diego 42, Minnesota 13; San Francisco 30, Detroit 27; Chicago 34, Tampa Bay 14; Denver 20, Cincinnati 17; the New York Jets 23, Indianapolis 14; and Miami 35, Washington 17.

Dan Marino, showing no effects from a pre-season finger injury, passed for 311 yards and five touchdowns to pace Miami's triumph over Washington. The second-year quarterback hit 21-of-28 passes, including TD throws of 26 and 74 yards to Mark Dupler, who caught six passes for 178 yards. Miami snapped Washington's nine-game winning streak at home and became the only visiting team other than Dallas to win at RFK in the past 22 games.

Dan Fouts threw two TD passes to Wes Chandler and Pete Johnson scored on two short runs to power San Diego to a win. Fouts, hampered last year with a strained rotator cuff, showed no ill-effects as he hit 21-of-28 passes for 292 yards, including TDs of 20 and 17 yards to Chandler. It was the second worst defeat in the Vikings' history and spoiled coach Les Steckel's debut, ironically on "Bud Grant Day" in which the 17-year former coach was honored.

Gerald Riggs, making his first pro start, ran for a team-record 202 yards and two TDs in an Atlanta victory. Steve Bartkowski threw TD passes of 50 and 5 yards. Ex-New York Jet Richard Todd, making his first start for New Orleans, hit 16-of-32 passes for 186 yards, but was sacked five times and threw three interceptions. George Rogers had 102 yards, including TD runs of 4 and 3 yards, to become the Saints' all-time leading rusher, passing Chuck Muncie.

Phil Simms threw for 409 yards and four TDs to carry the Giants over Philadelphia. Simms suffered a separated shoulder late in the '81 season, missed 1982 with a knee injury and fractured his right thumb last year after losing his starting job to Scott Brunner.
