Auction to be held Saturday

An auction for United Way, sponsored by Alister-Rand Real Estate agency in College Station, will be held Saturday. Bankers, restaurant owners, and other business people in College Station have donated items such as car washes, hotel weekends and other services.

Clothes, furniture and household items also will be up for bid.

Invitations were sent to businessmen and merchants. Heather Archer, who works for Alister-Rand, said the invitations were sent to "whoever."

The auction will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at 809 E. University Drive, next to the Hilton Hotel site, and after the auction there will be live music.

Sex-oriented business sites to be regulated

By LAUREN FLOURNOY
Reporter

The College Station Planning and Zoning Commission unanimously approved an ordinance which will regulate the location of sexually-oriented commercial businesses within the city limits of College Station, in a public hearing Thursday night.

This decision will be submitted to the City Council at a later date.

A restriction for these businesses already exists that prevents the establishments from being within 1,000 feet of churches or schools.

The establishments have a right to exist from a previous ordinance passed by the commission several years ago.

The commission also was concerned that the businesses will be spread throughout the College Station area. Members of the commission agreed it would be better if they were located in one area.

Another unanimous approval was reached by the commission concerning the final plot for the Kirkpatrick Subdivision and the preliminary plot for the Glenhaven Subdivision Phase IV.

The commission also approved the rezoning of a 2.52 acre tract in the Lakeview Acres subdivision by a 4-2 vote. The area no longer will be considered a single-family residential district but will now be a general commercial area.

The rezoning of the 6.2 acre tract of land on the south side of University Drive also was approved by a 4-2 decision. The commission decided to change this district from an administrative-profession district to a general commercial district.

The commission approved a project plan for the neighborhood business district G-N shopping center, again by a 4-2 vote. The center is located at the southeast corner of the Anderson and Holleman intersection.

A take-out restaurant, seating a maximum of 40 people, will fill the empty space in the shopping center.

Elections

Off-Campus Aggies looking for apartment presidents

By LISA SPILLER
Reporter

Off-Campus Aggies have started accepting applications for apartment council presidents, and have set Sept. 24 as the deadline for submitting applications.

Apartment council presidents are off-campus students who represent OCA and their apartment complexes.

"They are the backbone of OCA," Stacey Roberts, OCA president, said. "An ACP is responsible for getting to know their neighbors, establishing their own community, setting up tenant-manager meetings, as well as planning social functions for the residents." ACPs also are responsible for keeping the residents informed of University activities.

The main reason for having ACPs, she said, is to establish a liaison between off-campus students and the University, and to build unity among off-campus students. Apartment council presidents decide the basic needs of their community, communicate back to OCA and then OCA provides help for those needs, Roberts said.

Apartment council presidents will meet the second Wednesday of each month. These meetings are more like seminars, she said. They include guest speakers and workshops on a variety of subjects such as home and car stereo care, decorating an apartment for under $50 and safety tips.

Applications are available at the OCA office, 223 Pavilion. Residents will vote for one representative for their apartment complex.
