Driving classes erasing tickets

By LORI BROOKS
Reporter

If you have recently received a speeding ticket and don't want it on your driving record, there is an alternative. A defensive driving course can be taken once in a two-year period to dismiss a ticket from your driving record or to reduce your insurance up to 10 percent, Municipal Court Clerk Pam Seay says.

If you receive a ticket in Bryan or College Station, you must call the Municipal Court and schedule a date to meet with a judge, Seay says. If you don't want to pay the ticket, you can request approval to take defensive driving.

After approval, you must post a cash bond in the amount of the fine and enroll in a defensive driving course within 90 days. Upon completion of defensive driving, take the certificate of completion to the court and the ticket will be dismissed from your records. Your money will be mailed back in the form of a check, Seay says.

If you receive a ticket in another city, you must appear before the judge there, but you can take the defensive driving course here.

"You can take defensive driving anywhere in the state as long as it is certified by the Department of Public Safety," Seay said.

Four defensive driving courses are offered in the Bryan-College

Station area. The first course is offered by MSC After Hours two to three times a month. The cost is $22, which, if paid at the time of registration, will insure a place in the class.

The Brazos Valley Safety Agency also offers a defensive driving course four times a month. The cost of the course is $20.

Defensive driving courses also are offered by two local residents. Howard F. Goldsmith Jr. offers his course four times a month at the A&M Church of Christ and the Aggeland Inn, Ballroom A. The cost is $20 and enrollment is limited to 50 people per class.

Joyce Lewis offers her course twice a month, once on Saturday for eight hours or on Tuesday and Wednesday nights for four hours each.

The cost is $20, but the cost will be $22 after the first of the year. Registration is 15 minutes before class, but you can call Lewis to secure one of the 20 places in the class.

Lewis claims her courses are different than the others. She said her course focuses on values, attitudes and behaviors. Students sit in a circle and discuss their values and attitudes about life, why they got the ticket and try to change their behavior in driving, Lewis said.

Her course offers a 10 percent discount in insurance. Lewis and her instructors are certified by the Department of Public Safety.

English official calls British inventor fake

United Press International

DALLAS — A British inventor, accused of bilking millions from wealthy Texans in exchange for rights to sell his water-fuel device, was never granted a doctorate degree in "dimensional metrology" as he claimed, an English university official testified Wednesday.

Ronald Albert Lasteed, in fact, never attended the University of Keele, England, said David Cohen, the university's registrar.

Lasteed was indicted by a federal grand jury on multiple charges of fraud. Prosecutors said investors sank more than $2 million in his scheme to produce and market "Ionagen," a fuel supposedly costing 5 cents a gallon and made from ionized water particles.

The dictionary defines metrology as "the science of weights and measures."

Al G. Hill, an heir to the estate of the late H.L. Hunt, testified Tuesday that he was the target of efforts by Lasteed and a Houston promoter, Joseph Shea Peoples. Peoples will be tried at a later date.

Prosecutors said Lasteed — through the efforts of Peoples — falsely claimed he was protected by the Central Intelligence Agency and under White House orders not to release the fuel formula to foreign nations. Lasteed's trial is expected to last through next week, prosecutors said.

Lasteed's attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said Peoples created the falsifications about the formula and Lasteed's background.

If convicted, Lasteed faces a maximum penalty of 50 years in prison and a $27,000 fine.

THE RICHARD SMITH STORY

Last Spring, Bill Preston, our former State Representative resigned from office in order to go to work for Texas A&M. This allowed Gov. Mark White (Dem.) to call a Special Election to fill the vacancy. Would you believe he set the election during A&M's Spring Break? He did. Why? To keep the Aggies from voting. He knew we could make a difference. There are only 45,000 registered voters in Brazos County (which alone makes up this State Representative District.) There are 37,000 students at A&M so obviously if we register to vote and vote we can make a difference. As it turned out, many Aggies did register to vote and vote absentee for Aggie Richard Smith '89. He is the only experienced, conservative, independent candidate who can go to Austin and get the job done. To Richard Smith A&M isn't just a part of the district. A&M is a commitment and a concern that all Aggies share. It ended up that over 13,000 people voted last March. Our candidate, Richard Smith, lost by 29 votes (to force a runoff). By two tenths of one percent of all the votes cast last March our candidate lost. The conservative Republican lost to Mark White's chosen Democrat, Neeley Lewis. That was the Special Election.

The Battalion Editorial Board called the scheduling of the Special Election by the Democrats "an attack on Texas A&M students, staff and faculty members." The Student Senate passed a resolution in opposition to the setting of the election date when Aggies could not vote. Governor White (Dem.) refused to even see the student government leaders concerning the issue. The Bryan-College Station Eagle Editorial Board said, "Let's face it, this whole thing smacks of partisan politics at its most petty level." "...Democrat Party officials had described March 10 as a 'convenient day' for the election." Convenient to keep the Aggies from voting. Convenient for the Democrats to unfairly help Neeley Lewis. On Nov. 6, we have a chance to prove that we won't be pushed around again. Richard Smith and Neeley Lewis are on the ballot again—this time in a fair fight. We will determine the winner, if we register to vote (the deadline is Oct. 6) and then vote on Nov. 6. Mark White and the Democrats can't set this election when the Aggies can't vote. It's up to us!

MORAL: TOGETHER WE CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

If you want to help make a difference, join Aggie GOP or call the Smith headquarters at 846-0047.
