

Doggett says Gramm apathetic on N-waste

United Press International
LUBBOCK — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett Monday accused his opponent, Republican Phil Gramm, of doing more to protect Mississippi from high-level nuclear waste than he has done for Texas.
"While Phil was leading the fight to weaken our rights as a state to veto nuclear garbage being dumped in Texas, he actually voted for an amendment offered by a Mississippi Republican to keep the dump out of his Mississippi district," Doggett said.
Doggett's campaign tour Monday stretched from Paint Rock to Sunray, including a luncheon stop in Lubbock. Democratic officials said they expected to raise $7,000 for Doggett from the Lubbock fundraiser.

The U.S. Senate race in West Texas has focused primarily on the proposal of locating two nuclear waste dump sites in the Pandhandle. Sites near Tulia and Hereford are under consideration, along with sites in Nevada, Utah, Louisiana, Washington and Mississippi. Only one site will be selected and the plan is slated for operation in 1998.
"Phil may consider that to be fighting for Texas on the nuclear waste issue, but I think most Texans would disagree with him," Doggett said.

"If I'm elected, they're going to put nuclear waste in West Texas over my dead body."

Guilty nurse facing new attack charge

United Press International
SAN ANTONIO — Nurse Geneene Jones, already convicted of murdering a Kerrville infant, goes on trial today on charges she injured a child in her care with a drug injection at Medical Center Hospital.
Jones, 34, who has two children of her own, was charged with injecting 4-month-old Rolando Santos with the blood-thinning drug heparin while the child was a patient in the hospital's pediatric intensive care unit.

The child survived and was later released from the hospital. Jones, who claimed she could not get a fair trial anywhere in the state because of extensive publicity in the case, requested the trial be heard solely by District Judge Pat Priest.

Opening arguments were scheduled to begin in 187th District Court at 1 p.m. About 90 witnesses have been subpoenaed to testify in the trial, which was postponed last spring at the request of defense attorney Royal Griffin.

A Bexar County grand jury has been investigating a series of infant deaths that occurred in the hospital's pediatric unit from 1978 to 1982.

But the massive investigation, which began in March 1983, produced only one child injury charge against Jones.

On Aug. 7, investigators exhumed the bodies of two infants, both of whom died in the pediatric unit, in hopes of finding traces of succinylcholine, a powerful, muscle relaxant drug. However, the efforts were unsuccessful.

Jones was convicted in February of using the drug to murder 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan at a Kerrville doctor's office in September 1982. She was sentenced to 99 years in prison.
