Ford, UAW to sign a new three-year contract

United Press International
 DETROIT — The United Auto Workers announced Monday ratification of a new three-year contract with Ford Motor Co., which will be signed by UAW and Ford officials Wednesday.

"This new agreement represents a major step forward in job security, improved economic well-being and better pension benefits for UAW-Ford members," said UAW President Owen Bieber and Vice President Stephen Yokich in a statement.

The Ford pact was reached Oct. 14 — the same day a General Motors Corp. pact was ratified — after a 25½-hour marathon bargaining session.

The key difference between the two contracts is the Ford pact's three-year moratorium on plant closings.

The Ford contract also includes a pilot child-care program and a program to treat workers' emotional problems.

As in the GM pact, the Ford contract calls for wage increases ranging between 1 percent and 3.5 percent, depending on the worker's job classification.

The contract also calls for improved pension benefits and the return of some holidays lost in the 1982 concessions pact.

Ford agreed to spend up to $280 million to create a job security fund to pay the wages of workers displaced by new technology, the consolidation of Ford operations or the company's shipment of work to non-Ford sources, a practice called "outsourcing."

GM will spend up to $1 billion on a similar program.

Results from the union showed the vote was 65 percent in favor of the contract.

"Obviously, we're pleased" with the ratification vote, Ford spokesman Tony Fredo said.

Judge seeks tight security in Dallas trial

United Press International
 DALLAS — A judge Monday ordered metal detectors installed in the courtroom to protect a man who can immigrate being tried on charges of killing six nightclub patrons after a woman refused to dance with him.

The reluctant dance partner was Marcelle Ford, 32, of Grand Prairie. The other victims were Frank Parker, 49, of Lucas; Joseph Minasi, 36, of Dallas; Larry Lowe, 43, of the Dallas area; James Smith, 46, of Dallas; and Les Kozlowski, 45, of Irving.

It was the worst mass murder in Dallas' history.

"My first priority is this trial so that this man receives a fair trial," District Judge Gerry Meier said.

Most of the day was spent questioning 57 prospective jurors. The process is expected to last several days.

Adelkrim Belachheb, 39, is accused of killing six people at Lucas Restaurant and Club on June 29. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Questioning centered on his feelings about an insanity defense and pretrial publicity. Meier said jurors that reading or hearing reports of the slayings would not qualify them from the case.

Prosecutor Norman Kinne said he did not plan to bring in any outside help, but defense attorney Frank Jackson was expected to draw testimony from prominent social scientists.

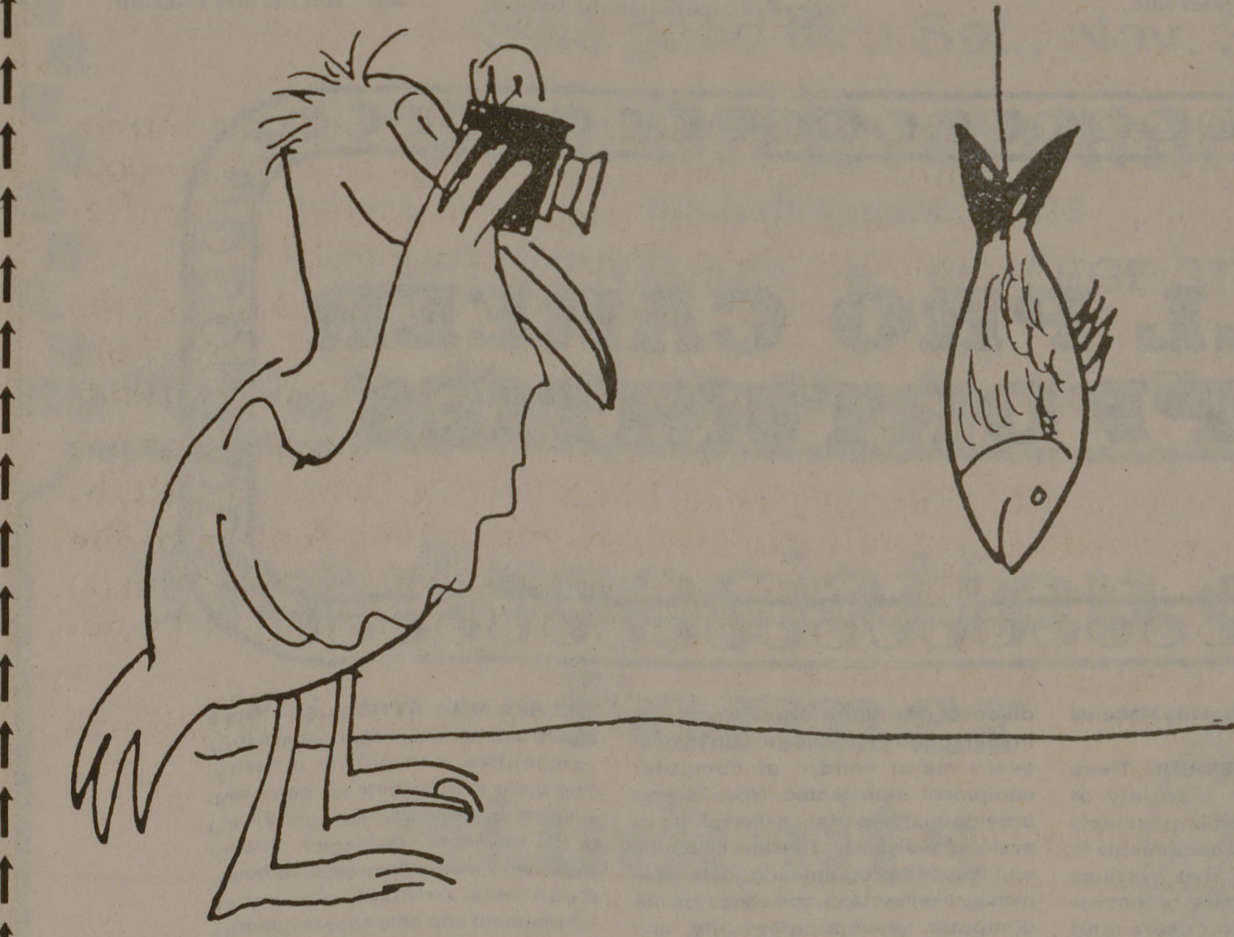

Ted Calisi, a court-appointed attorney who has since quit the case, said Belachheb "was hospitalized on three occasions in psychiatric institutions for uncontrolled and violent behavior."

He also said that during his hospital stay in Belgium, Belachheb used a device put into his body to control violent behavior.

Belachheb tried to kill himself July 12 while in custody, but County officials say he slashed his arms with a razor but inflicted only superficial wounds.

If convicted, Belachheb could be sentenced to life in prison or 20 years for attempted murder.

If found innocent by reason of insanity, Belachheb would be placed in a maximum-security state hospital for at least 30 days.
