For Sheriff: Howard Hill

Howard Hill's strong background in both police administration and training gives him the edge in the Brazos County Sheriff's race this year.

Both Hill and his opponent have impressive law enforcement credentials. But Hill's clear understanding of the importance of the administrative aspects of the job, along with his specific plans for the department if elected, suggest that he would be the more effective sheriff for Brazos County.

Hill has done his homework - he understands the importance of strong visible leadership, the difficulties which will accompany the opening of the new jail, and the need to upgrade the public's image of the department.

Howard Hill will bring to the sheriff's office a new emphasis on continuing education and a renewed sense of professionalism.

 don't have

United Press International
 SAN DIEGO — The San Diego Chargers are 4-5 and virtually out of the playoff race, but Coach Don Coryell is adamant over not sacrificing the season for next year.

Absolutely not, Coryell said Tuesday, when asked if their 24-0 loss to Seattle the night before was the last gasp of the 1984 Chargers. "All we are trying to do is win."

Coryell said injuries finally caught up with his team. There was no Wes Chandler lined up at wide receiver and Kellen Winslow at tight end.

Charger fans witnessed third-string quarterback Bruce Mathison running pass patterns after wide receiver Bobby Duckworth was shaken up.

Said Mathison: "I was hoping he (quarterback Dan Fouts) might try to go to me just to see if I could catch it."

The weakened offense and a tough Seahawks defense combined for the first shutout of the Chargers since Oct. 7, 1979 when the Broncos beat San Diego 7-0.

"Every coach, and I am sure every player is embarrassed with the poor showing last night on national television," Coryell said in opening the inquest into Monday's loss.

"It goes to show that good players help. You're not going to score without the Winslows and Chandlers and people of that caliber. We just have to glue everything together."

Coryell credited Seattle's defense with taking the Chargers out of the game.

"Some people don't think you make sacks with a three-man line, but they do," he said.

So furious was the Seattle rush that Coryell had Fouts throw less to reduce the chances that he would join Winslow, Chandler and the rest of the casualties.

"We would much rather pass, but we were afraid we'd have Dan on the shelf," Coryell said. "They would just pin their ears back and come."

The Chargers have to retrench now, but the coach said rebuilding is a job best left for training camp.

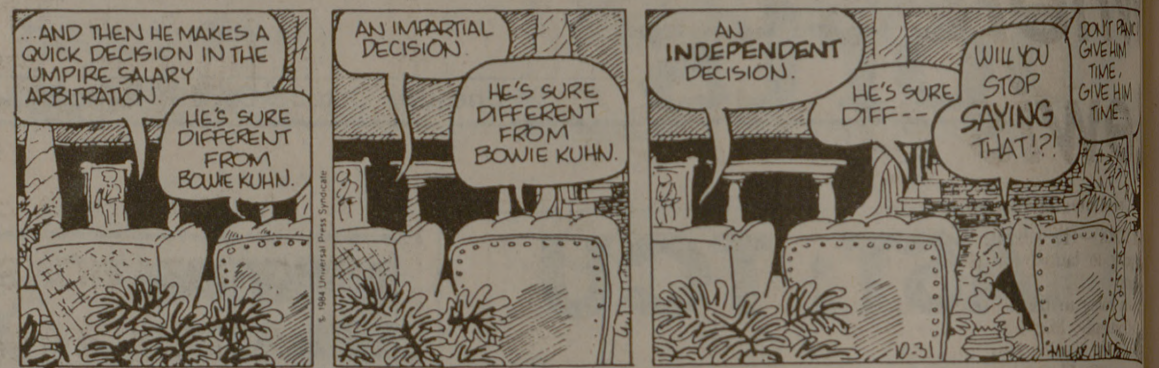

One of the Charger veterans who likes what he has seen of the younger players is wide receiver Charlie Joiner.

"I think some of the younger guys did very well," Joiner said after the game. "We keep saying we have to rebound. We have to keep saying it until we do rebound."

A quality player who is physically ready to play, but not mentally, is running back Chuck Muncie. Muncie has been suspended because of his drug dependency. His future is up to Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"I don't worry about things like that until it happens," Coryell said of Muncie's possible return — which could not happen too soon for the Chargers.

Beleaguered Breunig fights for starting spot

United Press International
 DALLAS — Dallas coach Tom Landry Tuesday named Danny White to start at quarterback Sunday against the New York Giants and indicated rookie Eugene Lockhart would see more action at middle linebacker in place of the beleaguered Bob Breunig.

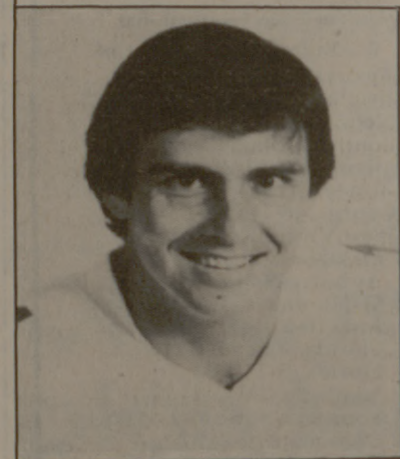

White got his first start of the year last week, replacing Gary Hogeboom, and helped the Cowboys coast to a 22-3 decision over the Indianapolis Colts.

In the first meeting of the Cowboys and Giants this year, Hogeboom was sacked three times by Lawrence Taylor. He fumbled during one of the tackles and Andy Headen returned the ball 82 yards for a touchdown.

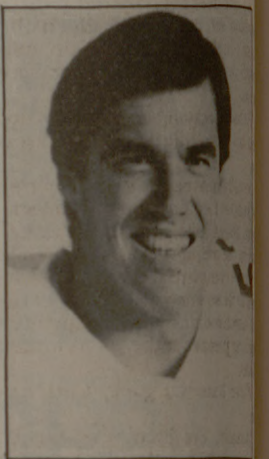

"White will start because of his performance in the (Indianapolis) game," said Landry. "But I'm going to use the quarterbacks as I've used the rest of the team. We will be substituting from time to time. It's important we use all the talent we have."

"We will be doing the same thing with Doug Donley and Mike Renfro (at wide receiver), Ron Springs and Timmy Newsome (at fullback) and we will probably be using Lockhart in place of Bob some at the middle linebacker spot."

Landry eased Lockhart into the

Dallas QB Danny White

Cowboys' Bob Breunig

discussion in as low key a manner as possible because the Lockhart-Breunig situation has recently gained almost as much attention as the Hogeboom-White controversy.

A month ago Breunig suffered lower back spasms that hospitalized him for the better part of a week. He quickly returned to the starting lineup, however, and although his play has been spotty, he has retained his role in the Cowboys' defense.

Last Sunday, when the Cowboys' defense was introduced before game, Breunig was booed by home crowd.

"Bob is hurt," Landry said, "how well he will be the rest of the season we don't know. He will be better longer we can rest him. When we reach over and tie your shoe your back goes into spasms, that's a pretty precarious situation. You step on an NFL field. We have to get Lockhart ready to play."

Tigers' Hernandez awarded
 AL Cy Young in close contest

United Press International
 NEW YORK — Willie Hernandez, a 28-year-old, left-handed reliever who had toiled in obscurity since 1977, was named winner of the American League's Cy Young Award Tuesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America barely defeating Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals.

Hernandez, who had a 9-3 record, a 1.92 earned run average and 32 saves in 33 possible save situations, won the award with 12 first-place votes. He also received seven each for second and third places from the 26-person panel representing each team in the league. That gave Hernandez a total of 88 points.

Quisenberry, who had 44 saves, one fewer than the major league record, a 6-3 record and a 2.64 ERA, got nine first-place votes, eight for second and two for third, giving him 71 points.

A native of Aguada, Puerto Rico, Hernandez started the 1984 season with a 34-32 lifetime record. He had lifted himself over the .500 mark lifetime with a 9-4 mark in 1983 for the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies.

Prior to the 1984 award-winning season, Hernandez had a total of only 27 saves during his seven-year big league career.

Quisenberry, who set the major league record of 45 saves in 1983, also had a brilliant season which kept the Royals in the American League Western Division race until the final days of the season.

Ron Petry and Jack Morris were reliable starters for the Tigers throughout the season but Mike Sperry and Anderson opened the season by pausing for Hernandez as league's Cy Young Award winners during the latter stages of the season. Anderson also campaigned for Hernandez as the league's MVP, an award which will be announced later in the year.

The award is named after Young, one of the game's greatest pitchers whose 511 victories are the most ever recorded in the major leagues.
