Suspect injured in escape try

United Press International

DENTON — A 23-year-old man suspected of kidnapping and killing a teenage girl was shot and wounded Wednesday during an escape attempt, Denton County sheriff's deputies said.

Mark Robert Matthys, who was arrested Tuesday on charges stemming from the death of Michelle Trimmer of North Richland Hills, was shot once in the side of the face by pursuing deputies. He was in fair condition late Wednesday at a Denton hospital.

A spokesman said Matthys, who was taken to the sheriff's office by North Richland Hills police, was being booked and fingerprinted when he broke from custody about 3:15 p.m. He ran down a hallway and outside the building, running east toward McKinney Street.

Matthys was recaptured about 100 yards from the sheriff's office. The shot that struck him in the face was the only one fired, officials added, authorities said it was a Texas Ranger who shot the suspect.

Several officers were involved in the chase, the spokesman said, and officers called several times for Matthys to halt.

Galbraith predicts a calm reaction to Ghandi's death

University News Service

Former U.S. Ambassador to India John Kenneth Galbraith Wednesday predicted that India will not react violently to the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

"All friends of India must hope that there will not be a period of violence and recrimination," Galbraith said. "My instinct is that there will not be such a period."

Galbraith was reached for his reaction at Texas A&M, where he had participated in a student-sponsored debate with conservative William F. Buckley Jr.

A nationally known liberal economist who has taught at Harvard for more than 35 years, he was ambassador to India during the Kennedy administration.

"My first reaction is one of personal loss," said Galbraith, who became friends with Gandhi in 1956 before she was elected to the same office that her father, former Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, held for 17 years.

Cautioning that it is "much too early to say what will happen," Galbraith said that the strength of India's democracy will help the country through the loss of a leader of great intelligence — someone who has mastered the easy problem of governing India, which is not a country that is itself easily to public administration.

Teen suicide movie spurs 'cries of help'

United Press International

Suicide crisis volunteers nationwide were reeling Wednesday from an avalanche of calls prompted by a fictional television portrait of a teenager who committed suicide.

"It's a highly emotional movie," said New York Lt. Gov. Alfred Delbello of the CBS production "Silence of the Heart," broadcast Tuesday night. "The kids will understand it fully."

But, said Delbello, chairman of the state's council on youth suicide, "It will shock the hell out of parents. And that's good."

He was right. In Atlanta, harried suicide prevention volunteers said they received 10 times the average number of calls. In Los Angeles, St. Louis, Boston, Detroit, Dallas and other cities, crisis center switchboards were swamped.

"We are working with someone right now on the phone who said they were contemplating suicide," said Susan Buza, a Miami crisis line worker, early Wednesday. "They said they saw the show and thought they would call us first to see if maybe we could help."

"Obviously," said Alan Burrell, acting director of Atlanta area emergency mental health services, "these problems already existed. (The movie) motivated people to get outside help."

Teenage suicide rates have rocketed across the nation, often some of the nation's most affluent communities.

In wealthy Dallas suburbs, 34 teenagers killed themselves in Houston's affluent Spring Clear Lake suburbs this year, reported. Eleven teenagers committed suicide in New York's Westchester Rockland and Putnam counties. Four self-inflicted teen deaths were reported last week alone in the New York metropolitan area.

The suicide epidemic has already reached "crisis proportions," said Delbello. Statewide, he said, there has jumped from 6.4 to 8.2 to 100,000 teenagers since 1970.

More than 5,000 teens kill themselves nationwide last year, some experts say the number to reach 5,500 this year. Authorities estimate that each year, as many as 400,000 teens attempt to kill themselves.

The phenomenon prompted dozens of parents and students gather Tuesday night in Spring learn of critical warning signs, including an obsession with death, a loss of interest in school and family.

"It (suicide) is the last straw," said Spring school system psychologist Dr. Lee Hawn.
