President declaring state of siege in Chile

United Press International

SANTIAGO, Chile — President Augusto Pinochet declared a state of siege Tuesday, saying it was necessary to combat a wave of terrorist violence that left 10 dead in the last week and led to the resignation of his Cabinet.

Pinochet also refused to accept the resignation of Interior Minister Sergio Onofre Jarpa, the chief minister, whose decision to step down Monday was followed immediately by the other 15 Cabinet ministers.

The state of siege, reimposed in Chile for the first time since 1978, increased the military government's powers of arrests and broadened its power to restrict civil liberties, particularly press freedom.

Pinochet announced last week that he was postponing plans to legitimize political parties, and warned he would reimpose a state of siege if protests against his 11-year-old military regime escalated out of control.

The declaration came two days after two police were killed in the latest outbreak of terrorist violence, and a week after a new outbreak of demonstrations left eight people dead.

In announcing his resignation Monday, Jarpa said he was stepping down because he could not stem the growing wave of terrorist violence and anti-government protests.

The other ministers followed to give Pinochet a free hand in reorganizing his government.

Pinochet had originally appointed Jarpa in a move to defuse widespread discontent. Jarpa, a civilian, replaced a general.

Pinochet, who ruled since a military coup deposed elected Marxist President Salvador Allende Gossens, said the government would not hold political talks until the opposition accepted the current constitutional timetable, which extends his term in power until 1989 and provides for an elected congress only in 1990.

Teenage ROTC students commit double suicide

United Press International

LINDENHURST, Ill. — The families and friends of two teenagers struggled Tuesday to understand why two honor students who seemed to have everything going for them would choose to die together in a car filled with carbon monoxide.

The only clue was a crumpled note saying, "Suicide is painless."

Edward Atwood received a presidential nomination to West Point. Amy Pintarelli was a member of the National Honor Society.

Atwood's father, Thomas, found their bodies Sunday night, side-by-side in the front seat of the family car. He said an eerie feeling came over him when he opened the garage door.

Task force checks truck weights

United Press International

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A 48-hour task force operation to check compliance with state laws by truckers in four states showed that more roving patrol units were needed in Arkansas, the state Highway and Transportation Department said.

The Arkansas Highway Police, a division of AHTD, cooperated with its counterparts in Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma for the operation on Oct. 28, 29 and 30.

The department said 14,605 trucks were checked by the highway

Gandhi death set 'two months ago'

United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — An Indian government intelligence source said Tuesday the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was planned two months ago by up to a dozen Sikhs to avenge the Indian army's storming of the Sikhs' Golden Temple in Punjab state.

"The plot was hatched by Indians who are Sikhs," the source said. "There was no foreign hand."

The prime minister was slain last Wednesday by two Sikhs in her personal security force.

One of the assassins was killed by other guards. The second, Santwan Singh, 21, is hospitalized in critical condition with eight bullet wounds.

The disclosure came as emergency workers in New Delhi discovered 100 more bodies — victims of the rioting and mass slayings that convulsed the capital and swept across northern India for four days after the assassination of Gandhi.

The latest victims — mostly Sikhs killed by Hindus to avenge Gandhi's death — pushed the death toll throughout India to more than 1,200 — half of them in New Delhi.

The source said Indian authorities have determined that six to 12 Sikhs were involved in the plot to kill Gandhi.

The source said renegade police officers in Punjab — the only India state where Sikhs are the majority — had "something to do with it. We are investigating and tracking them."

The source said the Punjab policemen under investigation may have joined the plot after they were fired from their jobs, which was

Long distance travel hard between classes

By DAINAH BULLARD Staff Writer

As Texas A&M students register for classes for the Spring 1985 semester, relief is nowhere in sight for those with too little time between classes.

The problem of back-to-back classes on opposite sides of the A&M campus is not new, but it grows more acute with the expansion of west campus.

As building construction continues, more classes are conducted on west campus and more students find themselves caught in the 10-minute dash between classes.

"This is not a new problem — it happens every year," said Dr. Alvin Price, head of the Department of Biomedical Science. "As faculty and administration, we have to be understanding of that."

Price said the time-crunch problem can sometimes be avoided by careful selection of class sections.

Students can select class sections to try and correlate their schedules and class location, but they are not guaranteed of receiving the sections they request, he said.

The University once experimented with a program which provided for west campus classes to change on the half-hour, while main campus classes continued to change on-the-hour, Price said.

The experiment failed because it wasted too much time and was too confusing, he said.

"I don't know what a good answer is," Price said. "More and more students are having the problem. We've had this problem in (the College of Veterinary Medicine since we moved out here (to west campus) in 1955."

All A&M students are subject to the problem of too little time between classes.

However, students with major from colleges such as agriculture, medicine and veterinary medicine are more likely to experience the problem because many or most of their classes are conducted on west campus.

Students who are earning their degrees from colleges that have many of their problems on the main campus are less likely to suffer from a time-crunch problem.

Melynda Cloud, a student record clerk in the dean's office in the College of Architecture and Environmental Design, said students with majors in that college have few problems with the time between classes.

"We're not aware of any problems," Cloud said. "Actually, 10 times out of 100, it (the time-crunch problem) doesn't even affect our kids."

Willis Ritchey, assistant registrar, said most complaints about a lack of time between classes occur during the first round of exams. Tests a back-to-back classes often pose problems for students, he said.

The time-crunch problem may be solved when a new system is implemented, Ritchey said.

The new system is scheduled to begin after the new student conductances for the Fall 1985 semester. It said, but it is uncertain what changes will be provided for in the system.

Senate to talk on women in the Band

The Texas A&M Student Senate will discuss a resolution tonight to recommend that women be allowed to participate in the Aggie Band.

The Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in 204 Harrington Education Center.

The resolution cites the admission of women into the University, the participation of women in the Corps of Cadets and the belief in equality as reasons for allowing women to be band members as reasons to cease all legal actions to prevent participation of women in the band.

The approval or disapproval of the resolution by a majority of senators will be considered representative of the Senate's opinion.

In new business, the senate will consider an absence policy resolution bill.

Student Body President David Alders and Judicial Board Chairman Lindsey Dingmore will present reports to the Senate.

The senate also will hear reports from the vice presidents of student services, academic affairs, external affairs, finance and rules and regulations.
