Cadet to compete in A&M pageant

By KATHERINE P. HURT
 Staff Writer

Bonnelyn Krumpotic, resplendent with dynamic personality, striking appearance and jazz-dance routine, will compete in the Miss Texas A&M University Scholarship Pageant in February. In May, she will be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Krumpotic, known to her friends as Bonnie, is the first woman in the Corps of Cadets to serve on major unit staff and the highest-ranking woman in the Corps to date. She's also the first cadet to compete in the annual scholarship pageant.

Krumpotic said she has always dreamed of pageant competition, but is competing in the A&M pageant for another reason as well: to shatter the stereotypes that abound about women in the Corps and women in the pageant.

"Anyone can participate in the pageant ... at the same time, anyone can be a waggie (female cadet)," Krumpotic said.

Krumpotic describes herself as a "cadet who is in the pageant."

"Everything I do is a part of the Corps ... the Corps is my way of life," Krumpotic said.

"Female cadets are women that love their school and their country so much that they are willing to put up with much more (criticism) by being in the Corps," Krumpotic said. She added that female cadets are "objects of social stigmatism" at A&M.

"I want to emphasize that my participation in the pageant can help the University see beyond the uniform of the women in the Corps and to see them as a group of really exceptional girls," Krumpotic said.

Krumpotic is no less than exceptional herself. She was recently awarded the Gen. Creighton Abram's Award, a $1,000 scholarship, given to the most outstanding cadet in the third ROTC region.

She won third place in the ROTC advanced summer camp in Fort Riley, Kan. and the camp commander's leadership award.

Krumpotic is a member of several honor societies: Tau Kappa, Cap and Gown and the Corps Honor Society; has been active in SCONA for three years; worked on the Endowed Lecture Series committee and has been a member of the Women's Drill Team.

Krumpotic said her primary responsibility is running her battalion, but she makes time to pursue other interests.

"Cadets should have a well-rounded education," she said. "I'm real athletic ... a very serious horseback rider and avid ice skater."

She's also had three years of dancing experience and plays the piano. "My next project is the saxophone," she said.

Krumpotic came to A&M from Woodside, Cal. to study veterinary medicine. She said she had been accepted at the University of California at Davis, but, on a lark, came to visit A&M with her mother to see how it compared.

"We both fell in love with it (A&M)," she said.

She and her mother knew nothing about the Corps when they came to visit A&M. But, Krumpotic said, "Being so far from home and not knowing anyone in Texas, I thought joining the Corps would be the easiest way to get to know A&M's traditions."

The Miss Texas A&M Scholarship Pageant will be on Krumpotic's birthday this year — February 23. The 20 contestants will be judged on attributes such as talent, poise and appearance, with talent comprising 50 percent of the competition. The winner and four runners up will be awarded scholarships ranging from $1,000 to $100.
