High school student sues DPS officer

United Press International
BEAUMONT — A high school junior, 17, has sued a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper, claiming the officer preached to him for two hours and made him sign a statement dedicating his life to God.

Darryl Ray Craig, who filed the suit Monday in Orange, claimed he was driving home from a rock concert Sept. 13 when his truck hit a utility pole and overturned on Interstate 10.

Trooper Douglas Fetters arrived shortly after midnight, and made the teen sit in his patrol car for two hours while the officer preached to him, the suit said.

The trooper allegedly made the boy list his sins on a sheet of paper. The list included "sassing back mom," "stealing candy" and "cheating on tapes."

The youth claimed he was forced to sign a statement asking Jesus Christ to take charge of his life, and that the trooper signed the document with the name Jesus.

Economy loses steam quicker than expected

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The economy has lost more steam than expected, the government said Tuesday, with third-quarter growth down to 1.9 percent, largely because consumers are curbing spending, but buying more abroad.

In a report on the gross national product, the Commerce Department also said corporate profits are down, and other figures showed housing starts have hit their lowest point in nearly two years.

The real GNP — the nation's total output of goods and services, adjusted for inflation — increased only 1.9 percent from July to September, the department said. It initially had estimated third-quarter growth at 3.6 percent, later revised down to 2.7 percent.

The growth rate was 10.1 percent in the first quarter of this year and 7.1 percent in the second, but that rapid pace was exceptional and some slowdown was widely anticipated.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, in Santa Barbara, Calif., said the administration had anticipated the slowdown in what he termed a "transition quarter" from high growth "to a more sustainable growth," and noted, "Inflation clearly remains under control."

On the housing front, there was a 10 percent drop in construction starts on private homes in October, to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,515,000, the lowest level since December 1982.

Building permits, an indication of construction to come, fell very slightly, from an annual 1,440,000 units in September to 1,408,000 in October, also the lowest since December 1982.

The figures showed two main reasons for the low third-quarter GNP figure. Most important was a sharp slowing in the rate of growth of consumer buying. Personal consumption increased by $20.1 billion in the second quarter but only by $1.4 billion in the third.

The second major reason was foreign trade. Imports rose $18.2 billion in the third quarter, but exports went up only $3.1 billion. The difference exerted a $15 billion drag on the economy.

Jerry Jasinoski, chief economist of National Association of Manufacturers, cited "the rise in interest rates, the exhaustion of pent-up demand and the drag from the trade deficit" for the slowdown.

South African broker begins probation for oil swindling

United Press International
HOUSTON — A South African broker began serving 4½ years probation Tuesday for plotting to thwart a federal investigation of an international oil swindle that included the deliberate sinking of a massive supertanker.

James Hillary Shorrock, 50, already has spent six months in jail in the Netherlands and Houston. He was sentenced to five years in prison Monday, but a federal judge suspended all but the time Shorrock already had served and placed him on probation.

Shorrock told U.S. District Judge Carl Bue he acted only as an after-the-fact accomplice in the case, but that having his name linked to the fraud scheme has destroyed his reputation.

"As an international businessman, this is highly damaging," Shorrock said. "I accept this punishment for having been stupid enough to think what I was doing was right."

Shorrock and two other men were indicted May 24 after a more than four-year investigation by authorities in the United States, South Africa and England.

Former Missouri City businessman Frederick Ed Soudan was accused of fraud in the purchase of the supertanker Salem, the purchase of a load of oil from Kuwait and the allegedly deliberate sinking of the ship — after 1.4 million barrels of oil secretly were delivered to South Africa.

Shorrock and Abdul Wahab Al Ghazou were indicted for helping Soudan hide his alleged profits in the scheme from American tax officials, and for lying to the federal grand jury investigating the incident.

Shorrock pleaded guilty July 18 to one count of conspiring to obstruct justice in an agreement that requires him to testify against Soudan and Ghazou.

Soudan is accused of selling the illegally obtained oil to Italy, and then diverting the shipment to South Africa in violation of an OPEC embargo. The Salem sank off the coast of Senegal in January 1980, in what officials said was an attempt to cover the oil sale.
