Costa Rica refuses to let writer work

United Press International

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — The Interamerican Human Rights Commission Wednesday upheld the government's ban against a U.S. journalist that makes it illegal for him to work in Costa Rica.

Journalist Stephen Schmidt told the Interamerican Press Society that Costa Rica was violating his human rights and freedom of expression.

The decision by the Interamerican Human Rights Commission rejecting Schmidt's appeal was announced by Justice Minister Hugo Alfonso Munoz.

The case against Schmidt, undertaken by the Costa Rica Journalists College, says he had been illegally exercising his profession.

His journalism degree from the Autonomous University of Central America in Costa Rica is not recognized by the University of Costa Rica.

The Journalists College first took the case to Costa Rican courts after Schmidt returned to the United States. His Costa Rican defense attorney Fernando Guier then brought the case before the Human Rights Commission.

Costa Rica is the only country in the hemisphere that recognizes the jurisdiction of the Interamerican Human Rights Commission over its own Supreme Court.

Journalists College President Jimen Chan Soto said the judgement Wednesday "has confirmed our right to work as Costa Rican journalists, to defend the exercise of thought and opinion. We have never violated that right."

Utah bans waste dump DOE studies

United Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — Gov.-elect Norman Bangerter, charging the Reagan administration has "politicized" its search for a permanent nuclear waste dump, Wednesday banned the energy department from conducting further studies in Utah.

Bangerter, a strong Reagan backer who supported studies of potential sites during his campaign, said he sent the president a letter telling him he will not cooperate with the agency until "several problems are resolved."

Utah is one of six states being considered for the nation's first high-level nuclear waste repository. The other states are Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, Washington and Texas.

Utah's Republican governor-elect said Energy Secretary Donald Hodel has been dishonest with the state and he has closed the door on the department until citizens receive more respect from the federal government.

"Promises by DOE officials to exempt certain states from site selection have destroyed all confidence in the scientific integrity and fairness of the site-selection process," Bangerter said in his letter to Reagan.

"I am informed DOE is committed in writing to exempt Louisiana and you have agreed to honor that agreement," he wrote. "During a campaign appearance in behalf of Rep. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Secretary Hodel said Texas would not be selected because of the influence of powerful representatives in that state."

"While these (statements by Hodel) are part of public record, Hodel has refused to confirm or deny to me that these commitments were made ... I do not believe Congress intended in the Nuclear Waste Policy Act that the Department of Energy would politicize such an important process."

Bangerter also charged that DOE representatives withheld information on the feasibility of two potential sites in southeastern Utah and accused the agency of making "crucial site selections based on inadequate and unprofessional data."

The governor-elect said he also opposes further studies in southeastern Utah based on the proximity of the proposed sites to Canyonlands National Park and other recreation areas.

Bangerter said he would follow the same course as departing Gov. Scott Matheson and direct his department heads to refuse drilling permits to DOE contractors attempting to conduct feasibility studies in Utah.
