HEALTH NEWS

Back and Leg Pains?

By Dr. Stewart D. Stephenson,

Suffering with low back pain with pain occasionally running down the groin and back of your legs? These symptoms can be brought on by bad posture, an auto accident or fall, or by something as simple as a cough, sneeze, lifting or a wrong sudden movement. If not corrected promptly they will lead to serious health problems. Bed rest, corsets, pain pills and muscle relaxants are not the answer. They only offer temporary relief and do not correct the underlying cause, which is a spinal fixation. These fixations can and do bring on degeneration and thinning of the spinal discs if not treated properly.

Don't ignore these danger signals:

- Lower back and leg pains
- Difficulty in breathing
- recurring headaches and nervousness
- Numbness in hands legs or feet
- Painful joints & restless nights
- Neck shoulder or arm pain

The Stephenson Chiropractic Office asks "Why be sick when you can be well again." To find out if your problem is one that can be helped by Chiropractic, pick up the telephone now and call for an appointment with Dr. Stewart D. Stephenson, phone 779-1555 now.

Parade adds Texas flair to pre-Christmas festival

By LYNN RAE POVEC

Staff Writer

Some participated for the publicity. Some just for the fun. And some wanted a head start on capturing the Christmas spirit.

Regardless of the motives, an assortment of floats, marching groups and mounted groups, in all totalling 92, made this year's Bryan-College Station holiday parade the largest ever.

Rodger Lewis, KAMU-TV program director and parade chairman, said a total of about 4,000 people participated, and another 30,000 to 40,000 came to watch.

As they have in the past, the Ross Volunteers led the parade. The Aggie Band has also participated in past years, Lewis said, but members played at the University of Texas—Texas A&M game Saturday in Austin and were unable to participate in Sunday's parade.

The parade, including about 40 floats displaying the parade's theme, "A Real Texas Christmas," got underway at 3 p.m.

One float, entered by MSC Hospitality, which is sponsoring next February's Miss Texas A&M University Pageant, featured the 20 pageant finalists in a desert scene.

The finalists were dressed in western wear, and each cactus on the float was decorated like a Christmas tree.

Other entries in the parade included the Bryan and A&M Consolidated High School Bands and the Shriners from the Shrine Temple in Houston. The Shriners did stunts in miniature cars and mini motorcycles.

About five members of the A&M One-Wheelers, a unicycling club, performed stunts, riding backward, peddling with one foot and spinning.

Also in the parade to entertain the public was the KKYS-FM 92.3's Kazoo Band.

Sponsored by the radio station and Dr. G's, a local nightclub, 30 people played holiday tunes including "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," "Jingle Bells," and "Wish You a Merry Christmas" along the parade route.

"I wanted to do something a little different," Skip Bishop, program director for KKYS, said last Friday.

He said there are several floats at the station, and the band came up about two ago in a ball session.

On the air, KKYS gave chances to march in the band. The band received a comment on Christmas kazoo — so named because of the alliteration, Bishop — and a T-shirt.

Records show the first holiday parade marched through Bryan-College Station in 1929.

This year's parade was filmed by KAMU-TV and will be aired Friday, Dec. 8, at 7 p.m.

Texas teams capture silver platters in annual debate

By CATHIE VANDERBILT

Reporter

University of Texas at Arlington and University of Texas at San Antonio were among the winners at the third annual National Debate Tournament hosted by Texas A&M this weekend.

The "Aggeland Debate Classic" included 28 schools from 10 states throughout the country.

The tournament was split into three divisions. The senior division included the more experienced debaters while the junior division debaters are less-experienced. The two groups emphasize questions of public policy in their debates.

The Cross-Examination Debate Association is the third division, which uses a different debate format. It also examines controversial values rather than public policy.

Wayne Krammer, debate coach at Texas A&M, said that debate topics are announced every July. Each group takes either an affirmative or negative stand on the issue, does research on it for one year.

"Usually the affirmative side has a slight advantage because they narrow down the main issue," Krammer said. "For example, the senior and senior divisions of 'Space Exploration and Development.' The affirmative side narrows it down to, say, 'Mars Mars.' In either case extensive search files are required. Teams participated in the tournament. Krammer said that each school has the option of entering to four teams in each division. He also said that, as part of a trade-off, the hosting school only enters one team in the competition and doesn't advance to the final round.

The winners from each division will receive silver platters.

World leaders subject of White House diary

United Press International

ATLANTA — Former President Jimmy Carter has revealed that during his four years in office he kept a 6,000-page White House diary that recorded sensitive details about world leaders who passed through the Oval Office.

Carter, 60, revealed details of the diary in an interview with United Press International. He said it would not be released with other White House papers when his presidential library opens at Emory University because the material in it is sensitive.

"I kept a diary," Carter said while in town for a health conference last week. "I wrote in it every night and it was about 6,000 pages long when I left the White House."

"But I think it might not be appropriate for a long time to make it public," he said. "Some of the things recorded in my diary were about family matters, but some were my impressions of world leaders who came to my office."

"Many of those leaders are still in office and I wouldn't want them or their governments to know what I thought of them as president of the United States."

Carter said the library will house 29 tractor-trailer loads of records that came with him to Georgia when he left the White House. He said more than 5 million documents related to his presidency are still classified, but officials are working hard to declassify as many as possible.
