Brinkman, Doty make first team

All-SWC spikers selected

United Press International

DALLAS — Sherri Brinkman of Texas A&M and Kim Larson of Texas, who sparked their teams to first and second-place finishes during the season, were among those named Monday to the 1984 All-Southwest Conference volleyball team selected by the league's coaches.

Larson and Brinkman were joined by three other Lady Longhorns, another player from Texas A&M and one from Texas Tech's third-place squad as first team conference standouts.

Brinkman was a unanimous All-Conference choice for the second straight year, while Larson was named SWC Player of the Year, after finishing as runner-up for that honor in 1983. Rice's Anna Epperson was named SWC Newcomer of the Year and Texas Tech's Janice Hudson was voted SWC Coach of the Year.

Brinkman, Larson and Texas' Sharon Neugebauer all won All-SWC honors for the second straight season, while Texas' Diane Watson joined the first team after being named SWC newcomer of the year in 1983.

The first team with first-team votes in parentheses, included: Sherri Brinkman, Texas A&M (6); Kim Larson, Texas (5); Diane Watson, Texas (5); Eva Murray, Texas (4); Sharon Neugebauer, Texas (3); Chemine Doty, Texas A&M (3); Karri Ohland, Texas Tech (3).

UPI Polls

BYU holds on to final No. 1 rank

United Press International

NEW YORK — Idle Brigham Young easily held its No. 1 rating in the final regular season college football rankings Monday, while two former top-ranked teams dropped to the bottom of the Top 20.

Brigham Young received 24 of 35 first-place votes and 503 points from the UPI Board of Coaches as the first five teams — all idle over the weekend — remained the same. No. 2 Oklahoma received eight first-place votes and 479 points and the Sooners' Orange Bowl opponent — No. 3 Washington — received one first-place vote. No. 4 Nebraska and No. 5 Ohio State round out the top five.

With only six ranked teams playing over the weekend, the fact that BYU held the No. 1 spot for the third week surprises no one — except maybe Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer. Switzer continues to lobby to have the Orange Bowl recognized as the national championship game.

"When you go down Brigham Young's schedule, who they've played, I mean, it's hard to believe," Switzer said. "Where are the Texas' and the Oklahomas and the Washingtons and the Nebraskas on that schedule? They're not there."

Switzer claimed Kansas, which defeated the Sooners, was better than nine of the 10 teams on the BYU schedule.

Florida used a 27-17 victory over Florida State to move up from seventh to sixth, trading places with idle South Carolina. The rest of the top 10 stayed the same, with Boston College eighth, Oklahoma State ninth and Southern Methodist 10th.

Auburn and Texas tumbled eight spots each after losing Saturday. Auburn, ranked No. 1 in pre-season, fell 17-15 to Alabama and lost its chance to go to the Sugar Bowl. Texas was crushed 37-12 by Texas A&M. It was the second straight loss for the Longhorns, who were No. 1 for two weeks early in the season.

Florida is the only Top 20 team not going to a bowl. The Gators finished first in the Southeastern Conference but the SEC prevented them from going to a bowl because of a pending NCAA probation.

Untested Hoyas still in top spot

United Press International

NEW YORK — Top-ranked Georgetown, after spending the first two weeks of the season pounding three pushovers, remained the overwhelming choice as the No. 1 college basketball team by the UPI board of Coaches Monday.

The Hoyas, whose 3-0 record includes easy victories over Hawaii-Hilo, Hawaii-Loa and Southern Connecticut — hardly college basketball powerhouses — collected 40 of 42 first-place votes and 619 points to remain atop the ratings since balloting began three weeks ago.

DePaul, which came off a narrow victory over Northern Illinois to blitz UCLA 80-61 Saturday, received a top vote and 33 second-place selections, good for 572 points and the No. 2 rating. St. John's escaped with a 58-57 victory over St. Bonaventure in the Lapchick Tournament to remain third with 446 points. Duke (430 points), Illinois (401) and Memphis State (397) completed the top six.

Georgetown, which returned to the mainland with a victory over Southern Connecticut Saturday, gets to clobber St. Leo College (Fla.) Wednesday before its first competitive test — a nationally-televized encounter with No. 20 Nevada-Las Vegas this Saturday.

Duke moved up two slots with a 59-46 triumph over St. Joseph's; the Illini remained No. 5 after their second victory of the season over Oklahoma; and Memphis State advanced a spot by capturing last weekend's Mid-South Classic.

Rounding out the top 10 are No. 7 Louisville, No. 8 Washington, No. 9 Southern Methodist — which received a first-place vote — and No. 10 North Carolina State.

Louisville lost three slots in the ratings — and star guard Miltner for six weeks with a broken leg — in a costly triumph over Virginia Commonwealth.

"We'll have to live with this," Cardinals coach Denny Crum said. "One of our strengths was our outside play. With Milt out it's going to be a lot tougher."

Oklahoma plummeted from No. 2 after losing to Illinois 73-70. Kentucky and Arkansas were edged entirely. The Wildcats fell 66-57. Purdue while the Razorbacks edged 85-84 by Ohio State.
