AUSTIN — Allan Shivers, governor of Texas from 1949 to 1957 and later chairman of the University of Texas System Board of Regents, died Monday at an Austin hospital after suffering a heart attack. He Shivers was pronounced dead at 6:30 p.m. at Seton Medical Center in Austin, a hospital spokeswoman said. He was taken to the hospital by ambulance at 5:30 p.m. from his downtown Austin office, and an hour-long effort to revive him was insuccessful, the spokeswoman

He was pronounced dead by Dr. Horace Clomer, his personal physician, who was notified of the attack while Shivers was en route to the

The body laid in state in the Sente Chamber from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Funeral services will be held at 2 pm. today in the First Baptist Church of Austin with the Rev. Dr. Browning Ware officiating. Burial will be in the State Cemetery here. Shivers was the longtime board chairman of Austin National Bank, now InterFirst Bank Austin. He was working at his office in InterFirst's downtown office building and "had been working and carrying on as usual" before suffering the attack, a family member said. s A&M Shivers was elected lieutenant governor in 1946 and 1948 and became governor on July 11, 1949, upon the death of Gov. Beauford Jester. He was re-elected in 1950, 1952 and 1954, serving longer in the post than any Texas governor. In 1952, Shivers became the only ubernatorial candidate in Texas istory to run as a candidate of both

After retiring as governor, Shivers was elected as president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and served six years as a member of the University of Texas board of Regents, including four years as chair-

A laughing situation for College Station

A Good Humor Bar opens

By KATHERINE P. HURT

Tuesday was a night of firsts for A Good Humor Bar — College Station's first comedy bar in Culpepper

The first joke on its first night of existence? Jeff Schilling, master of ceremonies for the evening and coowner of A Good Humor Bar with his wife Marty and Tracy and Edgar Carlson, opened the show, asking the audience, "Did everyone have a good day? I did, I saw a Bryan cop car with a flat tire ... really made my Ray Martinez, the first comedian Schilling introduced, owns a comedy club in Houston, the Comedy Showcase, and has been working with Schilling for years. Addressing fe-male egotism, to the chagrin of men in the crowd, Martinez lauded the superiority of women.

On the average, women have a higher intelligence level and a higher tolerance of pain — after all, who has the babies? — Martinez asked. Women are also better drivers he said — they can apply makeup and maneuver a car at the same

The next guest, Ray Chapa from Los Angeles, deservedly earned more applause than his predecessor. He opened with a string of long words, such as "presumptuous" and "exude," telling the largely college-aged audience to "look them up."

The most memorable part of his act was an erotic mating scene between two random members of the crowd that he ficticiously inter-preted with his clarinet. After which he remarked, "Now all you ladies will be anxious to take the clarinet home pregnancy test.'

The small and intimate A Good Humor Bar, open regularly on Wednesday through Saturday nights, will likely become a College Station entertainment institution another first in a town where the pickings are slim. After all, it had to turn away part of its first crowd on its first night of business because it just couldn't accommodate them all.

MADD supporting new

AUSTIN - A Senate bill was introduced Tuesday that would outlaw open containers of alcoholic beverages inside most motor vehicles — a measure backed by the state's top law enforcement officer and a lobby dedicated to stiffening penalties for dedicated to stiffening penalties for drunken driving.

The bill by Sen. Bill Sarpalius was endorsed by Jim Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, and Marinelle Timmons, president of the Texas chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"MADD feels that the open container (bill) is our top priority this legislative session for the simple rea-legislative session for the simple reason that we don't think Texas will ever take drunk driving seriously as affected long as it's legal to drink and drive," Timmons said at a news conference.

Sarpalius' bill also would prohibit passengers who are accessible within five feet of the driver from carrying open containers of alcoholic bever-

"It would be how far that driver could reach and then five feet," he Sarpalius said the bill would ban open containers "within the passenger portion of an automobile."

Violators could be fined up to

"We're not trying to stop all pas-senger drinking," said Sarpalius, D-Canyon. "For instance, passengers on buses still could drink. Passengers in recreational vehicles wouldn't be

He also said a ticket for drinking while driving could raise a motorists' auto insurance.

Adams, chairman of a task force on traffic safety, said in the first nine months of 1984 open alcoholic con-tainers were found at the scene in 13 percent of the fatal accidents.

Adams said police officers and administrators he had talked to "feel that this law would improve volun-tary compliance" with the proposed law, and "would reduce the amount of drinking and driving.

"The opposition to the bill, of course, isn't just a good guy-bad guy, liquor industry vs. law enforcement," Adams said. "It's a very delicate balance when you start regulating people's interest and telling them they can't do something.
