Ags swim, not dive,
 past LSU

By TONY CORNETT
 Sports Writer
 Texas A&M's swimming teams took the LSU Tigers by the tail in Baton Rouge Saturday and proceeded to hurt their feelings.
 The Aggies' 13th ranked women's team came away with a 74-39 win, while the Aggie men spotted the Tigers 16 points and still came away with a 63-42 victory.
 The women's team took seven first place finishes and pushed their record to 3-1. The men captured six first place finishes and moved their record to 4-2.
 The Aggie men don't have any divers and that's a sacrifice of 16 points before a swimmer ever hits the water.

Aggie Coach Mel Nash said that recruiting divers was not a good idea this season because A&M's outdoor diving facility just doesn't do the job during the winter months.

"This year we finally decided to quit beating our head against the wall with the outdoor facility," Nash said. "We did not recruit any new divers because to bring them in was being unfair to them. They really couldn't improve during their time in college because of the outdoor facility."

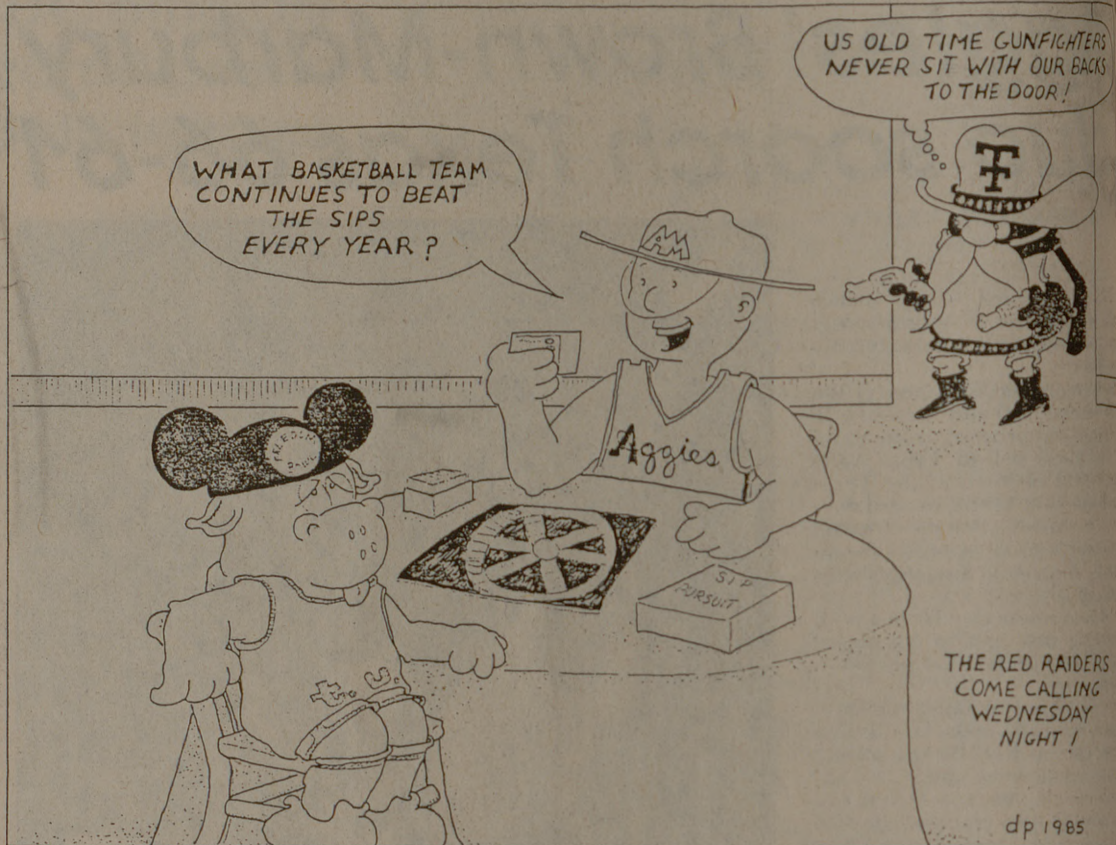

The women's team isn't as bad off — they, at least, have two divers.

This was the first competition of the new year for the swimmers and Nash is pleased with the way things are going.

"The last month and a half of working with the team has been the most pleasant and productive time I've had in eight years of college coaching," Nash said. "It's the kind of team I've always wanted to be working with. They are by far the most serious group I've ever had about their training. They have a good time, but they get in the water and they don't complain. They know they have to work to achieve the goals they want to reach."

The Ags take their show on the road again this weekend when they travel to Lubbock for a duel meet competitor with Texas Tech on Saturday.

"When we go up there they have their band and the cowbells," Nash said. "It's a nightmare every time we go there. We should be able to beat them except that they have real good divers and we don't have any divers at all."

Hickey names new tennis coach

Jan Baldwin has been named interim assistant tennis coach in charge of the women's tennis team at Texas A&M.

Baldwin, a lecturer in the Texas A&M Health and Physical Education Department since 1980, takes over from Jan Cannon, who resigned in December.

Baldwin has been a tennis instructor since 1964. She served as a teacher at the Caswell Tennis Center in Austin for three years and was director of tennis at Balcones Country Club in Austin. From '73-'79, Baldwin was assistant tennis pro at Courtyard Tennis and Swim Club.

A&M Assistant Athletic Director Lynn Hickey said she was pleased with the decision.

"We are fortunate to find someone right here with the University, especially someone with the experience that Jan has," Hickey said. "Her pro experience is something we need with the tennis season upon us."

Baldwin is a native of Austin and received her undergraduate degree from Texas in 1969 and her Master's degree from A&M in 1980. She has been a member of the United States Professional Tennis Association since 1977 and continues to be an active tournament player.

Hickey said the permanent position will not be filled until after the spring tennis season.

SMU's Bliss says one wrong means no Wright

The high-flying Southern Methodist Mustangs will likely have to adjust to a higher altitude this week.

The third-ranked Mustangs, who outlasted stubborn Texas Christian 74-70 on Saturday, could pass Duke in The Associated Press poll.

"Whether we deserve to be ranked that high is up to the writers and broadcasters, but I believe we've earned it," said SMU center Jon Koncak.

SMU is now 15-1 and off to the best start in the school's history. The Mustangs are the only unbeaten team in Southwest Conference play with a 5-0 ledger.

In other SWC games, Houston and Texas Tech, both 4-1, kept pace for second place.

The Cougars bounced Arkansas 78-73 and Texas Tech routed Baylor 92-71.

Before Wednesday's showdown against Texas, SMU Coach Dave Bliss will have to get some matters settled with star guard Carl Wright.

Bliss pulled Wright late in the TCU game for not running the coach's plays. Wright left the bench area and departed to the dressing room with the game still in progress.

"No. 44 (Wright) didn't run things the way I wanted it run," said Bliss. "All he had to do was keep the ball outside and he wouldn't do it."

"The clock was our only enemy. I'll have to have a talk with him. He probably the most impatient competitor I've ever known."

Wright, who had 15 points and assists before his disappearing act, said he left the bench because "the leg was bothering me."
