Poll shows 66 percent oppose state blue law

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Two-thirds of the Texans polled in a recent survey want the blue law repealed and a majority want legalized pari-mutual betting and a state lottery, according to a study released Wednesday.

Pollster George Shipley said his survey showed 66 percent support for repeal of the law that effectively closes most stores on Sundays. 26 percent of the about 700 people questioned favor the law and the rest had no opinion, he said.

A similar survey done by the Texas Poll at Texas A&M University in 1984 showed 70 percent of those surveyed support repeal.

The Shipley survey also showed 55 percent in favor of legalized pari-mutual betting, 35 percent opposed and 10 percent with no opinion. A state lottery was favored by 57 percent while 27 percent were against it and 16 percent had no opinion.

The poll was paid for by Texans for Blue Law Repeal Inc., a coalition formed to push for repeal that includes Joske's, Zale Jewelers and Target.

"I'm increasingly convinced that the feeling of an overwhelming majority of Texans is that it's time for a change," said Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls and sponsor of a bill to repeal the law.

The Texas Automobile Dealers Association, small retailers and residents of some rural areas have been fighting for repeal for years.

But Shipley said 68 percent of the voters surveyed in nine rural districts favor repeal.

"Traditionally we've always assumed that rural areas are opposed to any change in the blue law," Farabee said. "We now have new information that dispels these myths."

Two-thirds of those surveyed said they see no religious basis for the law on Sunday.

Eighty percent of those surveyed favored some revisions to the law more of the restricted items to be sold on Sundays, Shipley said. The blue law prohibits the sale of items, including hardware, appliances and clothing, on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

Texas is among 11 states that have a blue law. He said 25 states have repealed the law since 1961.

According to state Comptroller Bob Bullock, Texas retailers are losing $270 million in sales each year because of the blue law.
