Judge —

She said that she still hears from people who disagree with the suit.

"There are certain individuals who know who I am and have come up to me and told me they disagree," she said. "That's their right, but the tide is turning at A&M."

Bonnie Krumpotic, third battalion commander and one of 11 female cadets who attended the hearing, said she didn't think admitting women would make a difference in the Aggie band.

"The United States is greater because women can vote," she said. "I think A&M will be greater because of increased support for women."

A&M must revise its catalogs and other publications to eliminate references to male-only programs.
