Americans hurt in Greek blast go to U.S. base

Associated Press
 ATHENS, Greece — Thirteen seriously injured U.S. servicemen and dependents, among the 69 Americans wounded when a time bomb exploded in a crowded bar, were airlifted to a U.S. base in West Germany on Sunday for treatment, U.S. and Greek officials said.
 The Saturday night explosion injured 78 people in all and was the first reported terrorist attack on a facility frequented by U.S. military personnel in Greece. Greek authorities said no group had yet claimed responsibility, and Greek police declined to speculate on whom the bombers might be.
 Seven Greeks, a West German and an Ethiopian were also reported injured when, Greek police said, a bomb went off under one of the tables at Bobby's, a bar in the seaside Athens suburb of Glyfada.
 The bar is popular with many of the 1,500 U.S. Air Force personnel stationed at Hellenikon Air Base next to Athens airport.
 Police searching the wrecked saloon found "traces of a timing device," a police spokesman said.
 "It was clearly a powerful time bomb," the spokesman said. "It was a miracle that no one was killed."
 A U.S. Embassy official, who, like the police spokesman, spoke on condition of anonymity, said the incident "was out of our jurisdiction and we will assist the Greek government in their investigation only if we are requested to."
 The bomb went off at 11:36 p.m. when about 200 people were packed into the bar near Glyfada's central square.
 The explosion caused part of the ceiling to collapse, smashed chairs and bar stools, blew the bar's heavy doors off their hinges and showered the street with glass.
 Ambulances took the seriously wounded to city hospitals. Those slightly injured were driven in private cars and taxis to the base hospital nearby.
 A spokeswoman at the U.S. Hellenikon base said 32 Americans, the Ethiopian and a Greek were released after receiving first aid at the base hospital.
 She said 13 servicemen were flown out Sunday for treatment in West Germany. The first eight arrived at Ramstein Air Base and were taken to the nearby U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl, said Senior Master Sgt. Edie Lee, spokesman at Ramstein.
 Two Americans have been assassinated in Greece within the past 10 years.
 A group called November 17 claimed responsibility for killing CIA station chief Richard Welch in 1976 and Naval Attache George Tsantes in 1983.

Dialogue needed in Peru, pope says

Associated Press
 AYACUCHO, Peru — Pope John Paul II pleaded "with pain in my heart" on Sunday, in the heart of rebel territory, for leftist Peruvian guerrillas to lay down their arms and end the struggle that has killed 4,000 people.
 "The cruel logic of violence leads nowhere," he told tens of thousands at the airport, as a white dove released before his speech fluttered overhead. "If your objective is that of a Peru more just and fraternal, seek the way of dialogue and not that of violence."
 The Sendero Luminoso, or Shining Path, Maoist guerrillas are based in Ayacucho, a city perched in the stark Andes mountains. The guerrillas seek to overthrow the democratically elected government — now headed by President Fernando Belaunde Terry — and install a Marxist government.
 The 64-year-old pontiff arrived in Peru on Friday after stops in Venezuela and Ecuador.
 John Paul told public authorities in his speech that those responsible for law and order must "succeed in inspiring confidence in the population."
 Five thousand extra soldiers armed with automatic weapons patrolled the town, where Peru won its independence from Spain in 1824. A thick wall of sandbags, reinforced for the papal visit, surrounded the airport. Authorities prohibited peasants from wearing traditional Andean ponchos and hats, which they said are used by terrorists to hide arms and explosives.
 Ayacucho's Mayor Leonor Zamora was scheduled to be on the welcoming stand, but was barred from entering the airport when she would not submit to a body search, mandatory for all entering the area — including nuns.
 The pope, shaking his fist for emphasis, said in Spanish: "I beg you with pain in my heart, and at the same time with firmness and hope, that you reflect over the roads you have chosen. Violence is not a means of construction."
 John Paul said the Church must bring about change, but not with means that are anti-Christian. The pope frequently speaks out against "liberation theology," a blend of Marxist ideologies and Gospel teaching which promotes political activism to help the poor. The philosophy is highly popular in Peru.
