Free throws piece of cake for Brown

By CHAREAN WILLIAMS
 Assistant Sports Editor

After "high-fiving" with his teammates, he approaches the free throw line. He practices his form a few times, bounces the basketball a few times and then, swish — nothing but net.

For Texas A&M guard Kenny Brown, free throws are a piece of cake. No problem.

"I could always shoot free throws all right," Brown said. "It's no big deal."

Currently, Brown is hitting 92.1 percent, which puts him third in the nation. He led the nation in free throws for the first part of the season and, at one time, had a string of 25 in a row.

Last season was a different story. Brown hit only 72.8 percent of his free throws, and only 65.9 in South-west Conference play. He didn't even lead the Aggies in free throw percentage, much less the nation.

"I'm just taking more time on the line," Brown said. "They just happen to be going in."

"I wish I wasn't leading the nation to tell you the truth. Everytime I miss it's 'oh, you missed.' I try to look at it as no big deal. I would rather hit field goals than free throws. People keep talking about it. It gets on my nerves really."

The junior from Memphis, Tenn., has better things to talk about, like the Aggies' successful '85 campaign.

"We're in a good position," Brown said. "We made a mistake at the end of the SMU game that hurt us, but maybe we lost to a better team that game. We sure shouldn't have lost to Arkansas."

Brown said having four starters return from last year's team made the Ags a SWC contender.

"I thought we had a good team last year," Brown said. "We just weren't experienced. We're kind of like vets now. We're really coming together as a team. We play together and make as few mistakes as possible."

Brown, 25, said A&M's goal is to finish in the top three of the SWC.

"We really don't want to finish any lower than third," he said. "And we want to go higher than that. We have a chance to win the conference. That's a goal I would like."

Brown and teammate Al Pulliam came to A&M after serving time in the military. Teammate Gary Lewis, was responsible for getting Brown to A&M.

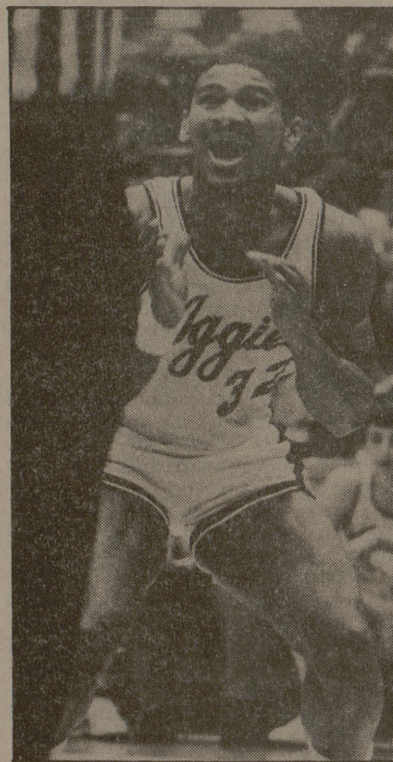

"When I was in the service, I would go to a gym in Tucson," Brown said. "Gary's dad (who was a teammate of Aggie Head Coach Shelby Metcalf's on an Air Force team in Germany) told Coach Metcalf about me."

"Coach Metcalf called me up. I came down here and visited and liked it, so I'm here. I had an offer from Arizona as well, but I was ready to leave Arizona. I thought this was a good place to come."

When Brown entered A&M, he was purely a perimeter shooter. He averaged 9.6 and 11.8 points per game in his first two years as an Aggie.

Having improved in all facets of the game, Brown has upped his average to 18.2 points per game this season and has scored in double figures every game.

The Jan. 23 game against Texas Tech was Brown's only bad game this season. Brown scored only 10 points and overall had a lackluster performance.

Texas A&M's Kenny Brown reacts to an official's call.

"I've been going pretty good," Brown said. "I don't know what happened at Tech. If I would have kept shooting at Tech, I'm sure it would have come. But, if I'm not hitting, I look for other people."

Metcalf said, "Kenny's poor performance wouldn't have been so noticeable if he wasn't so important to us."

What Brown won't tell you is that he missed the practice before the Tech game because he had to attend a lab. However, one game does not a season make, as Brown has proved. Opposing coaches and players have nothing but compliments for Brown.

Arkansas Assistant Coach James Dickey said Brown is the key to stopping the Ags.

"He has great range and is capable of scoring 30," Dickey said. "You've got to keep Brown from having a big night."

Against Oral Roberts on Dec. 5, Brown had a season high 29 points. ORU forward Sam Potter was only one of many Titans who were impressed with Brown.

"That No. 32 is a phenomenal shooter," Potter said. "We knew he was good, but we didn't expect him to be that good."

More than one team has been burned when all their thoughts were centered on Brown.

"We came in (against A&M on Dec. 8) thinking 'Brown, Brown, Brown,' and we left knowing all about Todd Holloway," Pan American Head Coach Lon Kruger said.

The Broncs lost 74-53 to the Ags behind Holloway's 28 points.

Most see Brown in the NBA after next season, but Brown said that isn't his biggest concern right now.

"It has crossed my mind," Brown said. "I'm trying not to put my thoughts into that. I'll play one more year and see what happens. I just want to finish school and get my degree so I'll have something to fall back on."

The parks and recreation major would like to work in a gym after graduating.

"I like working in gyms," he said. "I might like to work with some type of recreation in the service. I like the way they handle things."
